BETWEEN TWO TOWERS

'Fearless' Walk in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — A daring young Frenchman startled thousands of Manhattan office workers today with a wildcat high wire act 1,350 feet in the air between the towers of the world's second tallest building.

Wearing a V-necked polo shirt and black pants and carrying a balancing pole, Philippe Petit, 25, managed to stay out of the clutches of the police for about 75 minutes as he dazzled the crowd with a dancing act on the precariously swaying 140-foot wire.

Petit, well known as a pantomimist and amateur acrobat in the city's artistic circles, once reportedly staged a similiar stunt between the towers of Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris.

The highwire act was first spotted about 7:30 a.m. Petit made at least seven or eight trips — even stopping to sit and lie down — between the twin 110-story towers of the new World Trade Center on a wire apparently shot across by a harpoon device. Police finally pulled him off the wire and took him into custody.

The crowd cheered as Petit was hustled from an elevator at street level by police.

Port Authority Sgt. Charles Daniels, said Petit was on the wire for an hour and 15 minutes.

"But I saw him do his dancing routine for 40 minutes," Daniels, of East Orange, N.J., said. "He was laughing and smiling to himself — he had complete confidence in his ability — so that he started jumping. He even leaned down on one knee and turned around.

"He lay down on the high wire and started rolling around lackadaisically.

"He was absolutely fearless and had supreme confidence in his ability.... "He was bouncing up and down — his feet were actually leaving the wire. He would just lie there as though he wanted to take a nap."

At the stationhouse, the five-foot-four Petit said he couldn't explain why he did it.

"I don't know. I can't explain. There is no why," he said.

Then, playfully balancing a police officer's hat on the end of his nose, while he and an alleged accomplice, Frenchman Jean Franion Heckle, waited to be booked on criminal trespass and disorderly conduct charges, he added:

"I just look around for a place to put my wire; a place to walk across. I just dream of that and one day the dream comes true."

He said the feat "was a very difficult one because it is so high. There was some wind. You are afraid to be afraid. You hang on to your pole which is your life."

A Port Authority spokesman said Petit and accomplices, disguised as hard hat construction workers putting finishing touches on the huge Trade Center, apparently reconnoitered the building for three days before the stunt. They sneaked their equipment to the top yesterday

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors yesterday declared their intent to assume control over both the county's housing authority and redevelopment agency. (Other Marin supervisors stories, page 24.)

Supervisors, however, delayed any action at least two months so that legal and political ramifications can be studied.

The matter will return to the board in late September or early October when it reviews a consultant's study on the economic impact of the county general plan.

In that study, Consultant Angus N. McDonald recommended the housing authority be dissolved and its functions and personnel placed under the department of public works.

The proposed county takeover of the independent agencies, both served by one staff, is an offshoot of a controversy over the continued employment of Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd.

A four-member majority of the housing authority board has supported moves for Shepherd's ouster in recent months, while a majority of the redevelopment agency board supports him.

Supervisors avoided that issue yesterday, with only Chairman Michael Wornum urging the two agencies to resolve the question before the reorganization is considered again by supervisors.

"If Shepherd stays, that's fine; if Shepherd is asked to leave, that's fine. Just get it solved," Wornum said.

The matter first came before supervisors two weeks ago when the three-member minority on the housing board urged supervisors to consider merging the housing authority and redevelopment agency boards. The result would have been a single commission favorable toward Shepherd.

Other members of both boards appeared at yesterday's meeting to oppose the proposal saying the two functions are different, even though served by a joint staff.

Spokesmen from the Marin City Council, Marin City Tenants Council and Marin City Community Services District also opposed any merger.

The Central and Southern Marin chapters of the League of Women Voters called for an immediate takeover by supervisors while reorganization of the agencies is studied.

They listed seven possible re-

Battle Flares Between Baptiste, Bella Aaron

A long-simmering dispute between Marin County Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste and Criminal Justice Planning Director Bella H. Aaron erupted last night as he called for her removal from a regional planning board.

When the smoke cleared, Mrs. Aaron left the meeting room announcing she planned to resign her county job, having lost her seat on the regional board.

At issue during the emotional confrontation was Mrs. Aaron's "public member" seat on the North Bay Criminal Justice Planning Council, a four-county group charged with overseeing federal law-and-order grants.

Mrs. Aaron, whose county salary comes in part from those grants, was charged last month with a conflict-of-interest by the regional director, Raymond Grady.

(Mrs. Aaron had earlier accused Grady of misallocating about $850,000 which went to various projects in Sonoma County. The regional board upheld Grady.)

To remove the conflict, county officials suggested shifting funding so that her salary would be paid completely by the county.

The proposal was endorsed by state officials but supervisors Baptiste and Gary T. Giacomini refused to approve the shift, requiring at least four favorable votes.

They questioned whether the added cost of $5,000 was worth it to keep Mrs. Aaron on the regional board.

Baptiste said Mrs. Aaron had "lost credibility with the region" and should be replaced on the six-member Marin contingent to the council.

He noted that he had differed with her in the past over such things as shifting the honor farm out of the sheriff's department, the role of the corrections commission and the recent San Rafael drug squad proposal.

Mrs. Aaron, caught by surprise, told the board "you're being most, most unfair. Everything I've done was in the best

A Nixon Decision To Quit Reported

Denial Of Story By Aides

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Providence, R.I., newspaper said today President Nixon had definitely decided to resign. White House spokesmen insisted the situation had not changed since yesterday when Nixon was quoted as saying he would not be "hounded out of office."

"I can't confirm that," Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren said in response to a Providence, R.I., Journal-Bulletin story quoting a source close to the President as saying that Nixon has decided to resign and that the decision was irrevocable. (See other impeachment stories page 9 and 43.)

"There is no reason for me this afternoon to add anything to what has been said regarding a resignation," Warren said.

Another White House aide, communications chief Ken W. Clawson, said that the President is standing by his statement yesterday that he intends to stay on the job.

The Providence story was written by Douglas C. Wilson of its Washington staff. Another Journal-Bulletin reporter, Jack White, won the Pulitzer Prize last year for his story on Nixon's taxes.

The newspaper quoted the source —described as "an undaunted devotee of the President" —as saying:

"The President has come to the conclusion that the national interest may best be served by his resignation, irrespective of the mammoth injustice committed against him that prompted this painful decision on his part."

Warren, under a barrage of questions on whether Nixon would resign, repeatedly told reporters, "The position of the White House has been stated."

Warren told reporters yesterday that Nixon told his cabinet that he intended to stay on the job and to allow the constitutional process, meaning impachment and a possible Senate trial, to run its course.

Warren said that Republican senators who believe Nixon is out of touch with the public "are wrong" in all respects.

When asked whether Nixon would see a Republican delegation which may seek an appointment to demand his resignation, Warren insisted that the question was not before Nixon at this time and would only say "we would meet that when it occurs."

"I know of no meeting with congressional leaders and no direct request," Warren said.

Warren seemed more reticent to answer questions but he repeated several times "I can tell

FOUR-MILLIONTH PASSENGER

Kay Apgar of Mill Valley appears bewildered this morning as she is overwhelmed by reporters, television cameramen and officials from the Golden Gate Bridge District as she waits to board the ferry Golden Gate in Sausalito. A regular ferry commuter, she was singled out as the four-millionth passenger to use the 575-passenger ferry since it began service between San Francisco and Sausalito four years ago. Miss Apgar, who described her reaction as "total shock," was given gifts and personally congratulated by district Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring and director Lawrence Mazzola.

Immunity For Nixon Not Likely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is in no mood to grant President Nixon immunity from criminal prosecution if he resigns.

"The law should apply equally," said House Republican leader John Rhodes in expressing what appeared to be the majority sentiment among House members.

Even those who earlier urged immunity as an inducement to Nixon to resign, such as Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., backed off, maintaining their silence as almost everyone in Congress assumed that Nixon either would step down or be removed from office in a Senate trial.

The Constitution expressly states that Nixon would be subject to criminal prosecution if he is removed from office.

The only punishment allowed in an impeachment trial is removal and disqualification from holding any other federal position of honor and trust.

GOP Senators Ask President To Resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several Republican senators — acting on their own initiative — have sent President Nixon a message urging him to resign, Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said today.

Sen. Norris H. Cotton, R-N.H., also said the advice had been conveyed to Nixon but both he and Brooke stressed that the action was not undertaken on behalf of all Republican senators.

Brooke, who last Nov. 3 first called on Nixon to resign, predicted the Preident would step down. "I think he is very seriously considering it now — more seriously than at any time before."

Republican senators met for more than two hours this morning but discussed Nixon's situation for only 20 or 25 minutes. They took no united actions and reached no decisions, members said. They planned to meet again later in the day.

The pressure for President Nixon to leave office that began to build Monday when Nixon admitted he had tried to head off a FBI investigation of the Watergate cover-up continued today with some of his previously strongest support deserting him.

Rep. John Rhodes, House GOP leader, said yesterday he would vote for impeachment and Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said today Nixon could no longer be presumed innocent in a Senate trial and if held the trial would determine only Nixon's "degree of accountability."

In his first direct statement since Nixon disclosed Monday that he had sought to limit the FBI investigation of the Watergate burglary, Scott noted that he had said often in the past that Nixon was entitled to be presumed innocent in any Senate trial.

"His own statement has removed the presumption," Scott said. "But he has left us with the question of the degree of accountability."

Scott's comments were the latest indication of the crumbling of Nixon support among

Greek Force Is In Retreat

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Turkish forces blasted a region of northern Cyprus with a fierce artillery barrage today, driving Greek Cypriot defenders into hasty retreat in a major violation of the island's shaky, eight-day truce.

In Nicosia, a government spokesman announced President Glafkos Clerides would reshuffle his government for "political reasons," seeking broad popular support for his two-week-old regime.

Military representatives of Greece, Turkey and Britainmet for the sixth time today in a bid to end fighting on the island by mapping cease-fire lines and U.N.-patrolled buffer zones.

A spokesman for the Canadian U.N. contingent said snipers in Nicosia shot and mortally wounded a Canadian U.N. soldier in Nicosia last night, the second member of the U.N. force to die since the Turkish invasion July 20.

UPI Correspondent Michael Keats said fighting on the island's northern coast broke out early this morning just minutes after a U.N. observer helicopter flew over the embattled region and headed back to the capital of Nicosia.

Heavy artillery shells exploded in the fields around three villages overrun by Turkish troops yesterday in what a U.N. spokesman called the heaviest fighting on the island since the July 30 Geneva cease-fire agreement.

The defenders, members of the 10,000-man Greek Cypriot national guard, rushed from their positions onto a coastal road and marched in single file away from the battle area.

The road was littered with the smoking ruins of Greek Cypriot trucks and armored personnel carriers that had been hit by Turkish shell fire. Cypriot gunners hooked their weapons to trucks and fled to the rear.

The Cypriot national guard led the July 15 coup that ousted President Makarios and installed former gunman Nikos Sampson as president. Sampson quit July 22 and Clerides took over the same day.

On the eastern wing of the island, U.N. reinforcements went to the port of Famagusta after Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides said local Turks were intent on gaining control of the city's harbor.

The crisis on Cyprus, where ethnic Greeks outnumber ethnic Turks 4-to-1, erupted July 15 when Greek Cypriots deposed President Makarios. The Turks invaded the island July 20 and came close to the brink of war with Greece.

An estimated 30,000 Turkish troops on the island, backed by tanks and artillery, hold an 18-mile land corridor from Kyrenia to Nicosia. They are opposed by the 10,000-man Cypriot national guard and Cypriot guerrillas.

Greece, Turkey and Britain, which guaranteed the former British colony independence in 1960, agreed in Geneva last week to a standstill cease-fire and and U.N.-manned buffer zones between the warring armies.

The negotiations moved to Nicosia, where military officers of the three sides met for the fifth time yesterday in a bid to draw up truce lines despite persistent violations of the cease-fire.

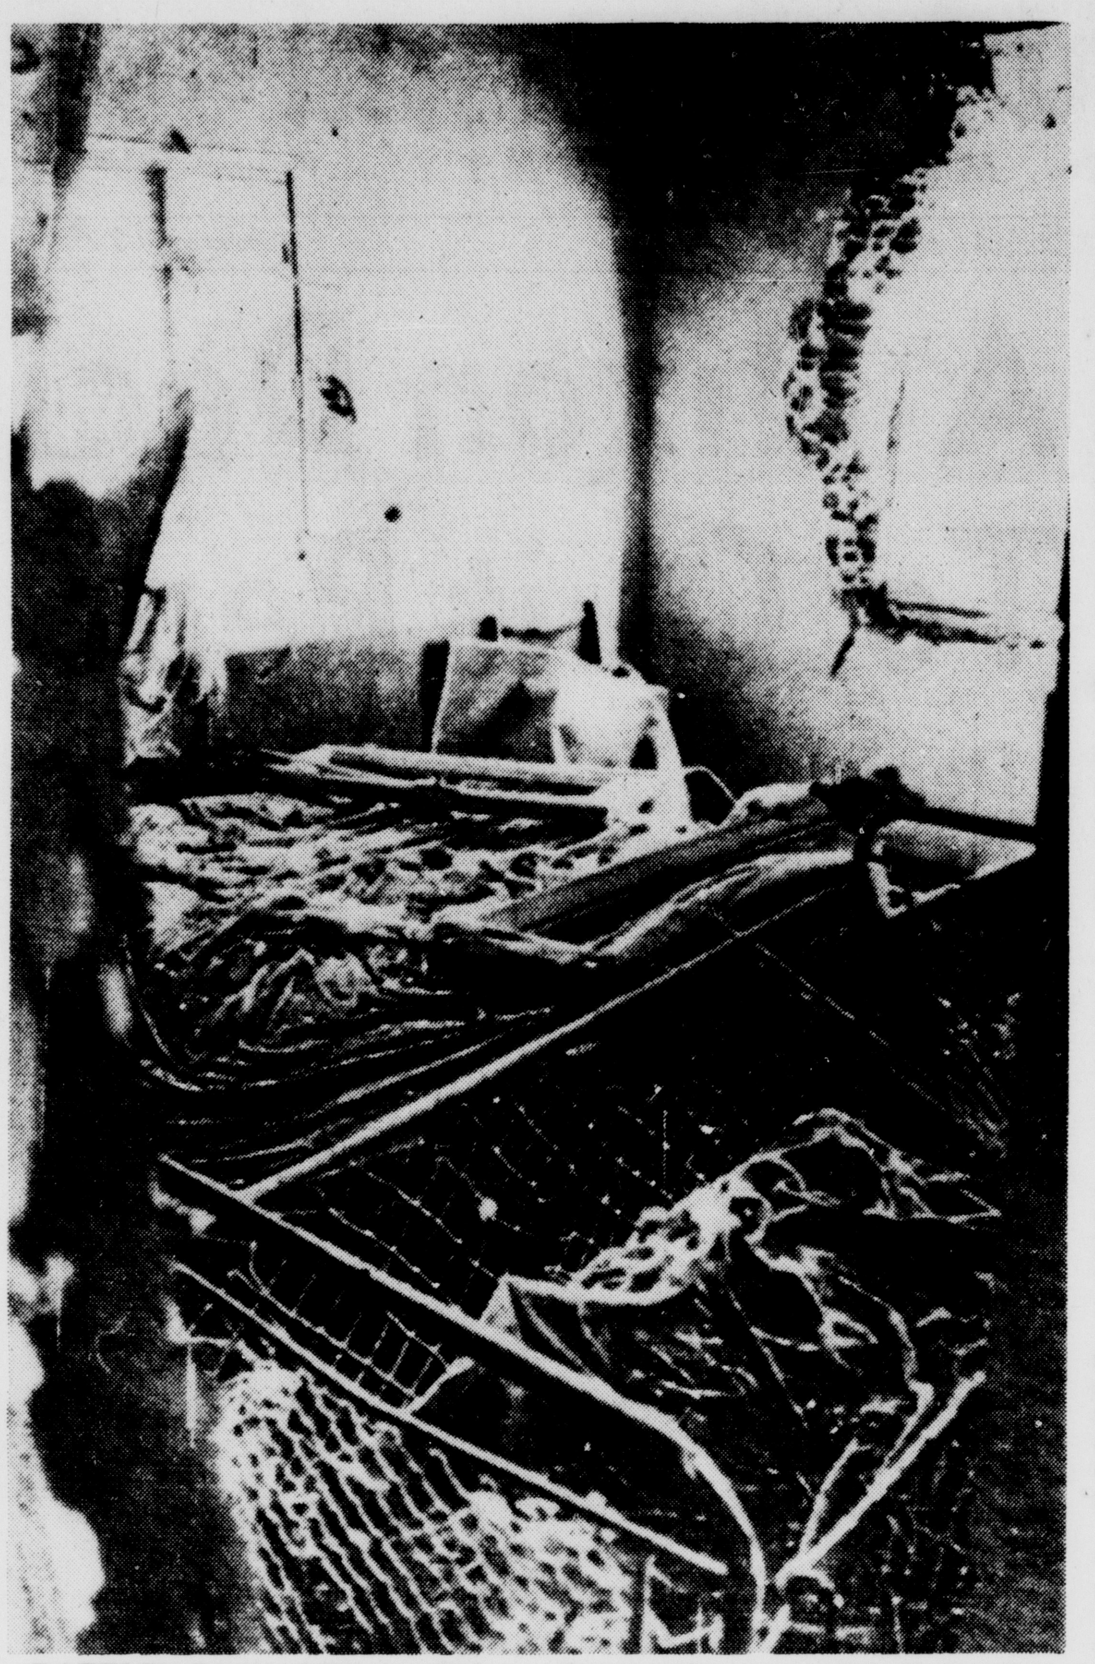
Col. Jerry Hunter, British delegate and chief of the talks, said the three nations "consider they may have made some progress" at the meeting yesterday.

The delegates had been scheduled to sign a preliminary agreement on the buffer zones yesterday, but Greece called off the ceremony after fighting broke out on the northern coast.

In Athens, a Foreign Ministry source said Greece would be represented at the second round of the Geneva conference tomorrow "in order to show its goodwill." Greece had threatened previously to boycott the talks.

The Greek source said, however, the government had reservations and would walk out of the discussions if Turkey continued to violate the July 30 cease-fire agreement.

Turkish Cypriot Defense Minister Osman Orek said he felt the Geneva conference would not resume as scheduled because it was "not practical to start political talks with half the Turkish Cypriot population held as potential hostages."



BATTLE CASUALTY — This house in the Greek Cypriot village of Larnaca-Lapithou was damaged by Turkish artillery and mortar fire yesterday during the longest outbreak of fighting since the cease fire.

Communists Capture Thuong Duc

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops seized a key district capital near Da Nang today in the first major Communist victory of a three-week-old drive against the outskirts of the strategic port city.

Field reports said the Communists seized Thuong Duc, a town 25 miles southwest of Da Nang, in hand-to-hand fighting with crack government ranger defending the war-torn district capital.

The Saigon command reported losing radio contact with the town's defenders soon after Communists backed by tanks and artillery broke through Thuong Duc's barbed wire defense perimeter at midmorning.

"We think because of the size of the attacking force, the rangers may have moved away from the town and that is why we cannot contact them," a command spokesman said.

Field reports said the Communists broke through the final, concertina wire defenses and swarmed into the government lines, apparently overwhelming all resistance in less than an hour.

South Vietnam has warned the Communists the fall of a major town in the Da Nang fighting would destroy the Jan. 28, 1973, cease-fire agreement.

The reports said the town's ranger defenders — former mercenaries for American forces in South Vietnam — abandoned the one-time U.S. Green Beret outpost guarding the district capital.

The 14,000 residents of Thuong Duc, the equivalent of a county seat in the United States, fled the war-torn town in the early days of the Da Nang offensive. Many failed to reach government lines and fell into Communist hands.

Thuong Duc was the second district capital seized by Communists since the 1973 cease-fire. North Vietnamese troops captured Kien Duc, 125 miles north of Saigon, last November, but government forces retook the town four days later.

The next target in the Communist march toward Da Nang was expected to be the district capital of Duc Duc, eight miles southeast of Thuong Duc.

The fall of Duc Duc, defended by a 2,500-man regiment of government army troops, would be a serious blow to the morale of the South Vietnamese armed forces.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces began their offensive July 17 against the southwestern approaches to Da Nang, 370 miles north of Saigon and South Vietnam's second largest city.

Waves of government warplanes bombed Communist positions around Thuong Duc and other besieged towns in the region. Pilots reported killing 85 Communists and knocking out two big 130mm artillery guns with 47 air strikes.

The Saigon command reported 54 Communists killed yesterday in fighting at Thuong Duc and three other embattled county capitals southwest of Da Nang. Four government soldiers were reported slain and 17 wounded.

Many Injured In Canada Bus Crash

CHILLIWACK, B.C. (UPI) — A Greyhound bus carrying 48 persons plunged off the Trans-Canada Highway near here yesterday, killing the driver and injuring most of the passengers.

A Royal Canadian Mounted Police spokesman said the bus was en route from Penticton, B.C., to Vancouver when it went out of control and plunged down an embankment, coming to rest in a creek. Many of the passengers climbed through windows to escape.

The Next Step

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A disengagement of forces agreement between Jordan and Israel is the next necessary step toward peace in the Middle East, according to Jordan's premier and foreign minister Zaid al-Rifai.

Israeli Planes Strike Twice Inside Lebanon

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Israeli warplanes struck into southern Lebanon twice in 13 hours today, hitting Arab guerrilla bases in the region known as "Fatahland" just north of the Israeli frontier, the military command in Tel Aviv announced.

The planes first struck southern Lebanon shortly after 1 a.m., the Israeli command said, in the general area where three guerrillas kidnaped four Israeli Druse villagers last night. The Druse were working on Israel's security fence along the northern frontier which is designed to prevent such attacks.

The command said the second raids began at 2:10 p.m. and lasted for several minutes.

The command said in a communique that one of the kidnaped villagers managed to escape from the guerrillas during the night. He stayed in hiding until daybreak and then slipped back into Israel.

The air strikes were the first in two weeks against the area the Israelis call Fatahland because of the concentration of Al Fatal Palestinian guerrilla bases. The command said all Israeli planes returned safely from both strikes.

An Israeli armored patrol crossed into southern Lebanon soon after the abduction, but failed to free the kidnaped villagers —residents of a settlement on the Golan Heights.

The Tel Aviv command said the Israeli troops seized six Arab villagers allegedly connected with the abduction and clashed with Lebanese forces near Al Majidive, one mile north of the frontier.

The patrol crossed back into Israel with the Lebanese villagers —possibly to exchange them in the future for the kidnaped Jewish settlers.

The Defense Ministry in Beirut said Lebanese artillery fired on the patrol for 45 minutes, forcing the Israelis to withdraw.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin told the Knesset (parliament) Israel would consider secret contacts with Jordanian officials in an effort to reach a lasting peace settlement.

Rabin said Israel would not reject "opportunities to conduct dialogue without publicity, should the opposite side so desire for reasons of its own, in order to prepare the conditions for open negotiations."

He promised, however, to give voters a final say on any accord for the return of Jordan's West Bank region, captured by Israel in the 1967 Middle East War.

Israeli rightists have said former Prime Minister Golda Meir met secretly with Jordanian King Hussein last month to discuss a possible West Bank agreement.

In the Arab world, relations between Egypt and Libya took another turn for the worse today, with the Tripoli government demanding the return of a squadron of Mirage warplanes loaned to Cairo during the 1973 Middle East War.

Sadat accused Libyan spies of subversion in Egypt, but said his government was willing to return the warplanes if Khadafy sends an envoy to discuss the matter.

Ties between the two nations have deteriorated steadily since Egypt improved relations with the United States following last October's 17-day war and signed a Sinai Desert troop separation pact with Israel.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Meany Supports Resignation

CHICAGO (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany said Monday's release of new Watergate tapes reinforces his view that President Nixon should resign.

Meany

Meany said that if Nixon is not out of the White House by the November elections, the Republicans face a political disaster in which they will loose 60 congressional seats.

"As it stands now, it is going to be a disaster for the Republican party, and I mean a real disaster," he said.

"I'll make a prediction. If he's still in there and this is still going on, they'll lose 60 seats in the House."

Meany also said he believes that public employees — including police and firemen — will strike over contract disputes in the future.

Meany's statement came yesterday after the labor organization's executive council chartered a new public employees department.

Bombing Arrests

BOLOGNA, Italy (UPI) — Police arrested three alleged members of the extremist neo-fascist Black Order today as suspects in a bombing that killed 12 persons aboard an express train packed with vacationers.

Officials said two more suspects were sought in the Sunday bombing of the train — the Rome to Munich express.

In a search of their homes police found the manuscript of a typewritten manifesto left in a telephone booth Monday in which a Black Order cell claimed credit for the bombing.

Police said the suspects also were linked to an attempt during the night to bomb the Bologna offices of the Commission of Public Security.

Disaster Cause?

MIAMI (UPI) — Firemen, who rescued 15 survivors and recovered seven bodies from the collapsed offices of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration say they found notes from employees complaining of roof leaks before the disaster.

The parking deck atop the three-story-high building collapsed Monday morning, when 57 cars were parked there.

Fire chief Don Hickman, who directed the 24-hour rescue effort, said roof leaks could have caused the concrete to absorb water, increasing the weight of the roof and possibly contributing to the disaster.

Cuts Viet Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has slashed military aid to Vietnam by $300 million and cut the size of the U.S. mission there by 10 per cent in passing a $83.4 billion defense appropriation for 1975.

The action came last night on one of the last major pieces of legislation to be passed before the House can begin impeachment proceedings.

The 350 to 43 vote sending the bill to the Senate came after some conservatives turned back an effort to cut the total by $2.5 billion more.

That proposal, by Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., who had the backing of both liberals and fiscal conservatives, lost on a vote of 216 to 178.

Greek Force Is In Retreat

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Turkish forces blasted a region of northern Cyprus with a fierce artillery barrage today, driving Greek Cypriot defenders into hasty retreat in a major violation of the island's shaky, eight-day truce.

In Nicosia, a government spokesman announced President Glafkos Clerides would reshuffle his government for "political reasons," seeking broad popular support for his two-week-old regime.

Military representatives of Greece, Turkey and Britainmet for the sixth time today in a bid to end fighting on the island by mapping cease-fire lines and U.N.-patrolled buffer zones.

A spokesman for the Canadian U.N. contingent said snipers in Nicosia shot and mortally wounded a Canadian U.N. soldier in Nicosia last night, the second member of the U.N. force to die since the Turkish invasion July 20.

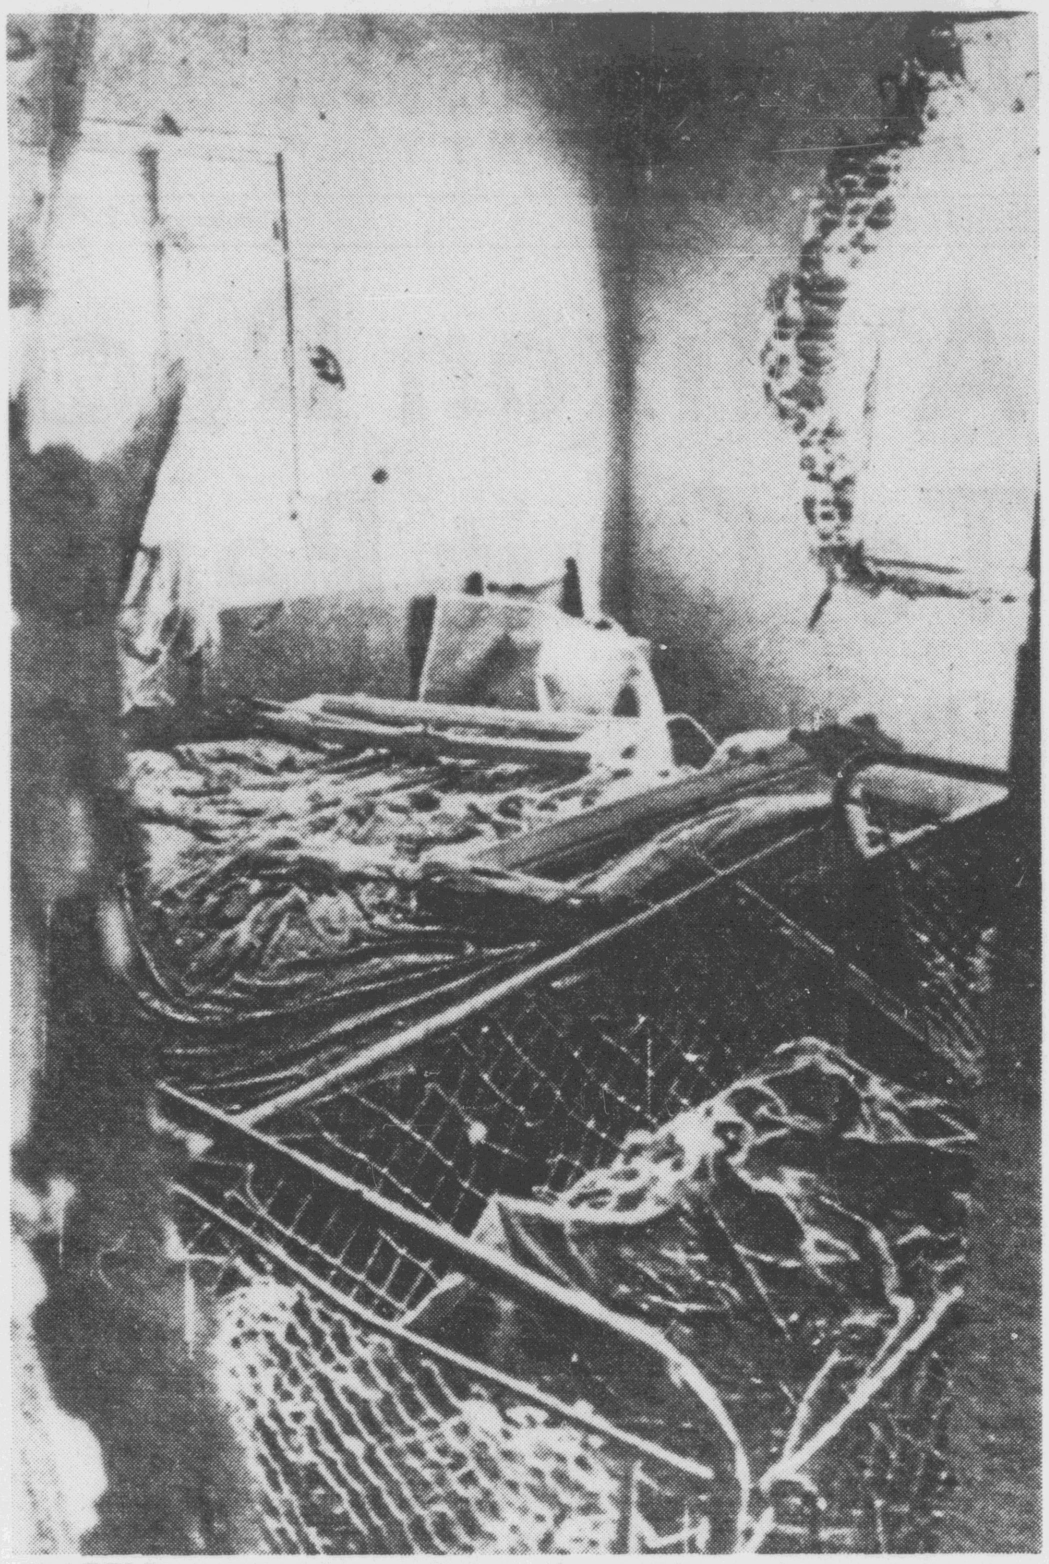
UPI Correspondent Michael Keats said fighting on the island's northern coast broke out early this morning just minutes after a U.N. observer helicopter flew over the embattled region and headed back to the capital of Nicosia.

Heavy artillery shells exploded in the fields around three villages overrun by Turkish troops yesterday in what a U.N. spokesman called the heaviest fighting on the island since the July 30 Geneva cease-fire agreement.

The defenders, members of the 10,000-man Greek Cypriot national guard, rushed from their positions onto a coastal road and marched in single file away from the battle area.

The road was littered with the smoking ruins of Greek Cypriot trucks and armored personnel carriers that had been hit by Turkish shell fire. Cypriot gunners hooked their weapons to trucks and fled to the rear.

The Cypriot national guard led the July 15 coup that ousted President Makarios and installed former gunman Nikos Sampson as president. Sampson quit July 22 and Clerides took over the same day.



BATTLE CASUALTY — This house in the Greek Cypriot village of Larnaca-Lapithou was damaged by Turkish artillery and mortar fire yesterday during the longest outbreak of fighting since the cease fire.

(UPI Telephoto)

On the eastern wing of the island, U.N. reinforcements went to the port of Famagusta after Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides said local Turks were intent on gaining control of the city's harbor.

The crisis on Cyprus, where ethnic Greeks outnumber ethnic Turks 4-to-1, erupted July 15 when Greek Cypriots deposed President Makarios. The Turks invaded the island July 20 and came close to the brink of war with Greece.

An estimated 30,000 Turkish troops on the island, backed by tanks and artillery, hold an 18-mile land corridor from Kyrenia to Nicosia. They are opposed by the 10,000-man Cypriot national guard and Cypriot guerrillas.

Greece, Turkey and Britain, which guaranteed the former British colony independence in 1960, agreed in Geneva last week to a standstill cease-fire and and U.N.-manned buffer zones between the warring armies.

The negotiations moved to Nicosia, where military officers of the three sides met for the fifth time yesterday in a bid to draw up truce lines despite persistent violations of the cease-fire.

Col. Jerry Hunter, British delegate and chief of the talks, said the three nations "consider they may have made some progress" at the meeting yesterday.

The delegates had been scheduled to sign a preliminary agreement on the buffer zones yesterday, but Greece called off the ceremony after fighting broke out on the northern coast.

In Athens, a Foreign Ministry source said Greece would be represented at the second round of the Geneva conference tomorrow "in order to show its goodwill." Greece had threatened previously to boycott the talks.

The Greek source said, however, the government had reservations and would walk out of the discussions if Turkey continued to violate the July 30 cease-fire agreement.

Turkish Cypriot Defense Minister Osman Orek said he felt the Geneva conference would not resume as scheduled because it was "not practical to start political talks with half the Turkish Cypriot population held as potential hostages."

Communists Capture Thuong Duc

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops seized a key district capital near Da Nang today in the first major Communist victory of a three-week-old drive against the outskirts of the strategic port city.

Field reports said the Communists seized Thuong Duc, a town 25 miles southwest of Da Nang, in hand-to-hand fighting with crack government ranger defending the war-torn district capital.

The Saigon command reported losing radio contact with the town's defenders soon after Communists backed by tanks and artillery broke through Thuong Duc's barbed wire defense perimeter at midmorning.

"We think because of the size of the attacking force, the rangers may have moved away from the town and that is why we cannot contact them," a command spokesman said.

Field reports said the Communists broke through the final, concertina wire defenses and swarmed into the government lines, apparently overwhelming all resistance in less than an hour.

South Vietnam has warned the Communists the fall of a major town in the Da Nang fighting would destroy the Jan. 28, 1973, cease-fire agreement.

The reports said the town's ranger defenders — former mercenaries for American forces in South Vietnam — abandoned the one-time U.S. Green Beret outpost guarding the district capital.

Novato Sets Park Bond Priorities

Novato City Council last night gave priority in state park bond fund expenditure to acquisition of a nine-acre unused school site in Domingo Canyon.

The choice was urged by about 25 residents of the Domingo Canyon neighborhood. They spoke of the need for a park in the area, the beauty of the site and improvements made by the community.

Councilmen agreed the first effort should be to lease the site from the Novato Unified School District and if that isn't achieved, the site should be purchased.

Parks and Recreation Director Lester S. Russell reported the city's share of state park bond funds is $97,464.

The parks and recreation commission had recommended priority be given to the Domingo Canyon site along Marin Oaks Drive but it also favored development of a portion of the site.

Councilmen said park funds should be used for acquisition rather than development.

Second place went to acquisition of land at Scottsdale Pond west of Highway 101 near Redwood Boulevard, a choice that wasn't recommended by the commission.

The vote was 3-1 with Councilman Gail Wilhelm, who viewed Scottsdale Pond as potential open sapce, dissenting. Mayor David Price Jones, on vacation, was absent.

Third place went to acquisition of a nine-acre unused school parcel at Novato High School by lease and fourth to expansion and improvement of the city's bicycle and pedestrian path system.

Mrs. Wilhelm sought unsuccessfully to place acquisition of Slade Park, which serves Poplar Terrace, an area cut off from the main part of town by the Highway 101 bypass.

Fellow coulcilmen said Slade Park, about one acre, probably could be acquired with city funds rather than state park funds and the council authorized the staff to start negotiations for purchase of the land. The park was developed by the neighborhood several years ago, but has fallen into disrepair.

Councilmen agreed to notify the school board of its interest in the unused school sites.

The Novato City Council also:

CABLE TV — Set Sept. 10 for a public hearing on an application by Liberty TV Cable Inc. to raise its monthly rates from $4.50 to $6 for the first set.

DOG LICENSE FEES — Agreed it wouldn't support an increase in dog license fees, a proposed county-wide move, unless it received justification for the increase, not yet specified.

FINANCE ASSISTANT — Accepted the job specifications for the post of senior finance assistant at a salary range of $1,064 to $1,293 to become effective Aug. 17.

BIN COPY SORTER — Approved specifications for a 30-bin copy sorter to be used with duplicating equipment and set bid opening at 10 a.m. Aug. 19.

MOTOR BOAT — Authorized purchase of a 12-foot boat and outboard motor for use in the parks and recreation department's sailing program at Bahia Lagoon at a cost of $320.

CITY BIRTHDAY — Agreed with a recommendation from Margaret A. Coady, city historian, that a committee be appointed to plan the city's 15th anniversary next January.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

Musician Beats Telephone Case

INGLEWOOD (UPI) — Rock musician Ike Turner was cleared yesterday of charges of defrauding the Pacific Telephone Co. by using a "blue box" to make unlimited free long distance calls.

The boxes generate sound tones that manipulate the company's lines and computers, enabling users to make direct dial calls and bypass the billing process.

$13 Million Budget Adopted In Novato

A $13,304,429 final budget for fiscal 1974-75 was adopted last night by the Novato Unified School board before an audience of 18 persons.

The budget is $160,916 more than the $13,143,513 publication budget.

Supt. Games G. Bunker said that the assessments on utilities were more than expected so the district will get that much more in tax revenue. He said that the money would be placed in the contingencies fund.

The district has a 25 per cent increase in assessed valuation from $114,092,757 last year to $142,710,112 this year, Bunker said.

Annette Moor of 21 San Carlos Way, Novato, asked if there was any money in the budget for trustees salaries. Board President Jan Murray explained that last fall the board had voted 6-1 against salaries.

Judy Cook of the Pleasant Valley Parent-Teacher Assn. asked if the money was still in the budget to pave the play area at Pleasant Valley School and was assured that it was.

These were the only comments from the audience.

The Novato United School District board also:

CONTRACTS — Awarded a $25,632 contract to Kunst Brothers Inc. of San Rafael to paint Hill Junior High School; a $6,325 contract to Higgins Lumber Co. of San Francisco and a $4,294 contract to MacBeath Hardwood Co. of San Francisco to supply lumber to the woodworking classes.

SCHOOL DAY — Set the regular school day at the same length as last year, then set the morning starting times as 8:15 for high schools, 9 for junior high schools, 8:30 for early elementary and 9:30 for late elementary. On Nov. 4, the times will change to 9:30 for Hill and San Jose junior high schools, 9 for the early elementary and 10 a.m. for late elementary. The high schools and Sinaloa Junior High School remain the same.

EASEMENTS — Approved buying for $10 each from the county two pedestrian easements to school sites in San Marin.

TESTS — Approved the schedule of 12 state mandated tests for the school year.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to a closed meeting to instruct the board representative on administrative salary negotiations and to its regular meeting at 8 p.m., Aug. 27 at the Novato High School lecture hall.

Housing Is Up In W. Germany

BONN (UPI) — Private dwellings in West Germany increased by 3.1 per cent during 1973 to reach a total of about 22,640,000, the Federal Office of Statistics reported.

This represents the largest increase in several years. It compares to an increase of 2.9 per cent in 1972 and 2.5 per cent in 1971.

Novato Sets Park Bond Priorities

Novato City Council last night gave priority in state park bond fund expenditure to acquisition of a nine-acre unused school site in Domingo Canyon.

The choice was urged by about 25 residents of the Domingo Canyon neighborhood. They spoke of the need for a park in the area, the beauty of the site and improvements made by the community.

Councilmen agreed the first effort should be to lease the site from the Novato Unified School District and if that isn't achieved, the site should be purchased.

Parks and Recreation Director Lester S. Russell reported the city's share of state park bond funds is $97,464.

The parks and recreation commission had recommended priority be given to the Domingo Canyon site along Marin Oaks Drive but it also favored development of a portion of the site.

Councilmen said park funds should be used for acquisition rather than development.

Second place went to acquisition of land at Scottsdale Pond west of Highway 101 near Redwood Boulevard, a choice that wasn't recommended by the commission.

The vote was 3-1 with Councilman Gail Wilhelm, who viewed Scottsdale Pond as potential open sapce, dissenting. Mayor David Price Jones, on vacation, was absent.

Third place went to acquisition of a nine-acre unused school parcel at Novato High School by lease and fourth to expansion and improvement of the city's bicycle and pedestrian path system.

Mrs. Wilhelm sought unsuccessfully to place acquisition of Slade Park, which serves Poplar Terrace, an area cut off from the main part of town by the Highway 101 bypass.

Fellow coulcilmen said Slade Park, about one acre, probably could be acquired with city funds rather than state park funds and the council authorized the staff to start negotiations for purchase of the land. The park was developed by the neighborhood several years ago, but has fallen into disrepair.

Councilmen agreed to notify the school board of its interest in the unused school sites.

The Novato City Council also:

Musician Beats Telephone Case

INGLEWOOD (UPI) — Rock musician Ike Turner was cleared yesterday of charges of defrauding the Pacific Telephone Co. by using a "blue box" to make unlimited free long distance calls.

The boxes generate sound tones that manipulate the company's lines and computers, enabling users to make direct dial calls and bypass the billing process.

$13 Million Budget Adopted In Novato

A $13,304,429 final budget for fiscal 1974-75 was adopted last night by the Novato Unified School board before an audience of 18 persons.

The budget is $160,916 more than the $13,143,513 publication budget.

Supt. Games G. Bunker said that the assessments on utilities were more than expected so the district will get that much more in tax revenue. He said that the money would be placed in the contingencies fund.

The district has a 25 per cent increase in assessed valuation from $114,092,757 last year to $142,710,112 this year, Bunker said.

Annette Moor of 21 San Carlos Way, Novato, asked if there was any money in the budget for trustees salaries. Board President Jan Murray explained that last fall the board had voted 6-1 against salaries.

Judy Cook of the Pleasant Valley Parent-Teacher Assn. asked if the money was still in the budget to pave the play area at Pleasant Valley School and was assured that it was.

These were the only comments from the audience.

The Novato United School District board also:

CONTRACTS — Awarded a $25,632 contract to Kunst Brothers Inc. of San Rafael to paint Hill Junior High School; a $6,325 contract to Higgins Lumber Co. of San Francisco and a $4,294 contract to MacBeath Hardwood Co. of San Francisco to supply lumber to the woodworking classes.

SCHOOL DAY — Set the regular school day at the same length as last year, then set the morning starting times as 8:15 for high schools, 9 for junior high schools, 8:30 for early elementary and 9:30 for late elementary. On Nov. 4, the times will change to 9:30 for Hill and San Jose junior high schools, 9 for the early elementary and 10 a.m. for late elementary. The high schools and Sinaloa Junior High School remain the same.

EASEMENTS — Approved buying for $10 each from the county two pedestrian easements to school sites in San Marin.

TESTS — Approved the schedule of 12 state mandated tests for the school year.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to a closed meeting to instruct the board representative on administrative salary negotiations and to its regular meeting at 8 p.m., Aug. 27 at the Novato High School lecture hall.

IMMUNITY

says: "The party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law."

Any prosecution of Nixon after he leaves office presumably would be decided by his successor, Vice President Gerald R. Ford, by Attorney General William Saxbe and possibly by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

The prevailing congressional sentiment at this point appears to be that Nixon should not be subjected to a jail sentence in addition to the humiliation of removal or resignation, but nevertheless that Congress should keep its hands off that question.

This sentiment is based on a feeling that the country should get the whole Watergate matter behind it, and a feeling that removal from office is the most severe punishment reasonable in Nixon's case.

Many feel further prosecution would amount to persecution.

"Even the Russians let Khrushchev retire to his villa," one Southern Republican said.

Many congressmen question whether the Constitution gives Congress the power to grant immunity to a president, and whether any immunity would also extend to state and civil prosecution.

One possible route around this would be a "sense of the Congress" resolution, carrying no force of law but expressing the will of Congress to the new president that Nixon had been punished enough.

Even this route has gained few sympathizers.

The White House says emphatically that Nixon has asked for no immunity, and this is confirmed by Speaker Carl Albert and other congressional leaders.

If Nixon should ask for immunity as a price for resigning, the mood of Congress could change.

So far only one halfway serious move has developed in Congress toward a possible immunity resolution.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., is sounding out House members, mainly Republicans, about the possibility of a sense of the Congress resolution against prosecution. He apparently is getting little encouragement.

But he said, "There is a great feeling in the House that the President should not be prosecuted. Seeing him dragged through every court in the country would be distasteful."

Republicans led the list in the House of those opposing immunity.

"It might come back to haunt you," said Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill. "It derogates from the principle the Supreme Court very recently affirmed, equity before the law."

Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., a member of the House Judiciary Committee and a former Nixon supporter, said he is opposed to prosecution, but "I would be opposed to an immunity bill too."

Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., said immunity legislation would be unnecessary because, "I don't think they would prosecute him for anything if he resigned."

Anti-immunity sentiment appears to be stronger in the House than in the Senate.

Both Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Republican assistant leader Robert P. Griffin said they would consider the possibility of an immunity resolution.

But, asked if there were any "serious expectations" of congressional immunity, Mansfield firmly replied, "No."

Rockefeller Is Supported For Vice President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, credited with persuading President Nixon to choose Gerald R. Ford vice president, is now urging the selection of Nelson A. Rockefeller if Ford succeeds Nixon.

Quoted in today's Washington Post, Laird said, "Ford and Rockefeller will form a winning combination for the Republican party."

Other party leaders are also urging Ford to nominate the former New York governor, the Post reported.

One Republican source the Post did not identify said one reason Rockefeller, a three-time aspirant for the GOP presidential nomination, would be a good vice president is that he would be 72 years old and too old to run for president in 1980, assuming Ford becomes chief executive soon and wins reelection in 1976.

GOP Senators Ask President To Resign

his strongest defenders. A number of leading Republicans in the Senate have asked that he resign.

Scott and other GOP leaders arranged to meet this afternoon to discuss the possibility of sending a delegation to the White House to relay their feelings to the President. A morning caucus sidestepped the question and concentrated instead on naming members to a new congressional budget committee.

Scott did not say what he meant by "degree of accountability" but presumably it would be the question whether Nixon's acts warranted his removal from office.

Scott's Democratic counterpart, Mike Mansfield, said today the Senate should go ahead with an impeachment trial, provided the House recommends it, even if Nixon resigned.

"It's gone so far now that I think we'd better carry it through to a conclusion," Mansfield said. Mansfield said it was a personal statement and did not necessarily represent the views of the Democratic leadership.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., a former Republican national chairman, said today that "with the exception of a very few senators, he's (Nixon) on his own for the time being" although minds could be changed if "something happens that deserves support."

"Many of us feel let down," Dole said.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford met with Nixon's chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig, for an hour today to exchange views. A Ford spokesman denied Ford was planning for possible succession to the presidency.

Cotton said it was his impression that "two or three" senators had written Nixon to convey their feelings that resignation would be in the national interest. The two or three are in addition to Senate GOP whip Robert Griffin who announced two days ago that he was urging Nixon to give up.

Brooke said he hopes Nixon will step down before the House begins impeachment debate Aug. 19 "because he would not go down in history as a second President to be impeached."

"I think the time is now — the time is right," said Brooke.

Brooke said he felt Nixon "now knows the tenor of the Senate; he knows how strongly senators feel. He knows many senators who would rather not have a long and tortuous impeachment trial.

"I can see nothing the President can gain — nothing — unless he honestly believes he would not be convicted. The country has everything to lose and nothing to gain."

Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr., R-N.J., formerly one of Nixon's most vocal defenders, said today he sees Senate conviction of the President as a certainty.

"I can see no sensible reason to hang in, so to speak, in an area where you have absolutely no possiblility of winning," Sandman said. "Conviction in the Senate, in my judgment, now is inevitable."

Sens. Barry M. Goldwater and John Tower — two of Nixon's staunchest conservative supporters in the Senate — said at yesterday's meeting that they favored Nixon's resignation, according to three Senate sources, two of whom attended.

Goldwater denied the report and Tower could not be reached for comment.

Tower, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, said his assessment of the meeting — open to all 43 Senate Republicans — was that "the majority sentiment of Republican senators is that he should retire from office.

"The mood is of great concern that the President does not comprehend the hazard he faces in coming to trial in the Senate," the Texan said. "It's pretty obvious there is growing sentiment for resignation among Republicans."

Midwest Rain Termed Too Little, Too Late

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Gentle rains touched portions of the nation's drought-blistered midlands yesterday, but most farmers and experts agreed that it was too little and too late to help the withered crops.

"What we got wasn't anything," one Kansas farmer said. "But then with the way things are now, it could rain 40 days and 40 nights and it probably wouldn't help."

Darrell Johns, a Nebraska farmer, has finally figured out a way to avoid the anguish he feels every time he walks in his scorched fields.

"Just don't go out," he said with disgust.

By now, the corn should be standing green and tall — well above the head of an average adult. But today it stands chest high and yellowing in Johns' field, the dried stalks rattling in the wind.

The leaves were curled into spikes or just withered.

"I haven't been out in all of it," Johns said of his 250-acre corn crop. "Some of it is green, but there aren't any ears. I doubt if any of it is worthwhile."

Across the road from Johns' farm, Kent Antes is having the same trouble. Antes notes that all the crops in the Syracuse, Neb., area are "pretty gruesome sights."

The Agriculture Department Tuesday began approving emergency credit for farmers whose crops and ranches have been severely damaged by the drought.

The loans authorized for Dewey and Siebach counties of South Dakota are the first to be offered as a result of the current drought, which has resulted in more than $9 billion in damage to crops and livestock.

Both Nebraska and Oklahoma have sought disaster declarations for their states to help farmers and ranchers get emergency help.

George Cressman, director of the National Weather Service, said the drought could be part of a cycle, but noted there was disagreement on the cycle theory.

Cressman said during a visit to the Omaha, Neb., weather bureau that, while he hadn't visited Nebraska's parched cornfields, he did stop at some farms in Kansas and found the corn there "gone ... I mean it's burned up."

One Lone Picket At Phone Office

A lone picket showed up today at the offices of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., worrying some passersby into asking if the once threatened strike against the company, thought settled, was going to take place after all.

The picketing was promptly disowned by president of Local 9404 of the Communications Worker of America, Bernard V. Chiaravalle. He said workers dissatisfied with the agreement hammered out by company and union negotiators should wire union headquarters in Washington.

Hiring Policy Under Attack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The League of United Latin American Citizens is charging the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District with discriminatory hiring practices.

At a news conference yesterday, league president Joe Velez said that of the district's 750 employes, only 28 have Spanish surnames.

League spokesmen said they will ask an investigation by the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The shock waves from the President's release of the June 23, 1972, transcripts are still hitting the White House and have cost Nixon his staunchest Republican supporters, including House leader John J. Rhodes and the 10 congressmen on the House Judiciary Committee who defended him against impeachment.

Some, like the ranking committee Republican Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, have issued bitter statements, accusing the President of deceiving them.

Rhodes dropped his support yesterday and announced he will vote to impeach the President for obstruction of justice but said it was up to Nixon himself whether to resign.

The President remained in relative isolation. He met with Rabbi Baruch Korff, organizer of a National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the Presidency, for 35 minutes yesterday.

Nixon, according to aides, has not seen any of the congressional leaders privately since his return from California 10 days ago.

Some of Nixon's senior advisers also have recommended that he resign in the face of the growing fire storm.

White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig and St. Clair are said to be among those who have urged Nixon to quit. But in response, Nixon has said that he will not be "hounded out of office."

The President's own record indicates that he prefers to stick it out and try to overcome the most devastating crisis of his presidency.

Aides say that he still believes that he has a chance to hold the 34 votes in the Senate needed for acquittal.

But indications are that the overwhelming vote for impeachment in the House, which now seems inevitable, may cut deeply into his support in the Senate.

Haig has tried to hold together the White House staff and to appeal for loyalty to the President in difficult times. But many of the White House staffers are severely shaken.

Some feel betrayed by the President's latest admissions and others feel that the government has come to a standstill.

The daily news briefings at the White House are drawing their biggest crowds in many months. Washington has become a rumor mill, with Warren denying two and three times a day reports that Nixon will go on the air.

'73 Parking Ordinance Said Valid

A 1973 San Rafael parking ordinance — earlier thought dead — is alive and well, according to San Rafael City Atty. Fred C. Robbins.

Robbins' opinion, based on an analysis of state code and case law, was issued to city councilmen in a July 15 memo drafted in the wake of reports the measure boosting residential parking requirements had expired after four months under renewal requirements of the state Planning and Zoning code.

Robbins — who had previously thought expiration had occurred — has since discovered that a charter city like San Rafael need not follow state zoning rules and regulations unless it expressly adopts the procedures, and San Rafael has not.

"Our urgency parking ordinance is a valid and subsisting ordinance," the city attorney told councilmen.

They shot the wire between the twin towers, second only in height to the Sears Building in Chicago, and rigged four guywires to steady it.

A friend, Fred Kent, said Petit once walked a wire atop Notre Dame Cathedral and had scaled the Sydney Harbor bridge in Australia.

"But the World Trade Center is the highest he's ever been," Kent said. "He planned it for weeks and weeks. Ever since February he's had it on his mind."

Kent said Petit had never received any formal training as a tightrope walker but is a natural acrobat and performer who immediately mastered the riding of a unicycle. He has given free performances on city streets of everything from pantomime to magic acts.

"Philippe's very independent and a free person," he said.

IMMUNITY

says: "The party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law."

Any prosecution of Nixon after he leaves office presumably would be decided by his successor, Vice President Gerald R. Ford, by Attorney General William Saxbe and possibly by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

The prevailing congressional sentiment at this point appears to be that Nixon should not be subjected to a jail sentence in addition to the humiliation of removal or resignation, but nevertheless that Congress should keep its hands off that question.

This sentiment is based on a feeling that the country should get the whole Watergate matter behind it, and a feeling that removal from office is the most severe punishment reasonable in Nixon's case.

Many feel further prosecution would amount to persecution.

Many congressmen question whether the Constitution gives Congress the power to grant immunity to a president, and whether any immunity would also extend to state and civil prosecution.

One possible route around this would be a "sense of the Congress" resolution, carrying no force of law but expressing the will of Congress to the new president that Nixon had been punished enough.

Even this route has gained few sympathizers.

The White House says emphatically that Nixon has asked for no immunity, and this is confirmed by Speaker Carl Albert and other congressional leaders.

If Nixon should ask for immunity as a price for resigning, the mood of Congress could change.

So far only one halfway serious move has developed in Congress toward a possible immunity resolution.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., is sounding out House members, mainly Republicans, about the possibility of a sense of the Congress resolution against prosecution. He apparently is getting little encouragement.

But he said, "There is a great feeling in the House that the President should not be prosecuted. Seeing him dragged through every court in the country would be distasteful."

Republicans led the list in the House of those opposing immunity.

"It might come back to haunt you," said Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill. "It derogates from the principle the Supreme Court very recently affirmed, equity before the law."

Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., a member of the House Judiciary Committee and a former Nixon supporter, said he is opposed to prosecution, but "I would be opposed to an immunity bill too."

Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., said immunity legislation would be unnecessary because, "I don't think they would prosecute him for anything if he resigned."

Anti-immunity sentiment appears to be stronger in the House than in the Senate.

Both Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Republican assistant leader Robert P. Griffin said they would consider the possibility of an immunity resolution.

But, asked if there were any "serious expectations" of congressional immunity, Mansfield firmly replied, "No."

Rockefeller Is Supported For Vice President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, credited with persuading President Nixon to choose Gerald R. Ford vice president, is now urging the selection of Nelson A. Rockefeller if Ford succeeds Nixon.

Quoted in today's Washington Post, Laird said, "Ford and Rockefeller will form a winning combination for the Republican party."

Other party leaders are also urging Ford to nominate the former New York governor, the Post reported.

One Republican source the Post did not identify said one reason Rockefeller, a three-time aspirant for the GOP presidential nomination, would be a good vice president is that he would be 72 years old and too old to run for president in 1980, assuming Ford becomes chief executive soon and wins reelection in 1976.

GOP Senators Ask President To Resign

his strongest defenders. A number of leading Republicans in the Senate have asked that he resign.

Scott and other GOP leaders arranged to meet this afternoon to discuss the possibility of sending a delegation to the White House to relay their feelings to the President. A morning caucus sidestepped the question and concentrated instead on naming members to a new congressional budget committee.

Scott did not say what he meant by "degree of accountability" but presumably it would be the question whether Nixon's acts warranted his removal from office.

Scott's Democratic counterpart, Mike Mansfield, said today the Senate should go ahead with an impeachment trial, provided the House recommends it, even if Nixon resigned.

"It's gone so far now that I think we'd better carry it through to a conclusion," Mansfield said. Mansfield said it was a personal statement and did not necessarily represent the views of the Democratic leadership.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., a former Republican national chairman, said today that "with the exception of a very few senators, he's (Nixon) on his own for the time being" although minds could be changed if "something happens that deserves support."

"Many of us feel let down," Dole said.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford met with Nixon's chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig, for an hour today to exchange views. A Ford spokesman denied Ford was planning for possible succession to the presidency.

Cotton said it was his impression that "two or three" senators had written Nixon to convey their feelings that resignation would be in the national interest. The two or three are in addition to Senate GOP whip Robert Griffin who announced two days ago that he was urging Nixon to give up.

Brooke said he hopes Nixon will step down before the House begins impeachment debate Aug. 19 "because he would not go down in history as a second President to be impeached."

"I think the time is now — the time is right," said Brooke.

Brooke said he felt Nixon "now knows the tenor of the Senate; he knows how strongly senators feel. He knows many senators who would rather not have a long and tortuous impeachment trial.

"I can see nothing the President can gain — nothing — unless he honestly believes he would not be convicted. The country has everything to lose and nothing to gain."

Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr., R-N.J., formerly one of Nixon's most vocal defenders, said today he sees Senate conviction of the President as a certainty.

"I can see no sensible reason to hang in, so to speak, in an area where you have absolutely no possiblility of winning," Sandman said. "Conviction in the Senate, in my judgment, now is inevitable."

Sens. Barry M. Goldwater and John Tower — two of Nixon's staunchest conservative supporters in the Senate — said at yesterday's meeting that they favored Nixon's resignation, according to three Senate sources, two of whom attended.

Goldwater denied the report and Tower could not be reached for comment.

Tower, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, said his assessment of the meeting — open to all 43 Senate Republicans — was that "the majority sentiment of Republican senators is that he should retire from office.

"The mood is of great concern that the President does not comprehend the hazard he faces in coming to trial in the Senate," the Texan said. "It's pretty obvious there is growing sentiment for resignation among Republicans."

Midwest Rain Termed Too Little, Too Late

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Gentle rains touched portions of the nation's drought-blistered midlands yesterday, but most farmers and experts agreed that it was too little and too late to help the withered crops.

"What we got wasn't anything," one Kansas farmer said. "But then with the way things are now, it could rain 40 days and 40 nights and it probably wouldn't help."

Darrell Johns, a Nebraska farmer, has finally figured out a way to avoid the anguish he feels every time he walks in his scorched fields.

"Just don't go out," he said with disgust.

By now, the corn should be standing green and tall — well above the head of an average adult. But today it stands chest high and yellowing in Johns' field, the dried stalks rattling in the wind.

The leaves were curled into spikes or just withered.

"I haven't been out in all of it," Johns said of his 250-acre corn crop. "Some of it is green, but there aren't any ears. I doubt if any of it is worthwhile."

and rigged it without being questioned.

They shot the wire between the twin towers, second only in height to the Sears Building in Chicago, and rigged four guywires to steady it.

A friend, Fred Kent, said Petit once walked a wire atop Notre Dame Cathedral and had scaled the Sydney Harbor bridge in Australia.

"But the World Trade Center is the highest he's ever been," Kent said. "He planned it for weeks and weeks. Ever since February he's had it on his mind."

Kent said Petit had never received any formal training as a tightrope walker but is a natural acrobat and performer who immediately mastered the riding of a unicycle. He has given free performances on city streets of everything from pantomime to magic acts.

"Philippe's very independent and a free person," he said.

Another Incumbent Dumped In Primary

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Michigan Democrats and Missouri Republicans set up political rematches for November in yesterday's primary elections, but in Idaho, a three-term Republican congressman lost a bid for renomination.

Rep. Orval Hansen was upset in Idaho's second congressional district by George Hansen, who vacated the same seat in 1968 to run for Senate.

The others were Rep. Lawrence Williams, R-Pa., Rep. Frank Stubblefield, D-Ky., Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., and Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio.

Sander Levin, the former Michigan Democratic chairman who came within 50,000 votes of beating Republican Gov. William Milliken four years ago, bested two oppponents, including former Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, in the gubernatorial primary.

Milliken was unopposed for the GOP nomination.

Former Rep. Thomas Curtis, who gave Sen. Thomas Eagleton a hard run six years ago, renewed the challenge by winning the GOP nomination over two others in Missouri.

Eagleton, the first Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1972, won renomination in a field of three with no trouble.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, easily won renomination and will face lawyer Bob Smith in November in a sharp liberal-conservative conflict.

There was no opposition for incumbent Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus or his challenger, Republican Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy.

Kansas Democrats nominated Rep. William Roy to oppose Sen. Bob Dole in November.

Roy beat a former state treasurer. Dole had no opposition. State Senate President Robert Bennett narrowly beat three opponents in the GOP race to oppose Democratic Atty. Gen. Vern Miller for governor.

Voters in Inkster, Mich., a Detroit suburb, approved an advisory question calling for the impeachment of President Nixon by a 4-1 margin.

In Kentucky, the state court of appeals yesterday upheld a lower court ruling that Sen. Marlow Cook, a Republican, is legally on the November ballot.

Norris Suggests Reagan Should Remain In State

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William Norris, the Democratic candidate for attorney general, said yesterday that his Republican opponent, Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger, should prevent a situation in which Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, convicted of perjury, becomes acting governor.

Norris called on Younger to urge Gov. Reagan not to leave the state next week, as planned.

If Reagan leaves, Reinecke automatically becomes the acting governor, but Younger has warned that Reinecke's legal standing clouds his official capacity, and any actions he takes might be challenged, involving the state in lawsuits.

Norris maintained that Reinecke "automatically forfeited the right to remain in the post of lieutenant governor" when the federal court jury in Washington, D.C. convicted him.

Reinecke's stand is that he does not become ineligible for office until sentence is passed, and he is legally in office because appeals are pending.

"You have conceded that any action Mr. Reinecke undertakes could ...produce a chaotic situation affecting the state of California and its citizens," Norris said in a telegram to Younger.

"I call upon you to exercise moral responsibility to insure that the state does not come under the rule of a convicted perjurer. I urge you therefore to request Gov. Reagan, in the public interest, to abandon any plans to leave California until the controversy over Mr. Reinecke's tenure is resolved," Norris said.

Fiesta Will Feature New Events

A 19th Century costume contest for adults and youngsters and special races for children and teen-agers will be new features of the annual Old Adobe Days Fiesta Aug. 18 at the Gen. Mariano Vallejo Adobe near Petaluma.

Frank J. Barker and Connie Eliassen, cochairmen for the competitions, said garb for the 1860 and 1900 era will be judged in five categories: best Spanish, Russian, Indian, Western and best overall, with trophies and ribbons for the winners. Judges will include Petaluma Mayor Helen S. Putnam, newspaperman Bill Soberanes, Al Stack, the county's dairy queen and Miss Sonoma-Marin of 1974.

Contests in watermelon eating, milk drinking, sack racing, three-legged racing and water-balloon tossing will be held in the grove opposite the adobe. Competition will be divided in age classes for under 7 years, 7 to 11, 12 to 16 and over 16, Barker said.

Airport Bombing Still A Mystery

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles International Airport was blasted yesterday by the most destructive bomb ever to hit a U.S. air terminal — hurling bodies, baggage, spears of glass and chunks of concrete through a passenger waiting area.

It was still a mystery today who planted the bomb, and why.

Two skycaps died, blown apart with such force that the first investigators on the scene thought there were four or five dead, and 36 others were injured, mostly passengers waiting to board flights for Hawaii and the Orient.

Seventeen were hospitalized, one in critical condition and two in serious condition.

Michael Strong of the police airport detail said he was about 100 yards away when "a tremendous blast shook the area and it was a scene of utter devastation. People were down on the floor crying for help. Bodies were blown all over the lobby."

"All I could see was blood. There was blood everywhere," said skycap Gary Cartwright.

Police and federal agents tried to determine the origin of the blast. Investigators said the force indicated an explosive charge equal to about eight pounds of dynamite.

Airport General Manager Clifton Moore said it was the most destructive bomb ever detonated at an American air terminal.

About 300 persons were in the area when the bomb went off in a section of the overseas terminal about 20 feet from the Pan American World Airways check-in counter.

Investigators believed the bomb was left in one of the coin-operated public lockers there —perhaps by someone who intended eventually to carry it aboard a plane —but a witness said he saw the explosion come from a cardboard box on the floor next to the gift shop.

John Van Den Heever, 26, told reporters he was standing 25 feet from the box and saw it erupt.

His girlfriend, Ruth Converse, 17, was among the injured. She was holding a friend, Angela Thompson, 11, on her lap and the younger girl was blown to the floor.

The blast tore out sections of the concrete wall behind the lockers, hurled some of the lockers through the lobby, ripped into the ceiling, shredded baggage and blew out the glass front of the terminal.

"Right afterward, the whole terminal was silent. Then a few minutes later, people started screaming and looking for their friends," said passenger Barbara McLock.

The dead were identified as Harper Glass, 64, of Inglewood, and Leonard Hsu, 46, of Lomita, Calif.

Glass, who was carrying luggage for a small traveling circus on its way to Honolulu, and Hsu were right in front of the explosion "and blown apart," a Fire Department paramedic said.

The Rev. Patrick Shaughnessy, pastor of the Evangelical Northwest Missionary Church in Phoenix, on his way to a month-long preaching tour in Korea, was critically injured. Both his legs were badly mangled.

William Sullivan, head of the Los Angeles FBI office, said whoever left the bomb there "may have wanted to take it on a plane. At this point in the terminal, you are not required to go through security yet, and he probably placed it here because he couldn't go out to the airplane with it."

(In Washington, Rep. John Murphy, D.-N.Y., noted that "the perpetrators of this heinous act will be subject to the death penalty" under the terms of a federal law signed only eight hours earlier by President Nixon.

Alioto Believes Problems Ignored

NEW YORK (UPI) — The problems of the nation's urban centers are being ignored because Congress and the Nixon administration are preoccupied with the Watergate crisis, Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco said yesterday.

Alioto, chairman of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, also told a group of news executives that Watergate is having a similar effect on urban problems such as housing, mass transit and aid for the elderly.

Battle Brewing Over Yosemite

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A hot battle is brewing between conservationists and the new Yosemite National Park concessionnaire over plans to upgrade some park facilities and intensify use of the granite wonderland for conventions.

A year ago, MCA Inc., the big movie and television company, bought 96.5 per cent of the common stock of Yosemite Park and Curry Co. for $13.2 million. The deal included four hotels, four camping areas, food services, garages, a ski area and back-country servicing outfit. Last year Yosemite drew 2.3 million visitors.

Among the first important changes proposed by MCA, which will be the subject of public hearings this fall, is replacement of 150 of the 395 rustic tent-cabins at Curry Village with lodge-type cabins with individual baths.

The tent-cabins rent for $6.50 a night. The modern, winterized cabins would rent for $18 a night.

MCA also would like to install a tramway between the valley floor and spectacular Glacier Point, a plan opposed by the National Park Service.

"MCA is obviously trying to turn Yosemite into a great tourist attraction — they're trying to turn it into a convention site and regular kind of commercial establishment," said Larry Moss, associate conservation director of the 145,000-member Sierra Club.

Jay S. Stein, MCA's vice president of recreation services, responded: "It's preposterous; it's beneath dignity even to comment on it. I couldn't be more insulted. It's preposterous to think that anyone would want to turn Yosemite into a tourist attraction."

The discussion comprises the ongoing problem of the National Park Service: How man should best relate to America's outstanding natural wonders, enjoy them and at the same time protect them.

The 759,000-acre park, straddling the Sierra Nevada 150 miles east of San Francisco, was described as one of the outstanding wonders of the world more than a century ago. Said one naturalist:

"Here, superlative granite cliffs and domes shed ribbon-like waterfalls into glacier-carved valleys of heroic proportions; ancient sequoia groves dot extensive virgin conifer forests; serene high mountain lakes and meadows nestle below alpine crags and glaciers and the Yosemite experience is fundamentally an esthetic one."

More than 90 per cent of the park is back country, timberline and rock crag fastnesses visited only by the backpacker traveling on foot or on a mule.

Any changes MCA might want to make on its properties would have to be approved by the park service and conform to a new Yosemite master plan now being drafted and in which MCA is participating.

The Sierra Club, along with Friends of the Earth, became agitated over MCA plans for Yosemite after distribution of a brochure whose front page advertised Yosemite as "Nature's Eloquent Answer to Convention City, The Perfect Site for Sales Meetings-Seminars-Conventions."

The words appear beneath a picture of the broad meadow in Yosemite Valley. Nine rows of chairs headed by a lectern sit on the grass. The backdrop is one of the towering granite rocks for which the park is famed.

Stein said that the photograph is an old one and disowned it and the text, saying: "It's a mistake. The choice of language is very unfortunate. We do not want to turn Yosemite into a convention center."

The brochure boasts of banquet facilities, services and equipment available.

Moss, who said the club would go to court if necessary, said, "We'll oppose their proposed upgrading of facilities, as they call it, which is of course an effort to supply a higher priced facility in the valley compared to the lower cost facility which is here at the present time."

He accused MCA of "a lack of understanding of the park itself, the purposes of the park and what a concessioner's function is in a national park. I don't think they understand yet what they've gotten into. They're used to operating in a sector where they make an entertainment product and go out and sell it to the people. And they say Yosemite is an entertaining product. If they continue to persist in their plans they're going to run into public grief."

Stein viewed Moss's accusations with disbelief.

"He never bothered to ask us directly whether any of these things is true," said Stein. "I don't know if I'm supposed to deny anything. We have advocated that some of these tents should be converted. We think it's a good idea."

Freight Train Explosion Kills Two In Washington

WENATCHEE, Wash. (UPI) — An explosion on a freight train yesterday destroyed scores of boxcars and damaged at least four buildings and half a dozen homes. Two persons were killed and 71 others were injured.

The two men killed were a yard foreman for the Burlington Northern, David M. Jones, 28, of Wenatchee, and an unidentified transient riding on the train.

The blast, which occurred shortly after noon, occurred in a fertilizer tanker. It ripped apart boxcars and sent tons of shrapnel over an area as far as a mile and a half away, where a threefoot section of track was found in the yard of a startled South Wenatchee resident.

Half a dozen buildings in the Burlington Northern yards, including a two-story brick roundhouse, were riddled with holes.

Miraculously, none of the homes' occupants was seriously injured, even though ceilings collapsed and 40-pound pieces of shattered box cars whistled through their homes.

What's in store...
MIXED UP WITH MELONS?

Talk to five different produce men, and they'll give you five different ways to select melons! Each method works for them, but the shopper becomes bewildered.

I called Dick Mount, well-known executive in the produce industry, to get the final word on melon selection. Besides some humorous comments, he gave me helpful hints to pass on.

When buying all melons, look for large, regular-shaped melons for the best buys. (Odd-shaped melons have more seeds, less flesh.) Except for watermelons, shake melon to make sure the seeds don't rattle. (If they do, the melon is overripe. Sponginess is another indication of a too-ripe melon.)

Special buying tips for mixed melons: Cantaloupes. Check the netting. It should be raised and with high "feathering" (will rub off slightly on your finger). The color beneath the netting should be golden. Persians have similar qualities, but the base is a deeper orange, indicating a rich interior color. Crenshaws, the finest of all the mixed melons, have a full-yellow base color. Honeydews should have a deep cream-yellow. To obtain the best flavor, select a large size melon that has a stem end which yields to gentle pressure. Ripe honeydew flesh is still slightly greenish.

Be sure to allow all the mixed melons to ripen at room temperature before refrigerating. And do not overchill. This will reduce the full flavor of the melons.

Selecting watermelon? Be a good guesser. Beestings, a yellow side, and thumping are some of the tricks of the trade. Dick suggested using a sharp knife! (Better yet, buy a cut melon.)

You can purchase melons with confidence at Alpha Beta. They are all guaranteed. Look for the melons with "ripe" stickers or ask the "man in the green apron" in the produce department if you're still mixed up with melons.

What's in store…
MIXED UP WITH MELONS?

Talk to five different produce men, and they'll give you five different ways to select melons! Each method works for them, but the shopper becomes bewildered.

I called Dick Mount, well-known executive in the produce industry, to get the final word on melon selection. Besides some humorous comments, he gave me helpful hints to pass on.

When buying all melons, look for large, regular-shaped melons for the best buys. (Odd-shaped melons have more seeds, less flesh.) Except for watermelons, shake melon to make sure the seeds don't rattle. (If they do, the melon is overripe. Sponginess is another indication of a too-ripe melon.)

Special buying tips for mixed melons: Cantaloupes. Check the netting. It should be raised and with high "feathering" (will rub off slightly on your finger). The color beneath the netting should be golden. Persians have similar qualities, but the base is a deeper orange, indicating a rich interior color. Crenshaws, the finest of all the mixed melons, have a full-yellow base color. Honeydews should have a deep cream-yellow. To obtain the best flavor, select a large size melon that has a stem end which yields to gentle pressure. Ripe honeydew flesh is still slightly greenish.

Be sure to allow all the mixed melons to ripen at room temperature before refrigerating. And do not overchill. This will reduce the full flavor of the melons.

Selecting watermelon? Be a good guesser. Beestings, a yellow side, and thumping are some of the tricks of the trade. Dick suggested using a sharp knife! (Better yet, buy a cut melon.)

You can purchase melons with confidence at Alpha Beta. They are all guaranteed. Look for the melons with "ripe" stickers or ask the "man in the green apron" in the produce department if you're still mixed up with melons.

Concern Is Mounting Over Missile

By RICHARD BURT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LONDON — Concern is mounting in naval circles over the testing and possible deployment of a new Soviet submarine-launched missile which could pose a major threat to U.S. aircraft carriers and might also complicate arms-control negotiations.

According to officials here and in Washington, the new weapon, the SS-N-13, possesses a range of 400 miles and may be a ballistic missile because it travels to its target at four times the speed of sound.

These characteristics and a report that the missile is capable of midflight course corrections suggest that it has been designed for use against naval vessels rather than targets within the U.S. or Europe.

The Soviet Union presently deploys a variety of cruise missiles for use against naval targets such as carriers which travel in a manner similar to low-flying aircraft. Because cruise missiles take as much as a half hour to reach their targets, naval officers are relatively confident of their ability to detect and defend against these weapons.

The SS-N-13, however, is said to be capable of reaching its target just minutes after launching. Because of its speed and ballistic trajectory, some analysts suggest that the only means of defending carriers and other vessels from attack would be to deploy "mini" anti-ballistic missiles (ABM) on board the vessels.

It also has been suggested that the Soviet navy might intend the SS-N-13 for use against the U.S. Polaris Poseidon ballistic missile submarine force.

Although the new missile would not make it any easier for Soviet forces to find U.S. submarines, it might be possible to use the new missile against a Polaris boat once it had betrayed its location by firing. The high-speed SS-N-13 could possibly destroy the Polaris before all 16 of its missiles were launched.

Reports indicate that the SS-N-13 will be ready for deployment by the end of the year but where the missile is placed could become a matter of some controversy. It is believed that the Soviets earlier planned to replace some older submarine-launched ballistic missiles (SLBM) with SS-N-13s on a group of 22 diesel submarines known as the G-class.

There has been some dispute, however, over whether new missiles placed on G-class subs would be counted in the Soviet SLBM total of 950 agreed to in 1972.

In June, Sen. Henry M. Jackson D-Wash., claimed that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has signed a "secret agreement" which allowed the Soviet Union to place new missiles on the G-class boats without them counting against the SALT limit.

However, Kissinger has since said that while the older missiles presently deployed are not included in the SALT calculations, new missiles placed on these submarines would be included in the Soviet SLBM ceiling.

Thus, it appears that the stage for conflict has been set at SALT over the SS-N-13. Because of its range and likely role as an anti-carrier weapon, Soviet negotiators probably will argue that SS-N-13s are not startegic weapons and should not be subject to SALT controls.

But if the missiles are placed on G-class submarines, U.S. negotiators will be able to claim that under the terms of Kissinger's interpretation they must be counted in the SALT limits.

QUEST FOR PROFICIENCY

Bells Ring But Students Stay

By MARY LEYDECKER

When a visitor enters the crowded classroom in a converted school in Ignacio, no one looks up.

Instead, the some 50 students continue so absorbed with their work that the visitor feels invisible.

This is only one unusual feature of the "office occupations proficiency program," an intensive five-day-a-week class offered mornings by the Indian Valley Colleges at a temporary location in a former elementary school.

Not only do the students appear to be bent on cramming as much as possible into their hours there, but their reasons for doing so are so varied as their ages, sex and backgrounds.

"We have people with only 10th grade educations and people with master's degrees," said teacher Janet Barr.

There are also students who are still in their teens and others who are retired colonels.

Some are going through divorces, some are working toward their first civilian jobs, some are brushing up old skills and some are "just tired of sitting home."

A high school student and a former elementary teacher work together on an accounting problem.

Mrs. Barr explained that the teen-age girl is taking the course during her summer vacation instead of during the school year, while the older woman is preparing skills for an office job because of the teacher surplus.

"They all read the ads," Miss Barr said, explaining that her students realize many job opportunities for those with office skills are advertised daily in classified sections.

So when her class, offered in two sections this summer for the first time, opened for the second session last week, a line of prospective students was waiting at the door.

When about 75 people showed up, Miss Barr said, some were transferred to other classes because the makeshift classroom wouldn't hold all of them.

As Miss Barr circulates through the room, the students work at their own pace on typing (both at beginning and elementary levels), accounting, office machines, shorthand and other office skills.

Side by side sit a mother and daughter — Joanne and Bambi Anderson of Novato.

Bambi, a high school student, said "I need it," when asked why she was taking typing. She then explained that she feels the skill will be helpful when she goes to college and also in job hunting.

Her mother, who said she has had no further education since she graduated from high school in 1953, hopes to "work out of my home" when she gains typing skills. She still has a 3-year-old child, she said, and is not ready to take a job outside her home.

The Andersons are beginners, but nearby sits a woman who types 90 words per minute. "She just needed to find self confidence," Miss Barr said, after not working for many years.

As Miss Barr glanced around the classroom, she spoke of other students. "I do a lot of counseling," she added with a smile.

Then a woman student looked up and said, "Help, Janet," and the teacher peered at the work the woman was doing.

"This is a hard page," she agreed, as she gave instructions.

Soon the 12:30 p.m. quitting time came, but some students stayed on — not willing yet to give up their quest for proficiency.

Adventists Are Subject Of Research

Seventh-day Adventists in Marin are currently the subject of a study conducted by the Loma Linda University School of Health to determine why Adventists are apparently less susceptible to cancer and heart disease than the average American.

The $800,000 study, funded by the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., is being conducted throughout California.

Ida Resanovich, research team leader for southern and central Marin, is presently distributing questionnaires intended to identify components in the Adventist lifestyle which might increase resistance to certain diseases.

Adventists are noted for their abstinence from tobacco and alcoholic beverages. They also abstain from eating meat or spicy foods and from drinking tea or coffee, Mrs. Resanovich said.

Budget Is Adopted For Hub Schools

A $2,541,847 budget for 1974-75 was adopted by the San Anselmo School District board last night.

The spending program, up from this year's $2,517,357 program, is expected to require a tax rate of $3.34 per $100 of assessed valuation, down 10 cents from this year's rate.

The adopted budget is up from the $2,470,329 program proposed by Supt. Frank R. Elliott in February.

The board last night appointed Templeton Gailbraith as principal of Yolansdale School in addition to his principalship of Sleepy Hollow School. Asst. Supt. Walter C. Dolan was appointed principal of Isabel Cook School.

The board approved an increase in district mileage allowance from 12 cents to 15 cents per mile.

The board next meets Sept. 7.

Timing Saved Rhodes House Spot

DECISION TIME — House GOP leaders John Rhodes (left) and Leslie Arends confered yesterday following a meeting of the House leadership at which it was agreed that President Nixon should resign. Nixon later told his cabinet he does not intend to resign and Rhodes said he would vote for Nixon's impeachment.

(UPI Telephoto)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John J. Rhodes came to be House Republican leader as a result of a scandal in the Nixon administration. This week he almost quit that position because of another scandal.

The decision he announced yesterday, to support an article of impeachment against President Nixon, had been made late last week, an aide said. He had even scheduled a news conference for Monday morning to announce it.

Until Sunday, however, he had also been prepared to announce that he would step down temporarily as GOP leader because his stance for impeachment would be at variance with too many of the GOP colleagues he was supposed to lead.

When he held his postponed news conference on yesterday, Rhodes no longer had to offer to step down.

Within the 24 hours after Nixon had admitted withholding damaging impeachment evidence, the groundswell of defections from Nixon's camp had grown so large that to do anything but favor impeachment would put Rhodes at odds with his party.

An aide said that Alexander Haig, Nixon's chief of staff, called Rhodes at home on Sunday to tell him that he should know before holding his news conference that the White House would be making some new information available within 24 hours.

Conveniently for Rhodes, he was suffering at the time from a slight fever and sore throat. So he postponed the announcement and stayed home Monday.

Though the timing had saved Rhodes from a decision he might have regretted deeply, he found no joy in his final announcement yesterday before live television cameras down the hall from the House Judiciary Committee room.

"For me, this is a sad day," Rhodes began, maintaining complete control of his emotions throughout the ordeal.

"I have considered the evidence to the best of my ability. When the roll is called in the House of Representatives, I will vote 'aye' on impeachment Article One."

Others in the House agonized over their decision, but Rhodes' decision may have been harder than most.

The 57-year-old congressman, a Kansas native elected from Mesa, Ariz., 22 years ago, had built a reputation as a conservative, a party loyalist and a staunch administration supporter.

He was a compromise choice last December when his predecessor, Gerald R. Ford, was confirmed as vice president to replace Spiro T. Agnew, who had resigned in disgrace, pleading no contest to a tax evasion charge.

Rhodes' anguish began about two weeks ago, his aide said.

The Judiciary Committee was about to begin its debate and already had released mountains of evidence. Rhodes studied the evidence and watched as much of the debates as he could.

Last week he talked first with the 10 GOP stalwarts on the committee who voted against all proposed articles. Later in the week he met with the seven who favored at least one article. All explained their position.

Some came away from those meetings with the indication that Rhodes was leaning for impeachment. He did promise them he would step down as leader temporarily if he chose to vote for impeachment.

His conscience had already told him early in the week that he should favor impeachment, but he knew, an aide said, that his position as leader gave his decisions and words added impact.

He anguished some more and decided about Friday that he would take the step he dreaded.

But Rhodes won't lead any impeachment push.

He said in his news conference, "I have no intention of imposing my interpretation of the evidence on any other member of Congress.

"For a party leader to attempt to dictate a matter of individual conscience would be entirely ill-advised."

Big School Budget In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Board of Education adopted a record $139,388,814 budget yesterday for the 1974-75 fiscal year.

The budget would raise the property tax rate by six cents, to $4.08 per $100 of assessed property valuation.

Networks Take Stand On Coverage

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS and NBC officials said yesterday they would not cover the House impeachment proceedings live if congressional leaders put excessive restraints on coverage.

ABC said it would see what rules are made before deciding.

"I am not prepared to give anyone a blank check," said Richard Salant, president of CBS news, "and I am prepared to withdraw CBS from live coverage if the journalistic restraints on the networks are excessive."

Richard Wald, president of NBC news, also said he would withdraw coverage if the restraints were excessive. But Wald said he was confident reasonable rules would evolve.

ABC's senior vice president for news, William Sheehan said it was too early to "hypothesize on a set of rules."

World Reactions Are Varied To President Nixon's Troubles

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Argentine tabloid Cronica published a front-page cartoon showing President Nixon sitting at his desk with a stack of tape recordings in his hands. A man stands nearby and whispers:

"Before you hand over those recordings, you wouldn't have an extra one with dirty jokes, would you?"

Some poked fun at Nixon. Others defended him. And still others attacked. But much of the world just wanted to get the impeachment ordeal over with as soon as possible.

In Paris, businessman Pierre Guermont leaned over the table of a small restaurant and asked, "Why are you impeaching him? His foreign policy has brought peace in Vietnam and the Middle East, friendship with Peking and Moscow."

But in London, Tom Dalyell, chairman of the ruling Labor party's Foreign Affairs Committee, lamented, "The business of the Western world has been clogged up by the situation in the White House."

"Most of our colleagues have assumed for many months President Nixon was up to his neck in Watergate from an early stage," Dalyell said. He hoped "the executioners will act quickly and decisively."

Author Thierry Maulnier, a member of the prestigious French Academy, wrote in a recent article, "America will discover afterwards it has sacrificed one of the greatest presidents in history."

In Buenos Aires, Nora Elbert, a 21-year-old secretary couldn't disagree more. "I'm against his policies," she said "He's a demagogue. I hope he disappears from the scene in the United States."

In Toyko, the Asahi newspaper said Nixon's apparent aim in disclosing his knowledge of Watergate "was to win back the support of the American people."

"However, it is not only too late for that, but the danger that it will push Mr. Nixon into a new dilemma is very great," an Asahi editorial said. "Autumn is going to be a weighty season, not only for Mr. Nixon but for the American people."

Timing Saved Rhodes House Spot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John J. Rhodes came to be House Republican leader as a result of a scandal in the Nixon administration. This week he almost quit that position because of another scandal.

The decision he announced yesterday, to support an article of impeachment against President Nixon, had been made late last week, an aide said. He had even scheduled a news conference for Monday morning to announce it.

Until Sunday, however, he had also been prepared to announce that he would step down temporarily as GOP leader because his stance for impeachment would be at variance with too many of the GOP colleagues he was supposed to lead.

When he held his postponed news conference on yesterday, Rhodes no longer had to offer to step down.

Within the 24 hours after Nixon had admitted withholding damaging impeachment evidence, the groundswell of defections from Nixon's camp had grown so large that to do anything but favor impeachment would put Rhodes at odds with his party.

An aide said that Alexander Haig, Nixon's chief of staff, called Rhodes at home on Sunday to tell him that he should know before holding his news conference that the White House would be making some new information available within 24 hours.

Conveniently for Rhodes, he was suffering at the time from a slight fever and sore throat. So he postponed the announcement and stayed home Monday.

Though the timing had saved Rhodes from a decision he might have regretted deeply, he found no joy in his final announcement yesterday before live television cameras down the hall from the House Judiciary Committee room.

"For me, this is a sad day," Rhodes began, maintaining complete control of his emotions throughout the ordeal.

"I have considered the evidence to the best of my ability. When the roll is called in the House of Representatives, I will vote 'aye' on impeachment Article One."

Others in the House agonized over their decision, but Rhodes' decision may have been harder than most.

DECISION TIME — House GOP leaders John Rhodes (left) and Leslie Arends confered yesterday following a meeting of the House leadership at which it was agreed that President Nixon should resign. Nixon later told his cabinet he does not intend to resign and Rhodes said he would vote for Nixon's impeachment.

(UPI Telephoto)

The 57-year-old congressman, a Kansas native elected from Mesa, Ariz., 22 years ago, had built a reputation as a conservative, a party loyalist and a staunch administration supporter.

He was a compromise choice last December when his predecessor, Gerald R. Ford, was confirmed as vice president to replace Spiro T. Agnew, who had resigned in disgrace, pleading no contest to a tax evasion charge.

Rhodes' anguish began about two weeks ago, his aide said.

The Judiciary Committee was about to begin its debate and already had released mountains of evidence. Rhodes studied the evidence and watched as much of the debates as he could.

Last week he talked first with the 10 GOP stalwarts on the committee who voted against all proposed articles. Later in the week he met with the seven who favored at least one article. All explained their position.

Some came away from those meetings with the indication that Rhodes was leaning for impeachment. He did promise them he would step down as leader temporarily if he chose to vote for impeachment.

His conscience had already told him early in the week that he should favor impeachment, but he knew, an aide said, that his position as leader gave his decisions and words added impact.

He anguished some more and decided about Friday that he would take the step he dreaded.

But Rhodes won't lead any impeachment push.

He said in his news conference, "I have no intention of imposing my interpretation of the evidence on any other member of Congress.

"For a party leader to attempt to dictate a matter of individual conscience would be entirely ill-advised."

Big School Budget In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Board of Education adopted a record $139,388,814 budget yesterday for the 1974-75 fiscal year.

The budget would raise the property tax rate by six cents, to $4.08 per $100 of assessed property valuation.

Networks Take Stand On Coverage

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS and NBC officials said yesterday they would not cover the House impeachment proceedings live if congressional leaders put excessive restraints on coverage.

ABC said it would see what rules are made before deciding.

"I am not prepared to give anyone a blank check," said Richard Salant, president of CBS news, "and I am prepared to withdraw CBS from live coverage if the journalistic restraints on the networks are excessive."

Richard Wald, president of NBC news, also said he would withdraw coverage if the restraints were excessive. But Wald said he was confident reasonable rules would evolve.

ABC's senior vice president for news, William Sheehan said it was too early to "hypothesize on a set of rules."

World Reactions Are Varied To President Nixon's Troubles

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Argentine tabloid Cronica published a front-page cartoon showing President Nixon sitting at his desk with a stack of tape recordings in his hands. A man stands nearby and whispers:

"Before you hand over those recordings, you wouldn't have an extra one with dirty jokes, would you?"

Some poked fun at Nixon. Others defended him. And still others attacked. But much of the world just wanted to get the impeachment ordeal over with as soon as possible.

In Paris, businessman Pierre Guermont leaned over the table of a small restaurant and asked, "Why are you impeaching him? His foreign policy has brought peace in Vietnam and the Middle East, friendship with Peking and Moscow."

But in London, Tom Dalyell, chairman of the ruling Labor party's Foreign Affairs Committee, lamented, "The business of the Western world has been clogged up by the situation in the White House."

"Most of our colleagues have assumed for many months President Nixon was up to his neck in Watergate from an early stage," Dalyell said. He hoped "the executioners will act quickly and decisively."

Author Thierry Maulnier, a member of the prestigious French Academy, wrote in a recent article, "America will discover afterwards it has sacrificed one of the greatest presidents in history."

In Buenos Aires, Nora Elbert, a 21-year-old secretary couldn't disagree more. "I'm against his policies," she said "He's a demagogue. I hope he disappears from the scene in the United States."

In Toyko, the Asahi newspaper said Nixon's apparent aim in disclosing his knowledge of Watergate "was to win back the support of the American people."

"However, it is not only too late for that, but the danger that it will push Mr. Nixon into a new dilemma is very great," an Asahi editorial said. "Autumn is going to be a weighty season, not only for Mr. Nixon but for the American people."

Paul Masson Emerald Dry Reisling, 5th
Paul Masson Rhine Castle, 5th

White wines have been the traditional favorites with fish and fowl. Depending on your palate, either of these two Paul Masson Premium white wines would complement the Manor House Fryers or Medallion Game Hens that are featured this week.

Paul Masson Emerald Dry is almost gold in color. It is sprightly and delectably dry. Paul Masson Rhine Castle is a light wine of delicate natural sweetness. Either of these fine wines should be chilled about three hours before serving.

White wines have been the traditional favorites with fish and fowl. Depending on your palate, either of these two Paul Masson Premium white wines would complement the Manor House Fryers or Medallion Game Hens that are featured this week.
Paul Masson Emerald Dry is almost gold in color. It is sprightly and delectably dry. Paul Masson Rhine Castle is a light wine of delicate natural sweetness. Either of these fine wines should be chilled about three hours before serving.

Cotati Council Adopts Budget

The Cotati City Council last night unanimously adopted a spending budget more than three times that for last year, but held the tax rate unchanged.

The new budget, calls for spending $1,489,282. Last year's budget was $456,048, according to city clerk Donna Olson. The tax rate will remain $1.25 per $100 assessed valuation, the council voted.

The clerk explained that the council seeks voter approval of an $825,000 bond issue on the Nov. 5 election ballot, to finance more than half the spending plan. The money is intended for use in renovating the city water system. If voters disapprove the bonding, the city will have to postpone the project and finance the approximately $660,000 remainder of the budget through taxes and other revenues.

As approved, the budget provides an 11 per cent raise for police and 5.5 per cent raise for other city employees.

The budget was adopted with little discussion, Mrs. Olson said.

The Cotati City Council also:

DISTRICT — Adopted five resolutions establishing the Benson Lane Sewer Assessment District and called for bid openings Sept. 13 for the project.

PARK — Voted that no environmental impact report is needed before the acquisition of a park site on Myrtle Avenue.

ZONING — Amended the city zoning ordinance to allow conditional uses such as outdoor restaurants, greenhouse and garden supply stores in the C-2 commercial districts.

Spending Up For Schools In Kentfield

The Kentfield School District board last night adopted a budget of $2,315,225, which will require the district's legal maximum tax rate to be levied for the first time, according to the superintendent, Eugene C. Peters.

The spending program is up $435,316 from the past year's budget, and the tax rate is estimated at $3.18 per $100 of assessed valuation, up 21 cents from the past year.

Peters said that the Kentfield district, unlike many others in the county, has experienced only a very slight decline in school enrollment.

Last night the board approved raises from the administrative staff ranging from 6.6 per cent to 13 per cent for Peters and one principal.

The Kentfield School District board also:

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of first grade teacher Anita Fonte Mannila, who had been on leave for the past year.

CONTRACTS — Hired Paul Ricciardi to teach first grade at Adaline Kent School at a salary of $14,480; Jacqueline Millunzi, physical education at Kent middle school, $13,600, and Michael Eisan, mathematics-science, Kent middle school, $14,480.

BUSES — Accepted a new bid of $17.50 a day from Transportation Engineering and Consultants Service for busing seventh and eighth grade pupils.

REQUEST — Turned down a request from Mr. and Mrs. William Cavalier Jr. to allow their daughter Caitlin to attend the Ross School.

MEETINGS — Cancelled the regular meeting of Sept. 3 and set the next meeting for Sept. 10. The board also will hold a workshop session with Adaline E. Kent School teachers on Sept. 17 and meet with the citizens' advisory council on Sept. 26.

A person standing 550 feet above sea level can see about 31 miles.

375 Highway Deaths In July

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Highway Patrol reported today 375 persons were killed in California traffic crashes last month, 92 fewer than in July of 1973.

The patrol said July was the seventh consecutive month in which fewer persons were killed in traffic accidents than during the corresponding month a year ago.

The January-July death toll statewide stood at 2,094, or 693 fewer than last year.

Meeting Cancelled

A meeting of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency board scheduled for last night was canceled, an agency spokesman said today. The date of the board's next meeting has not yet been set.

Reed Board Plans Reorganization Study

The possibility of closing a school or changing grade levels taught at several schools will be discussed Sept. 3 by the Reed School District board.

The board last night asked Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello to return to that meeting with two or three options for reorganizing district schools in light of continued declining enrollment.

Last year's enrollment was 1,861, Giovanniello said. He estimated next fall's enrollment at 1,810.

The decline means less revenue for the district since the state limits school district spending to a certain amount per pupil.

Giovanniello said he told that board he already had 12 options for possible reorganization but would sift through them to find the most desirable. One idea suggested has been to sell Reed School to the City of Tiburon as a civic center and move Reed students to other schools.

Giovanniello said he will send a survey to parents this fall asking their opinions of district programs and explaining what declining enrollment means.

Also last night the board adopted a 1974-75 budget of $3,519,787, about $65,500 less than last year's spending of $3,454,255.

Giovanniello estimated that the tax rate to support the new budget would be $3.27 per $100 assessed valuation, about 40 cents less than last year's rate.

Education Board Votes To Keep Same Tax Rate

The Marin County Board of Education last night agreed to a 1974-75 budget which will keep the property tax rate the same as the past year, according to Joseph Amato, business manager.

The board instructed Amato to reduce the proposed budget of $6,262,045 to a figure that will keep the tax rate at 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, he said. He estimated that figure at $6,196,850, making the reduction by reducing reserves.

He said the final total will not be known until all the county auditor's figures are available.

(Although the tax rate will remain the same, most taxpayers will pay higher taxes because of increased assessed valuations.)

The county schools office operates schools for handicapped and retarded children, juvenile hall and San Quentin schools and regional occupational training programs as well as offering various services to school districts.

Flournoy Backs Housing Bond Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican gubernatorial nominee Houston I. Flournoy has asked Gov. Ronald Reagan to sign legislation designed to provide home financing for low and moderate income Californians.

In a letter to Reagan yesterday, Flournoy said he supported the measure (SB1634), which if signed by the governor would place a proposed $500 million housing bond issue on the November ballot and a companion measure (SB1633) which would establish a state housing authority.

Both bills gained final legislative approval Monday in the Senate.

Choice Of Capitol Architect Delayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Joint Rules Committee yesterday delayed for one month a decision on its choice of architects to conduct a study of what to do with the century-old state Capitol.

The postponement until September means that the decision will be made when the Legislature is not in session.

A Credit Card Boost For Women

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Women would be guaranteed the right to have their credit cards issued in their maiden name under a bill which has advanced to the Assembly floor.

The bill by Sen. Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park, cleared the Judiciary Committee yesterday on an 8-0 vote.

The legislation, which strengthens laws guaranteeing women credit, states that if a card issuer has determined it will give credit to a married woman it has to make the card out in her maiden name, if she so desires.

Reagan Will Not Ask Resignation

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said yesterday that he has "no right" to ask Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke to resign from office if there is a chance Reinecke's perjury conviction will be overturned.

But Reinecke will resign if presentencing efforts to have his perjury conviction overturned are rejected, Reagan said.

Reagan said he and Reinecke discussed the lieutenant governor's plight at a meeting Monday.

"He assured me that he has not intention of holding office if the post-trial motions fail," the Republican governor told his weekly news conference.

"He had an air of optimism with regard to one or more of those, which could conceiveably lead to a reversal of the verdict," he added. "I have no right to ask him to step down — which is an irretrievable decision, it isn't temporary . . . if this possibility remains."

But Reagan also said he is not backing down from his statement Friday that the number two man in state government should resign from the $35,000-a-year job.

"I said that on the basis of the attorney general's concerns . . . yes, resignation seem to be in order," Reagan said. "I did make that qqualification . . . that I wanted to understand his situation . . . to talk with him and find out what his problems were."

Reinecke had come out of the meeting with Reagan Monday and said that Reagan's statement had been misunderstood.

Reinecke is scheduled to be sentenced Aug. 30 for perjury before the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee in 1972.

A Washington, D.C., federal jury convicted Reinecke of lying about when he told then — U.S. Atty. John Mitchell about a $400,000 International Telephone and Telegraph Co. pledge to underwrite the 1972 GOP convention. The jury concluded the lieutenant governor lied when said he did not tell Mitchell of the pledge until after an antitrust suit against ITT was settled.

A spokesman for Reinecke, Ray Worsley, said there has been no change in the lieutenant governor's position that he will resign before being sentenced.

"It's a matter of semantics or a couple of hours difference," he said, between sentencing and the final disposition of the post-trial motions.

California Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger ruled Thursday that Reinecke could stay in office until final judgment is entered or when he is sentenced. But Younger also sent a letter to Reinecke saying all of his official actions between now and being sentenced could be challenged in costly court actions.

Reagan Will Not Ask Resignation

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said yesterday that he has "no right" to ask Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke to resign from office if there is a chance Reinecke's perjury conviction will be overturned.

But Reinecke will resign if presentencing efforts to have his perjury conviction overturned are rejected, Reagan said.

Reagan said he and Reinecke discussed the lieutenant governor's plight at a meeting Monday.

"He assured me that he has not intention of holding office if the post-trial motions fail," the Republican governor told his weekly news conference.

"He had an air of optimism with regard to one or more of those, which could conceiveably lead to a reversal of the verdict," he added. "I have no right to ask him to step down — which is an irretrievable decision, it isn't temporary . . . if this possibility remains."

"I said that on the basis of the attorney general's concerns . . . yes, resignation seem to be in order," Reagan said. "I did make that qqualification . . . that I wanted to understand his situation . . . to talk with him and find out what his problems were."

Reinecke had come out of the meeting with Reagan Monday and said that Reagan's statement had been misunderstood.

California Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger ruled Thursday that Reinecke could stay in office until final judgment is entered or when he is sentenced. But Younger also sent a letter to Reinecke saying all of his official actions between now and being sentenced could be challenged in costly court actions.

Tomato-Spinach Bake Is A Good Snack Or Main Dish

It's a versatile recipe. The whole baked, firm ripe, tomatoes with cheesy-spinach topping is a main dish, however, using fewer tomatoes, the recipe can be used as a flavorful meat accompaniment.

COPENHAGEN TOMATO-SPINACH BAKE

Spinach:
- 2 pounds fresh spinach
- Dash or two salt and pepper
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 2 Tbsps. butter or margarine
- ½ pound Esrom or Samsoe cheese, cut into cubes

Tomatoes:
- 8 large, firm tomatoes
- Garlic salt, pepper
- Butter or margarine

Spinach: Cut off roots and discard old leaves. Wash several times in lukewarm water; lifting spinach out of water each time.

The washing may be done early in day and spinach leaves put in a plastic bag with drops of water clinging to leaves; then refrigerate.

To cook, use only the water clinging to leaves in a utensil with tight fitting lid. When steam appears, reduce heat and cook 3 to 5 minutes — no more. Toss with a fork occasionally.

Season with a dash or two of salt, if desired. Add pepper, lemon juice and butter. Before topping tomatoes, add cheese cubes.

Tomatoes: Wash and drain. Cut out stem ends and enough tomato on bottom to allow each to sit upright. Cut about a half-inch or little more off top of tomatoes and save in plastic bag for a sauce or salad.

Score cut top surfaces, making ½-inch squares. Sprinkle with garlic salt and pepper and dots of butter.

Place tomatoes top side up in a large greased baking pan (about 9 x 9 x 2-inch) and bake in 375 degree oven 20 minutes or until hot. Remove from oven.

Toss spinach and cheese cubes together. Top tomatoes with spinach mixture. Cover loosely with a sheet of foil and return to oven until cheese melts and vegetables are piping hot. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

USED AS EITHER a main course or as an accompaniment to meat, these Copenhagen Tomato-Spinach Bakes combine fresh spinach, tomatoes and natural cheese for a refreshing summer pacesetter.

Botulism Is A Danger In Home Canned Food

The only sure way to kill botulism spores when canning foods at home is to use a pressure cooker and to follow directions exactly, warns California's health director.

"And if there is any doubt about the safety of home-canned food someone has given you, make sure it is boiled vigorously for at least 15 minutes before eaten or even tasted," said Dr. J. M. Stubblebine.

The health official said greater public interest in home gardens and canning because of higher food prices prompted him to remind the public of poisoning hazards from bacteria in the soil.

Dr. Stubblebine stressed the need for extreme caution in preparing low-acid foods for future use because, with botulism, "there is often no second chance." Nearly one quarter of the botulism cases in the United States since 1960 have been fatal, and most were traced to home-canned foods, especially vegetables.

Dr. Stubblebine said botulism is food poisoning from a toxin produced by a group of bacteria called Clostridium botulinum. In nature, it is found in two forms: a dormant spore and a living or vegetable cell. When growth conditions are unfavorable — too hot, too cold, no food, no moisture, etc. — the bacteria become dormant, which is the spore stage. Toxin is not produced in this stage.

The botulinum spore germinates when conditions become favorable. One of the most important conditions for growth is absence of air or oxygen. As the spore grows, it produces a toxin so deadly that botulism-poisoned food can cause death when it is only tasted, not swalled, Dr. Stubblebine said. The most important thing about botulism, he said, is that a person cannot tell, for sure, that a food is poisonous by smelling or tasting it.

"The only way to kill botulism spores when canning foods," Dr. Stubblebine said, "is to use extremely high temperatures for a considerable length of time."

"The only practical way to do this without long, unreliable periods of boiling is with a pressure cooker. The cooker must be operated according to directions and must have a gauge that is accurate."

He said the boiling water bath method of canning is not safe for canning meats, poultry, fish or vegetables. However, since botulism spores do not ordinarily grow in acid surroundings, the boiling water bath may be used for canning high-acid foods such as tomatoes, fruit, rhubarb and pickles.

Even though botulism will usually not grow in high-acid foods, three have been occasional cases of poisoning from home canned high-acid foods. Dr. Stubblebine said this occurred because the food began to spoil, mold used up the acid in the food and the botulism spores germinated, producing toxin. If food is abnormal in odor or appearance, throw it away, he said.

A Pineapple-Olive Cheese Loaf Is A Summer Treat

If you like cheese, love pineapple and want something truly refreshing, pineapple-olive cheese bread will have to be your choice for a summer taste-treat.

This delicious, crunchy-textured fruit-cheese loaf features an interesting combination of flavors plus the tropical touch of Hawaiian pineapple.

It's a classic bread with a simple and economical recipe. And to top it off, it has the versatility to accompany soup or salad, liven up a lunchbox or star at the patio party or seaside picnic.

PINEAPPLE OLIVE CHEESE BREAD

- 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 1 egg
- 3 tablespoons milk
- ⅓ cup oil
- 1 cup grated cheddar cheese
- ⅓ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives
- 1 (8¼ ounce) can crushed pineapple
- 1 teaspoon melted butter

Resift flour with sugar, baking powder, salt and soda into mixing bowl. Beat egg lightly with milk. Add oil, cheese, olives, and undrained pineapple. Stir into dry mixture, blending just until all of flour is moistened. Turn into greased 9 x 5 x 2¾ inch loaf pan. Bake below oven center in moderately-slow oven (325 degrees F.) 60 minutes, until loaf is browned and tests done. Brush top with melted butter. Let stand in pan 10 minutes, then turn out onto wire rack to cool. Makes 1 loaf.

Home Grown Tomatoes Are Best

The best flavor usually comes from home grown tomatoes produced on nearby farms, reports the U.S. Department of Agriculture. This type of tomato is allowed to ripen completely before being picked.

If your tomatoes need further ripening, keep them in a warm place. Unless they are fully ripened, do not store tomatoes in a refrigerator, the cold temperatures might keep them from ripening later on.

Look for tomatoes that are well formed, smooth, well ripened and reasonably free from blemishes. If fully ripe, the fruit will have an overall rich red color and a slight softness.

Avoid overripe and bruised tomatoes (they're both soft and watery) and tomatoes with green or yellow areas near the stem scar (they're sunburned). Also avoid tomatoes with growth cracks or those with soft, water-soaked spots, depressed areas or surface mold.

Blueberries, Natural Ease

Blueberries are one of nature's own convenience foods. There is no peeling, pitting or coring. Enjoy blueberries all year around by home-freezing a supply at the height of the season when the berries are available at the lowest prices.

Remove cellophane tops from pint containers and overwrap each with a plastic wrap, making sure that air vents at bottoms of containers are covered with wrap. The berries should not be washed before freezing.

Hot Dogs Have A New Taste

A Pennsylvania company is trying to sell consumers in Albany, N.Y. what it calls "the best thing that's happened to hot dogs since mustard" — chicken hot dogs.

The Christian Science Monitor reports consumers who have tried the chicken hot dogs since stores began stocking them in late June say they look and taste just like any other hot dog. Or nearly so.

Why Not 'Put Up' Some Old Fashioned Preserves

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press

Now that "putting up" food is back in fashion, you might like to try your hand at making an old-fashioned preserve.

Our grandmothers knew how good a combination citrus fruit and fresh peaches is and they used the fruits as partners in a delicious conserve along with raisins, walnuts and cherries.

It's good with hot biscuits when chicken or ham or boneless pork shoulder butt appears as the main dish at a company meal. It's also a pleasant sweet accompaniment for toast at an eggs-and-bacon brunch. Because the recipe makes 10 half-pint jars, you may want to plan on giving some of the conserve as gifts when the holidays come around. Be sure that you store the preserve in a cool, dark, dry place.

One of the pleasant features of making the Orange Peach Conserve is that it doesn't need to be processed; ladling the hot mixture into sterilized jars and sealing is a perfectly safe method because the conserve has adequate acid and sugar content.

ORANGE PEACH CONSERVE

3 oranges
1 lemon
3 pounds peaches, peeled and diced (5 cups)
1½ cups golden or dark raisins
8 cups sugar
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
½ cup drained halved maraschino cherries

Wash and dry the oranges and lemon. Quarter each; remove seeds. Put through food chopper using coarse blade.

Into a large kettle turn the chopped citrus fruit, the peaches and raisins; add the sugar. Over moderate heat, stirring occasionally until sugar dissolves, bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer until mixture sheets from a spoon or registers 221 degrees on a candy thermometer — about one hour. Stir in walnuts and cherries. Ladle into hot sterilized jars and seal.

Makes 10 half-pints.

A Homemade Tartar Sauce

Like tartar sauce on fish? You can make your own easily by adding the following ingredients to one cup of dairy sour cream or yogurt:

Two tablespoons each of chili sauce, chopped onion, chopped green pickle, chopped dill pickle, chopped parsley, one tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon dry mustard and salt and pepper to taste.

Tart Apples Featured In Sauce

Featuring tart cooking apples, this applesauce is made with about one-third the normal amount of sugar. The secret — we've combined sugar with either a liquid or granulated sugar replacement. Though lower in calories, the flavor quality is outstanding.

You'll find home canning is really quite easy and a good way to help stretch your food dollar. And, your family will love eating these home prepared foods year round.

CANNED APPLESAUCE

10 large cooking apples, (10 cups sliced)
2½ cups water
¼ -⅓ cup sugar
2 tsps. liquid sweetener or ⅓ cup sugar replacement

Wash apples; core, peel and slice. If fruit is to stand several minutes before cooking, drop into mild salt solution (1 tablespoon to 2 quarts of water) to prevent discoloration. Drain. In large saucepan combine apples and water; cook until soft about 15-20 minutes. Press through sieve. Return to saucepan; add sugar and Sweet•10 and bring to a boil.

Pack into clean pint jars to within one-half inch of top. Cap according to label directions for jar tops. Process in boiling water bath for 25 minutes. Remove jars from canner. Do not turn bands as that breaks seal. Cool 12-24 hours or until cold. When cold, remove bands and check seal. Makes three to four pints.

Dinner Salad Made With Cantaloup

The cantaloup, a type of muskmelon, should be selected for maturity and ripeness, advises USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

A fully mature melon has thick, coarse and corky veining or netting over the skin. The stem should be gone, leaving a smooth shallow basin or "full slip" (indicating that the stem came off fully and smoothly when the fruit was picked).

Ripe melons have a yellowish cast to their rinds, will yield slightly to thumb pressure on the blossom end and have a pleasant characteristic fragrance. The general class of muskmelons was so named because of the aroma of the ripe fruit. "Musk" is from the Persian, meaning a kind of perfume, and "melon" is derived from the Latin word for "apple-shaped melon."

CANTALOUP-TUNA DINNER SALAD

½ head of lettuce, broken into pieces
1½ cups diced cantaloup (½ small)
1 cup diced orange
1 7-oz. can tuna, drained and broken in pieces
½ cup slices green onions
¾ cup diced American cheese
¼ cup sliced black olives
½ cup chopped celery
Dressing

Wash lettuce and break into bite-size pieces. Toss with remaining ingredients and chill well. Just before serving, toss with dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Dressing: Combine ¼ cup mayonnaise and the juice of ½ lemon. Pour over salad and toss.

Onions Are Star Of Glaze

GLAZED ONIONS

6 onions
2 tbsps butter
¾ cup honey
½ tsp. paprika
½ tsp salt
⅛ tsp pepper
3 tbsps. water

Halve onions and put cut side up in large covered casserole. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over onions. Cover and bake in 350° oven for 1½ hours, basting occasionally with sauce. Makes six servings.

Vegetables Made Good Meals, Too

You don't have to eat meat for a nutritious, well-balanced meal, say vegetarian societies.

"The variety of vegetarian dishes is nearly endless, and the imaginative chef can provide a family with literally hundreds of palatable, nutritious and economical meals," according to the American Vegan Society, American Vegetarians and Animal Liberation, Inc.

HEARTY BEAN SOUP

- 2 qts. water
- 2 cups pinto beans
- 2 carrots, diced
- 2 stalks celery, diced
- 2 onions, cubed
- ¼ cup vegetable base (from canned vegetarian vegetable soup)
- ¼ cup mushrooms, sliced

Boil mixture until beans are soft, adding mushrooms last. Season to taste.

VEGETARIAN CHILI

- 4 Tbsp. olive oil
- 1 large onion, diced
- 4 cups stewed tomatoes
- 2 cups tomato sauce
- 4 cups kidney beans, cooked
- 2 medium green peppers, diced
- chili powder
- vegetable base
- Seasoning to taste

Saute onion and pepper in oil and add all other ingredients. Cook for 15 minutes. Serve over brown rice and sprinkle with raw diced onion.

WALNUT ALMOND LOAF

- 1 cup walnuts, ground
- 1 cup almonds, ground
- ½ cup soybean grits, soaked in 1 cup vegetable broth
- 1 Tbsp. vegetable oil

- ¼ cup wheat germ
- ¼ cup parsley
- 1 tsp. salt (optional)
- 1 tsp. pepper
- ½ cup cooked brown rice

Mix all ingredients together. Mixture should be slightly moist. If necessary add more liquid or dry ingredients. Bake in oiled loaf pan for one half hour at 350 degrees. Serve hot with tomato sauce on top. Serves four.

Why Not 'Put Up' Some Old Fashioned Preserves

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press

Now that "putting up" food is back in fashion, you might like to try your hand at making an old-fashioned preserve.

Our grandmothers knew how good a combination citrus fruit and fresh peaches is and they used the fruits as partners in a delicious conserve along with raisins, walnuts and cherries.

It's good with hot biscuits when chicken or ham or boneless pork shoulder butt appears as the main dish at a company meal. It's also a pleasant sweet accompaniment for toast at an eggs-and-bacon brunch. Because the recipe makes 10 half-pint jars, you may want to plan on giving some of the conserve as gifts when the holidays come around. Be sure that you store the preserve in a cool, dark, dry place.

One of the pleasant features of making the Orange Peach Conserve is that it doesn't need to be processed; ladling the hot mixture into sterilized jars and sealing is a perfectly safe method because the conserve has adequate acid and sugar content.

ORANGE PEACH CONSERVE

- 3 oranges
- 1 lemon
- 3 pounds peaches, peeled and diced (5 cups)
- 1½ cups golden or dark raisins
- 8 cups sugar
- 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
- ½ cup drained halved maraschino cherries

Wash and dry the oranges and lemon. Quarter each; remove seeds. Put through food chopper using coarse blade.

Into a large kettle turn the chopped citrus fruit, the peaches and raisins; add the sugar. Over moderate heat, stirring occasionally until sugar dissolves, bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer until mixture sheets from a spoon or registers 221 degrees on a candy thermometer — about one hour. Stir in walnuts and cherries. Ladle into hot sterilized jars and seal.

Makes 10 half-pints.

A Homemade Tartar Sauce

Like tartar sauce on fish? You can make your own easily by adding the following ingredients to one cup of dairy sour cream or yogurt:

Two tablespoons each of chili sauce, chopped onion, chopped green pickle, chopped dill pickle, chopped parsley, one tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon dry mustard and salt and pepper to taste.

Tart Apples Featured In Sauce

Featuring tart cooking apples, this applesauce is made with about one-third the normal amount of sugar. The secret — we've combined sugar with either a liquid or granulated sugar replacement. Though lower in calories, the flavor quality is outstanding.

You'll find home canning is really quite easy and a good way to help stretch your food dollar. And, your family will love eating these home prepared foods year round.

CANNED APPLESAUCE

- 10 large cooking apples, (10 cups sliced)
- 2½ cups water
- ¼ -⅓ cup sugar
- 2 tsps. liquid sweetener or ⅓ cup sugar replacement

Wash apples; core, peel and slice. If fruit is to stand several minutes before cooking, drop into mild salt solution (1 tablespoon to 2 quarts of water) to prevent discoloration. Drain. In large saucepan combine apples and water; cook until soft about 15-20 minutes. Press through sieve. Return to saucepan; add sugar and Sweet•10 and bring to a boil.

Pack into clean pint jars to within one-half inch of top. Cap according to label directions for jar tops. Process in boiling water bath for 25 minutes. Remove jars from canner. Do not turn bands as that breaks seal. Cool 12-24 hours or until cold. When cold, remove bands and check seal. Makes three to four pints.

Dinner Salad Made With Cantaloup

The cantaloup, a type of muskmelon, should be selected for maturity and ripeness, advises USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

A fully mature melon has thick, coarse and corky veining or netting over the skin. The stem should be gone, leaving a smooth shallow basin or "full slip" (indicating that the stem came off fully and smoothly when the fruit was picked).

Ripe melons have a yellowish cast to their rinds, will yield slightly to thumb pressure on the blossom end and have a pleasant characteristic fragrance. The general class of muskmelons was so named because of the aroma of the ripe fruit. "Musk" is from the Persian, meaning a kind of perfume, and "melon" is derived from the Latin word for "apple-shaped melon."

CANTALOUP-TUNA DINNER SALAD

- ½ head of lettuce, broken into pieces
- 1½ cups diced cantaloup (½ small)
- 1 cup diced orange
- 1 7-oz. can tuna, drained and broken in pieces
- ½ cup slices green onions
- ¾ cup diced American cheese
- ¼ cup sliced black olives
- ½ cup chopped celery
- Dressing

Wash lettuce and break into bite-size pieces. Toss with remaining ingredients and chill well. Just before serving, toss with dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Dressing: Combine ¼ cup mayonnaise and the juice of ½ lemon. Pour over salad and toss.

Onions Are Star Of Glaze

GLAZED ONIONS

- 6 onions
- 2 tbsps butter
- ¾ cup honey
- ½ tsp. paprika
- ½ tsp salt
- ⅛ tsp pepper
- 3 tbsps. water

Halve onions and put cut side up in large covered casserole. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over onions. Cover and bake in 350° oven for 1½ hours, basting occasionally with sauce. Makes six servings.

ADMITTING NURSE'S WOES

At Times There Just Isn't A Bed

By JOAN LISETOR

Florence L. Donaldson of Corte Madera is the nurse in charge of the admitting department at Marin General Hospital and supervises the admission of between 1,200 and 1,500 patients each month.

Mrs. Donaldson joined the staff 22 years ago, the week before the hospital was opened to the public.

"I try to impress on my staff that we must be understanding and helpful, even though patients and family members may understandably be under great stress when we first meet them," she said. "We are often the first impression they get of Marin General, and we want it to be a good one."

"The public is always right" is her motto, she said, although diplomacy is sometimes called for when she gives the patients admitting forms to sign. Attorneys have a tendency to pick the forms to pieces, she said, and then there are the relatives, who think they know it all.

Her department is involved in everything that goes on in the hospital from the basement up, she said.

"MANY TIMES over the years we just have not had a bed available for a patient who had a reservation for a bed for a scheduled elective procedure," she said, "and we have to try to do the best we can to accommodate these people and their doctors. We can't always convince the doctors that the hospital is full, and they send patients. Five or six times we have had to cancel the entire day's admissions."

When no beds are available, she advises doctors to try another hospital. Other times she shifts patients, but with such specialized sections as intensive care, obstetrics, pediatrics, heart unit and isolation, the juggling is often tricky.

"A few times patients have had to be put in the hall, and I threaten Ray Bolinger (administrator of the hospital) when the place gets full I'll park patients in his office," Mrs. Donaldson said.

In making room assignments the admitting office attempts to pair persons of similar ages, she said. This is not always what the patient wants, she said, recalling a recent 70-year-old woman who was adamant in not wanting someone her age in the room with her.

Mrs. Donaldson has faced some grim times at Marin General and recalls the polio epidemic of 1954, when there were patients in the pediatric department and on the fourth floor in iron lungs.

MRS. DONALDSON is a native of Colchester, Ill., a small town south of Chicago. She studied nursing in the Chicago area before coming to Marin County, where she first worked at the former sanitarium, Arequipa, in Fairfax. She has also worked in Southern California and at Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco.

During the 22 years she has been at Marin General the admitting department staff has grown from two to 11 persons.

To make the admitting process as easy and brief as possible, the hospital has introduced a permanent numbering system that is kept indefinitely, and there is also a current file of the last three-year period to aid in readmission of patients, Mrs. Donaldson explained.

"The admitting department also makes addressograph plates for all incoming patients and also for the lab, physical therapy and administration," she said. "We also supervise the transportation corps, which escorts all incoming patients to their assigned rooms and also escorts patients to the lab, EEG (electroencephologragh), X-ray and nuclear medicine facilities, she said.

"But our primary responsibility is to obtain all the vital information about the patient, insurance coverage and other pertinent facts, as quickly and as gently as we can."

Contact with the public and the fact that no two days are ever the same are what make her job enjoyable, Mrs. Donaldson said, "even though you wouldn't think I enjoy it to hear me yell the way I do sometimes."

Cancer Fund Raiser Is A Big Success

By MOLLY MARIN

Balmy weather, good music and an open-air bar contributed to the success of Sunday's fund-raising dinner get-together for the Marin Unit of the American Cancer Society at Deer Park Villa, Fairfax.

Many in the crowd of about 190 diners rose in delight to dance to the 40s music of a group of volunteer musicians (they were really pros, who donated their talents, as did other entertainers and a long list of committeemen.) Sausalito celebrity Sally Stanford and disc jockey Frank Dill did the honors for a number of door prizes; Madam Tanya told fortunes in a corner, and students of the Russian School of Ballet danced in colorful costume.

Among those attending were Dr. Norman Carrigg, president of the Marin unit, president-elect Bonnie Garety and husband Roger, dinner chairman Robert Vidaurri, May and Roy Troutman (busily collecting tickets), volunteers Carletta Ehat, Karlyn Horton, Jim Baroni, Ellen Vertuno, Marion Ponseti and many other whose time and talents have helped the local unit meet its $85,000 goal this year.

FAMILY MEMBERS honored Mrs. Lucretia Hanson on her 93rd birthday last Friday with an evening party at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson in San Anselmo. Mrs. Hanson's other children are Mrs. Lucretia Hanson Little of Mill Valley, Mrs. Amy Howell of San Francisco, Mrs. Flora Randolph of Sonoma and Dr. Karl Hanson of San Francisco.

Mrs. Hanson has lived in Mill Valley since 1919. She was a reporter and columnist for the Mill Valley record for 33 years, retiring at the age of 80. She is now living at the Mill Valley Rest Home.

SAN FRANCISCO YACHT Club's guest list for its upcoming Challenge Cup Race weekend, reads like a Who's Who in San Diego yachting, according to Mrs. Robert Potter whose husband is race chairman.

Sixty San Diego Yacht Club officers, committeemen and the crew of Kingfish, challenger for SFYC's 1895 silver trophy, will be welcomed to the Belvedere yacht club with a dinner dance for 200 on Friday.

The elegant evening will be sharply contrasted on Sunday by a "great wallowing affair" at SFYC dock after the race, when the winning skipper traditionally is dunked, followed by his crew and sometimes their dates and heedless bystanders.

When the winners are wrung out, there will be speeches, music and a champagne party.

Sailing notables among the guests are boat designer and San Diego Yacht Club commodore Arthur DeFever, Kingfish's skipper Malin Bernham and his crew — John Rumsey, a veteran ocean racer reared in Belvedere; Carl Eichenlaub, a boat builder and competitor; Lowell North, Olympic gold medalist; and John Driscoll whose father is at the helm of California's Intrepid in the America's Cup trials.

Their SFYC competitors are co-skippers Frank Wosser and Shelly Miller, both of Belvedere and their crew — Peter Salz, a newcomer to Corinthian Island; Thomas Elliott of Tiburon, Tad Lacey of San Francisco and Win Ward, Don Jessberg, Steve Green and Jimmie Davies, all of Belvedere.

KELLY ANNE JACINTH was honored at surprise bridal shower Sunday afternoon, prior to her departure for New York City and her wedding there to Albert S. Hall Jr. Kelley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jacinth Jr. of San Rafael and granddaughter of the senior Jacinths of Honolulu. She is the sister of Nanci Shaw of Rohnert Park, Gary Motcher of Glen Ellen, Judi Brocco of Santa Rosa and Rocky Jacinth of San Rafael.

Kelly, who attended Terra Linda High School, will continue school after her marriage. Her husband is a member of the U.S. Coast Guard.

DR. AND MRS. VICTOR LOOSANOFF of Greenbrae will be hosts for a garden party Saturday at their home, honoring three students of Dr. Loosanoff at the Pacific Marine Station run by the University of the Pacific at Dillon's Beach.

The students are receiving master's degrees in marine biology. One of the three, Gregory Anderson of Sebastopol, will continue study toward his PhD. with Dr. Loosanoff at the Marin facility. The other two honorees, Terry West and Russell Schmidt, will do advanced work at Duke University and UCLA respectively.

Attending the garden party will be several other of Dr. Loosanoff's students.

DOROTHY EASOM is back in Marin this week after attending the wedding of her daughter Verna Maxwell Easom and Kevin Ralph Clader in Missoula, Mont. July 13.

Mrs. Easom reports that Verna was born and reared in San Rafael, attending Marin Country Day School, San Rafael High, College of Marin and the University of Montana in Missoula.

Her bridegroom was graduated from the Montana university in January and is employed by the Missoula Police Department as a law enforcement officer.

Verna's uncle, Bruce Easom of Ft. Lauderdale, gave the bride away. Susan Howell of San Rafael was maid of honor, and the bridegroom's brother, Chris Clader of San Rafael, was an usher.

The young couple, who met five years ago in Marin, will live in Missoula where Kevin ultimately hopes to pursue a career in forestry, according to Mrs. Easom.

Mrs. Harry Easom of San Rafael is Verna's grandmother.

THE THOMAS CORN family are back in Belvedere after a Caribbean cruise. The trip was planned for the five children — a week cruising on a 74-foot yawl in British West Indies, a few days at Disney World in Florida, a visit to Corn's parents in Macon, Ga. and then on to visit his brother's home on Sea Island, Ga.

The highlight was the "gin-clear" Caribbean where they snorkeled and shell collected and the older boys and their parents helped sail the yacht.

The yawl put in at Norman Island, the setting of Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island. They climbed to the top of Spy Glass Hill and explored the cave where the treasure was buried.

A RECENT STORY on these pages about river trips brought to light the names of a number of Marinites who have rafted the Stanislaus River this summer. They include Nancy McCarthy and Shareen Akroosh of Stinson Beach, Evelyn Hughes and Elizabeth Rall of Mill Valley. Cindy Dickson and James Dickson and Diane Agnew of Stinson Beach were rafting the Grand Canyon on the Colorado River late last month.

ADMITTING NURSE'S WOES

At Times There Just Isn't A Bed

By JOAN LISETOR

Florence L. Donaldson of Corte Madera is the nurse in charge of the admitting department at Marin General Hospital and supervises the admission of between 1,200 and 1,500 patients each month.

Mrs. Donaldson joined the staff 22 years ago, the week before the hospital was opened to the public.

"I try to impress on my staff that we must be understanding and helpful, even though patients and family members may understandably be under great stress when we first meet them," she said. "We are often the first impression they get of Marin General, and we want it to be a good one."

"The public is always right" is her motto, she said, although diplomacy is sometimes called for when she gives the patients admitting forms to sign. Attorneys have a tendency to pick the forms to pieces, she said, and then there are the relatives, who think they know it all.

Her department is involved in everything that goes on in the hospital from the basement up, she said.

"MANY TIMES over the years we just have not had a bed available for a patient who had a reservation for a bed for a scheduled elective procedure," she said, "and we have to try to do the best we can to accommodate these people and their doctors. We can't always convince the doctors that the hospital is full, and they send patients. Five or six times we have had to cancel the entire day's admissions."

When no beds are available, she advises doctors to try another hospital. Other times she shifts patients, but with such specialized sections as intensive care, obstetrics, pediatrics, heart unit and isolation, the juggling is often tricky.

"A few times patients have had to be put in the hall, and I threaten Ray Bolinger (administrator of the hospital) when the place gets full I'll park patients in his office," Mrs. Donaldson said.

In making room assignments the admitting office attempts to pair persons of similar ages, she said. This is not always what the patient wants, she said, recalling a recent 70-year-old woman who was adamant in not wanting someone her age in the room with her.

Mrs. Donaldson has faced some grim times at Marin General and recalls the polio epidemic of 1954, when there were patients in the pediatric department and on the fourth floor in iron lungs.

MRS. DONALDSON is a native of Colchester, Ill., a small town south of Chicago. She studied nursing in the Chicago area before coming to Marin County, where she first worked at the former sanitarium, Arequipa, in Fairfax. She has also worked in Southern California and at Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco.

During the 22 years she has been at Marin General the admitting department staff has grown from two to 11 persons.

To make the admitting process as easy and brief as possible, the hospital has introduced a permanent numbering system that is kept indefinitely, and there is also a current file of the last three-year period to aid in readmission of patients, Mrs. Donaldson explained.

"The admitting department also makes addressograph plates for all incoming patients and also for the lab, physical therapy and administration," she said. "We also supervise the transportation corps, which escorts all incoming patients to their assigned rooms and also escorts patients to the lab, EEG (electroencephalograph), X-ray and nuclear medicine facilities, she said.

"But our primary responsibility is to obtain all the vital information about the patient, insurance coverage and other pertinent facts, as quickly and as gently as we can."

Contact with the public and the fact that no two days are ever the same are what make her job enjoyable, Mrs. Donaldson said, "even though you wouldn't think I enjoy it to hear me yell the way I do sometimes."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Woman Loses Her Husband And Then Doubles Her Troubles

DEAR HELEN:

My husband is crazy about his three children but he had no room for me. The problem: he's a very civic-minded person and, between community affairs and sports events, I was shut out completely.

Three months ago (after a showdown), he left, saying he needed more time for his work, without aggravation. But he manages to see his children every day.

Now I've met an older businessman who is crazy about me and wants me to get a divorce so we can marry. But suddenly my husband shows great interest in me again.

From being sad and lonely, I am now wanted by two men. The wealthy (older) man would give me anything I wanted. My soft-skulled husband still loves sports and community work. I'm afraid I'd go back to being just the mother of his children who doesn't count.

Could a man change? Or is it best to choose the man who puts me first? — UNDECIDED

DEAR UN:

Yes, a man can change — but don't count on it!

Have you considered, perhaps, that you could change too? If you became more interested in community work, then you might share your husband's pleasure in it and, in turn, he might give up a few sports events for your pursuits (or pursuit of you).

Since you enjoy being wanted by two men, why not wait a few months longer for your decision? But keep in mind: the person who always puts you first can be a great burden — unless you love him. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

In your "Things I Can Do Without" column you mentioned the traffic cop who, after giving you a ticket, says, "Have a nice day."

Here's a sure way not to get a ticket, if you're a woman: Burst into tears. Even a policeman can't stand to see a female crying wildly. His first thought is to get away from there fast. So open the floodgates and he'll give you only a warning and leave. — EXPERIENCED

DEAR EX:

Don't bet more than you can afford to lose on it! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend of mine had to put her child out for adoption. Realizing the little girl might someday be very curious, she wrote her a letter which the social worker said would be given to the adoptive parents to pass on to her.

It started: Dear Child of Ours: Yes, ours — your natural parents and your adoptive parents. We all love you and want you to have a healthy, happy, busy life. But the real purpose of this letter is to tell you about your "natural family."

Then she described herself, the child's father, their parents, said there were no "inherited diseases," told some personal anecdotes, explained why she felt it best to give her baby up though she loved her very much.

It was a long letter, full of concern and love, but, of course, it gave no clue about identities.

I think adopted children would not feel "lost" if they knew more about their roots and what better way than via letters from the women who bore them? I wonder why more girls don't think of this when they give up their babies? — T.F.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

PARENT AND CHILD

Schools Losing Relevancy

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Did you know that in some large cities in the United States and Europe more than half the teen-agers who are supposed to be in school are absent on any given school day? This raises a serious question as to how relevant school is to a large part of the student population.

In Baltimore, New York, St. Louis, Detroit, London, Bonn, and many other places, thousands of school-age youngsters do not attend all their assigned classes. Many may go to school, but once at school they talk in the halls or on nearby grounds and attend at most one or two classes a day.

Some students claim that they are not dropouts but push-outs. They claim that teachers have hassled them to such an extent that they have found their time in the classroom humiliating and embarrassing. The teacher gives failing grades in homework and classwork. The student generally avoids that class whenever possible. Eventually, the student drops out.

And as any teen-ager who dropped out of school can tell you, most employers do not ask whether a boy or girl has completed high school before hiring him for unskilled and semi-skilled jobs.

A dropout may have an edge because he or she may have already held a job and have a reference. A high school graduate may benefit because the personnel manager may prefer schooling to experience in hiring. But personnel managers are not a bit agreed on this.

Of course, a high school degree is a prerequisite for undergraduate study in most technical institutions, as well as two and four-year colleges.

But there are innumerable employment opportunities in the Western technological job market which depend more on learned skills than on a diploma. They include hairdressing, barbering, tool and die manufacturing, most assembly-line work, data processing, stockroom management, custodial services, refuse removal, dishwashing, cooking, automobile servicing and repair, to name just a few.

Youngsters 14 or 15 years old who expect to work in such service occupations find secondary schools almost devoid of any specific help for them. They really do not want or need algebra or classification biology or a semester reading and rereading "Julius Caesar."

But they do want and probably would stay in school if the course offerings touched much more closely on their present and future life-styles.

For example, such students would thrive under a cooperative education program with a business or industry whereby they could spend part of their time studying and part of their time in on-the-job training. Either a split day or one semester in school, the next on the job.

They would benefit enormously from a practical mathematics course in income taxes, simplified bookkeeping, the cost of mortgages and loans, savings and investment schemes, unit pricing, and simplified budgeting.

They would benefit from classes in criticism of contemporary art, music, film, books, and dance.

They would appreciate opportunities to learn the basic skills in a number of lifetime sports such as cycling, swimming, tennis, golf, etc.

They would be strengthened by courses in care and maintenance of small tools, household equipment, garden equipment, and rudimentary automobile maintenance.

The democratic process would be enlivened beyond measure if every secondary-school student had to participate in the political campaign of his choice — writing and reporting on his experience, and learning at the grass-roots level how communities, towns, cities, states, and nations are governed.

In ways such as these, schools could become a more vital part of growing up for more youngsters.

David Misakian Wed To Meredith Guthrie

Meredith Guthrie of Sausalito and David Misakian of San Rafael were wed July 28 in a ceremony at St. Anselm's Church in San Anselmo. A reception followed at the Art and Garden Center in Ross.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt H. Guthrie of Salinas and David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Misakian of San Rafael.

Meredith chose her sister Elisabeth Nolan of Berkeley and Susan Wilson of Ingelwood as her matrons of honor. Bridesmaids were Mary Church of Salinas, Judi Geyer of Fairfax, Kathy Atkins of Sausalito and Linda Christensen of Mill Valley.

Mary Terrell Is Red Cross Top Volunteer

Mary Terrell of Tiburon was named Volunteer of the Year by the Marin County Chapter of the American National Red Cross for her work as Coordinator of First Aid Instructors.

Mrs. Terrell was responsible for filing the names of volunteers as they became qualified to instruct one of the three first aid courses. She also searched her files and checked for those most qualified when a call came in for an instructor.

"She really is an eager beaver. If it's a multi-media course and she cannot find an instructor, Mary will do it herself. But we discourage that because she is too busy on her own job," said Cathy Weldon, administrative assistant.

The Red Cross offers a multimedia one-day course, a standard first aid and personal safety 30-hour course, and an advanced and emergency care course.

Mink Contest

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Woman Loses Her Husband And Then Doubles Her Troubles

DEAR HELEN:

My husband is crazy about his three children but he had no room for me. The problem: he's a very civic-minded person and, between community affairs and sports events, I was shut out completely.

Three months ago (after a showdown), he left, saying he needed more time for his work, without aggravation. But he manages to see his children every day.

Now I've met an older businessman who is crazy about me and wants me to get a divorce so we can marry. But suddenly my husband shows great interest in me again.

From being sad and lonely, I am now wanted by two men. The wealthy (older) man would give me anything I wanted. My soft-skulled husband still loves sports and community work. I'm afraid I'd go back to being just the mother of his children who doesn't count.

Could a man change? Or is it best to choose the man who puts me first? — UNDECIDED

DEAR UN:

Yes, a man can change — but don't count on it!

Have you considered, perhaps, that you could change too? If you became more interested in community work, then you might share your husband's pleasure in it and, in turn, he might give up a few sports events for your pursuits (or pursuit of you).

Since you enjoy being wanted by two men, why not wait a few months longer for your decision? But keep in mind: the person who always puts you first can be a great burden — unless you love him. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

In your "Things I Can Do Without" column you mentioned the traffic cop who, after giving you a ticket, says, "Have a nice day."

Here's a sure way not to get a ticket, if you're a woman: Burst into tears. Even a policeman can't stand to see a female crying wildly. His first thought is to get away from there fast. So open the floodgates and he'll give you only a warning and leave. — EXPERIENCED

DEAR EX:

Don't bet more than you can afford to lose on it! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend of mine had to put her child out for adoption. Realizing the little girl might someday be very curious, she wrote her a letter which the social worker said would be given to the adoptive parents to pass on to her.

It started: Dear Child of Ours: Yes, ours — your natural parents and your adoptive parents. We all love you and want you to have a healthy, happy, busy life. But the real purpose of this letter is to tell you about your "natural family."

Then she described herself, the child's father, their parents, said there were no "inherited diseases," told some personal anecdotes, explained why she felt it best to give her baby up though she loved her very much.

It was a long letter, full of concern and love, but, of course, it gave no clue about identities.

I think adopted children would not feel "lost" if they knew more about their roots and what better way than via letters from the women who bore them? I wonder why more girls don't think of this when they give up their babies? — T.F.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

PARENT AND CHILD

Schools Losing Relevancy

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Did you know that in some large cities in the United States and Europe more than half the teen-agers who are supposed to be in school are absent on any given school day? This raises a serious question as to how relevant school is to a large part of the student population.

In Baltimore, New York, St. Louis, Detroit, London, Bonn, and many other places, thousands of school-age youngsters do not attend all their assigned classes. Many may go to school, but once at school they talk in the halls or on nearby grounds and attend at most one or two classes a day.

Some students claim that they are not dropouts but pushouts. They claim that teachers have hassled them to such an extent that they have found their time in the classroom humiliating and embarrassing. The teacher gives failing grades in homework and classwork. The student generally avoids that class whenever possible. Eventually, the student drops out.

And as any teen-ager who dropped out of school can tell you, most employers do not ask whether a boy or girl has completed high school before hiring him for unskilled and semi-skilled jobs.

A dropout may have an edge because he or she may have already held a job and have a reference. A high school graduate may benefit because the personnel manager may prefer schooling to experience in hiring. But personnel managers are not a bit agreed on this.

Of course, a high school degree is a prerequisite for undergraduate study in most technical institutions, as well as two and four-year colleges.

But there are innumerable employment opportunities in the Western technological job market which depend more on learned skills than on a diploma. They include hairdressing, barbering, tool and die manufacturing, most assembly-line work, data processing, stockroom management, custodial services, refuse removal, dishwashing, cooking, automobile servicing and repair, to name just a few.

Youngsters 14 or 15 years old who expect to work in such service occupations find secondary schools almost devoid of any specific help for them. They really do not want or need algebra or classification biology or a semester reading and re-reading "Julius Caesar."

But they do want and probably would stay in school if the course offerings touched much more closely on their present and future life-styles.

For example, such students would thrive under a cooperative education program with a business or industry whereby they could spend part of their time studying and part of their time in on-the-job training. Either a split day or one semester in school, the next on the job.

They would benefit enormously from a practical mathematics course in income taxes, simplified bookkeeping, the cost of mortgages and loans, savings and investment schemes, unit pricing, and simplified budgeting.

They would benefit from classes in criticism of contemporary art, music, film, books, and dance.

They would appreciate opportunities to learn the basic skills in a number of lifetime sports such as cycling, swimming, tennis, golf, etc.

They would be strengthened by courses in care and maintenance of small tools, household equipment, garden equipment, and rudimentary automobile maintenance.

The democratic process would be enlivened beyond measure if every secondary-school student had to participate in the political campaign of his choice — writing and reporting on his experience, and learning at the grass-roots level how communities, towns, cities, states, and nations are governed.

In ways such as these, schools could become a more vital part of growing up for more youngsters.

TANA of Ignacio are spending this week aboard their 40-foot Owen power cruiser at Webber Point Yacht Club on the Delta. Fontana's brother, Robert, from San Diego will be their guest.

Members of Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon, the Fontanas keep their boat at Webber Point most of the year, but in September they exchange berths with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Griffiths, who keep their boat at CYC.

DAVINA AND ALBERT KOSH of San Rafael celebrated a 40th wedding anniversary this week with a family dinner out. Joining them were their sons Jack Eisen and Albert Jr. and Albert's wife Darby. The junior Koshes live in Petaluma. Jack, a writer on urban transportation for the Washington Post and former I-J staff member, came from the capital for the occasion. He will return at the end of this week.

Mrs. Cardoza whizzed their Quente, a ranger 26 to victory in tis division in the club's first Tri-Club Regatta. Then she won the Women's Division at the club's July 20 Sport Day.

She also takes the helm in the club's Friday night series which ends this weekend.

"Dick gives me all the credit, but he's really training me so I can take over the tiller in the YRA races," says Mrs. Cardoza.

Jill Chesley Married To Eugene Casaretto

St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda was the scene of the ceremony July 27 which united Jill Louise Chesley of San Rafael and Eugene J. Casaretto of San Carlos in marriage.

A reception followed in the Marinwood Community Center.

Jill and Eugene will make their home in San Carlos while attending University of San Francisco, from which both will graduate in 1975.

Jill, the daughter of Dura L. Chesley of San Rafael, chose Valerie Riner of Chico as her honor attendant, with Kathleen Guiney of San Diego and Kathleen Kittle of Colusa as bridesmaids.

Charlie Jaz of San Mateo was best man. Ronald Kilcoyne of San Francisco and Mark Casaretto, the bridegroom's brother, were ushers.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Woman Loses Her Husband And Then Doubles Her Troubles

DEAR HELEN:

My husband is crazy about his three children but he had no room for me. The problem: he's a very civic-minded person and, between community affairs and sports events, I was shut out completely.

Three months ago (after a showdown), he left, saying he needed more time for his work, without aggravation. But he manages to see his children every day.

Now I've met an older businessman who is crazy about me and wants me to get a divorce so we can marry. But suddenly my husband shows great interest in me again.

From being sad and lonely, I am now wanted by two men. The wealthy (older) man would give me anything I wanted. My soft-skulled husband still loves sports and community work. I'm afraid I'd go back to being just the mother of his children who doesn't count.

Could a man change? Or is it best to choose the man who puts me first? — UNDECIDED

DEAR UN:

Yes, a man can change — but don't count on it!

Have you considered, perhaps, that you could change too? If you became more interested in community work, then you might share your husband's pleasure in it and, in turn, he might give up a few sports events for your pursuits (or pursuit of you).

Since you enjoy being wanted by two men, why not wait a few months longer for your decision? But keep in mind: the person who always puts you first can be a great burden — unless you love him. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

In your "Things I Can Do Without" column you mentioned the traffic cop who, after giving you a ticket, says, "Have a nice day."

Here's a sure way not to get a ticket, if you're a woman: Burst into tears. Even a policeman can't stand to see a female crying wildly. His first thought is to get away from there fast. So open the floodgates and he'll give you only a warning and leave. — EXPERIENCED

DEAR EX:

Don't bet more than you can afford to lose on it! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend of mine had to put her child out for adoption. Realizing the little girl might someday be very curious, she wrote her a letter which the social worker said would be given to the adoptive parents to pass on to her.

It started: Dear Child of Ours: Yes, ours — your natural parents and your adoptive parents. We all love you and want you to have a healthy, happy, busy life. But the real purpose of this letter is to tell you about your "natural family."

Then she described herself, the child's father, their parents, said there were no "inherited diseases," told some personal anecdotes, explained why she felt it best to give her baby up though she loved her very much.

It was a long letter, full of concern and love, but, of course, it gave no clue about identities.

I think adopted children would not feel "lost" if they knew more about their roots and what better way than via letters from the women who bore them? I wonder why more girls don't think of this when they give up their babies? — T.F.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

David Misakian Wed To Meredith Guthrie

Music at the wedding included a song written especially for the couple by Michael Wilson, a singer and guitarist from Inglewood.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt H. Guthrie of Salinas and David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Misakian of San Rafael.

Meredith chose her sister Elisabeth Nolan of Berkeley and Susan Wilson of Ingelwood as her matrons of honor. Bridesmaids were Mary Church of Salinas, Judi Geyer of Fairfax, Kathy Atkins of Sausalito and Linda Christensen of Mill Valley.

The bridegroom's brother Fred Misakian of Alameda was st man and ushers were Gary Topance and Frank Silvestri of San Rafael, Fred Dal-Bro of San Jose, John Sauter of Terra Linda and Jim Peccorini of Novato.

Meredith was graduated from Notre Dame High School in Salinas and California State University, Fresno, with a major in child development. She is currently a student at California State University, San Francisko, where she is studying for her teaching credential.

She is the sister of Merritt Guthrie of Salinas and Michael Guthrie of San Francisco.

David was graduated from California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, and is employed at Douglas Lithograph and Print Company, South San Francisco.

The newlyweds will live in Larkspur after a camping trip in Canada, Washington, Oregon and Northern California.

Mary Terrell Is Red Cross Top Volunteer

Mary Terrell of Tiburon was named Volunteer of the Year by the Marin County Chapter of the American National Red Cross for her work as Coordinator of First Aid Instructors.

Mrs. Terrell was responsible for filing the names of volunteers as they became qualified to instruct one of the three first aid courses. She also searched her files and checked for those most qualified when a call came in for an instructor.

"She really is an eager beaver. If it's a multi-media course and she cannot find an instructor, Mary will do it herself. But we discourage that because she is too busy on her own job," said Cathy Weldon, administrative assistant.

The Red Cross offers a multimedia one-day course, a standard first aid and personal safety 30-hour course, and an advanced and emergency care course.

A camel-dyed black cross mink jogging jacket with ribbed waist and front zipper took first prize in a mink design contest. The winner was Jeffrey Banks, 20.

PARENT AND CHILD

Schools Losing Relevancy

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Did you know that in some large cities in the United States and Europe more than half the teen-agers who are supposed to be in school are absent on any given school day? This raises a serious question as to how relevant school is to a large part of the student population.

In Baltimore, New York, St. Louis, Detroit, London, Bonn, and many other places, thousands of school-age youngsters do not attend all their assigned classes. Many may go to school, but once at school they talk in the halls or on nearby grounds and attend at most one or two classes a day.

Some students claim that they are not dropouts but pushouts. They claim that teachers have hassled them to such an extent that they have found their time in the classroom humiliating and embarrassing. The teacher gives failing grades in homework and classwork. The student generally avoids that class whenever possible. Eventually, the student drops out.

And as any teen-ager who dropped out of school can tell you, most employers do not ask whether a boy or girl has completed high school before hiring him for unskilled and semiskilled jobs.

A dropout may have an edge because he or she may have already held a job and have a reference. A high school graduate may benefit because the personnel manager may prefer schooling to experience in hiring. But personnel managers are not a bit agreed on this.

Of course, a high school degree is a prerequisite for undergraduate study in most technical institutions, as well as two and four-year colleges.

But there are innumerable employment opportunities in the Western technological job market which depend more on learned skills than on a diploma. They include hairdressing, barbering, tool and die manufacturing, most assembly-line work, data processing, stockroom management, custodial services, refuse removal, dishwashing, cooking, automobile servicing and repair, to name just a few.

Youngsters 14 or 15 years old who expect to work in such service occupations find secondary schools almost devoid of any specific help for them. They really do not want or need algebra or classification biology or a semester reading and rereading "Julius Caesar."

But they do want and probably would stay in school if the course offerings touched much more closely on their present and future life-styles.

For example, such students would thrive under a cooperative education program with a business or industry whereby they could spend part of their time studying and part of their time in on-the-job training. Either a split day or one semester in school, the next on the job.

They would benefit enormously from a practical mathematics course in income taxes, simplified bookkeeping, the cost of mortgages and loans, savings and investment schemes, unit pricing, and simplified budgeting.

They would benefit from classes in criticism of contemporary art, music, film, books, and dance.

They would appreciate opportunities to learn the basic skills in a number of lifetime sports such as cycling, swimming, tennis, golf, etc.

They would be strengthened by courses in care and maintenance of small tools, household equipment, garden equipment, and rudimentary automobile maintenance.

The democratic process would be enlivened beyond measure if every secondary-school student had to participate in the political campaign of his choice — writing and reporting on his experience, and learning at the grass-roots level how communities, towns, cities, states, and nations are governed.

In ways such as these, schools could become a more vital part of growing up for more youngsters.

DEAR HELEN:

In your "Things I Can Do Without" column you mentioned the traffic cop who, after giving you a ticket, says, "Have a nice day."

Here's a sure way not to get a ticket, if you're a woman: Burst into tears. Even a policeman can't stand to see a female crying wildly. His first thought is to get away from there fast. So open the floodgates and he'll give you only a warning and leave. — EXPERIENCED

DEAR EX:

Don't bet more than you can afford to lose on it! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend of mine had to put her child out for adoption. Realizing the little girl might someday be very curious, she wrote her a letter which the social worker said would be given to the adoptive parents to pass on to her.

It started: Dear Child of Ours: Yes, ours — your natural parents and your adoptive parents. We all love you and want you to have a healthy, happy, busy life. But the real purpose of this letter is to tell you about your "natural family."

Then she described herself, the child's father, their parents, said there were no "inherited diseases," told some personal anecdotes, explained why she felt it best to give her baby up though she loved her very much.

It was a long letter, full of concern and love, but, of course, it gave no clue about identities.

I think adopted children would not feel "lost" if they knew more about their roots and what better way than via letters from the women who bore them? I wonder why more girls don't think of this when they give up their babies? — T.F.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

David Misakian Wed To Meredith Guthrie

Music at the wedding included a song written especially for the couple by Michael Wilson, a singer and guitarist from Inglewood.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt H. Guthrie of Salinas and David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Misakian of San Rafael.

Meredith chose her sister Elisabeth Nolan of Berkeley and Susan Wilson of Ingelwood as her matrons of honor. Bridesmaids were Mary Church of Salinas, Judi Geyer of Fairfax, Kathy Atkins of Sausalito and Linda Christensen of Mill Valley.

The bridegroom's brother Fred Misakian of Alameda was best man and ushers were Gary Topance and Frank Silvestri of San Rafael, Fred Dal-Bro of San Jose, John Sauter of Terra Linda and Jim Peccorini of Novato.

Meredith was graduated from Notre Dame High School in Salinas and California State University, Fresno, with a major in child development. She is currently a student at California State University, San Francisko, where she is studying for her teaching credential.

She is the sister of Merritt Guthrie of Salinas and Michael Guthrie of San Francisco.

David was graduated from California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, and is employed at Douglas Lithograph and Print Company, South San Francisco.

The newlyweds will live in Larkspur after a camping trip in Canada, Washington, Oregon and Northern California.

Mary Terrell Is Red Cross Top Volunteer

Mary Terrell of Tiburon was named Volunteer of the Year by the Marin County Chapter of the American National Red Cross for her work as Coordinator of First Aid Instructors.

Mrs. Terrell was responsible for filing the names of volunteers as they became qualified to instruct one of the three first aid courses. She also searched her files and checked for those most qualified when a call came in for an instructor.

"She really is an eager beaver. If it's a multi-media course and she cannot find an instructor, Mary will do it herself. But we discourage that because she is too busy on her own job," said Cathy Weldon, administrative assistant.

The Red Cross offers a multimedia one-day course, a standard first aid and personal safety 30-hour course, and an advanced and emergency care course.

Mink Contest

PARENT AND CHILD

Schools Losing Relevancy

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Did you know that in some large cities in the United States and Europe more than half the teen-agers who are supposed to be in school are absent on any given school day? This raises a serious question as to how relevant school is to a large part of the student population.

In Baltimore, New York, St. Louis, Detroit, London, Bonn, and many other places, thousands of school-age youngsters do not attend all their assigned classes. Many may go to school, but once at school they talk in the halls or on nearby grounds and attend at most one or two classes a day.

Some students claim that they are not dropouts but pushouts. They claim that teachers have hassled them to such an extent that they have found their time in the classroom humiliating and embarrassing. The teacher gives failing grades in homework and classwork. The student generally avoids that class whenever possible. Eventually, the student drops out.

And as any teen-ager who dropped out of school can tell you, most employers do not ask whether a boy or girl has completed high school before hiring him for unskilled and semi-skilled jobs.

A dropout may have an edge because he or she may have already held a job and have a reference. A high school graduate may benefit because the personnel manager may prefer schooling to experience in hiring. But personnel managers are not a bit agreed on this.

Of course, a high school degree is a prerequisite for undergraduate study in most technical institutions, as well as two and four-year colleges.

But there are innumerable employment opportunities in the Western technological job market which depend more on learned skills than on a diploma. They include hairdressing, barbering, tool and die manufacturing, most assembly-line work, data processing, stockroom management, custodial services, refuse removal, dishwashing, cooking, automobile servicing and repair, to name just a few.

Youngsters 14 or 15 years old who expect to work in such service occupations find secondary schools almost devoid of any specific help for them. They really do not want or need algebra or classification biology or a semester reading and re-reading "Julius Caesar."

But they do want and probably would stay in school if the course offerings touched much more closely on their present and future life-styles.

For example, such students would thrive under a cooperative education program with a business or industry whereby they could spend part of their time studying and part of their time in on-the-job training. Either a split day or one semester in school, the next on the job.

They would benefit enormously from a practical mathematics course in income taxes, simplified bookkeeping, the cost of mortgages and loans, savings and investment schemes, unit pricing, and simplified budgeting.

They would benefit from classes in criticism of contemporary art, music, film, books, and dance.

They would appreciate opportunities to learn the basic skills in a number of lifetime sports such as cycling, swimming, tennis, golf, etc.

They would be strengthened by courses in care and maintenance of small tools, household equipment, garden equipment, and rudimentary automobile maintenance.

The democratic process would be enlivened beyond measure if every secondary-school student had to participate in the political campaign of his choice — writing and reporting on his experience, and learning at the grass-roots level how communities, towns, cities, states, and nations are governed.

In ways such as these, schools could become a more vital part of growing up for more youngsters.

INVERNESS FESTIVAL

They Like Spreading The Music

By MARC LITTMAN

The recently concluded 1974 Inverness Music Festival has quickly receded into the past as the public shifts its attention to the county's other, plentiful summer musical events.

The 89 instrumentalists and 40 singers, many of them local residents, who participated in the month-long July festival, have moved on to other engagements, other combinations of talent.

St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness, sole performance hall of the festival's first nine years, has resumed its churchly routine.

Theaters, schools and churches throughout the county linked for four successive July weekends as participants in the festival's offering of classical to contemporary music, have similarly returned to their separate affairs.

And though music director Hugo Rinaldi and festival president Carole Berg have since been absorbed in other musically related tasks — Rinaldi is music director of the San Rafael school system and Mrs. Berg is also president of the Marin Symphony — they do so with the satisfaction of having successfully achieved the festival's goals.

Principally those were to involve Marin residents of all backgrounds and ages, particularly the young, in a warm and wide-ranging musical experience.

"We wanted to provide more than just music," Rinaldi said. "We wanted to move the festival around the county so that people could relate and become a part of it," he added.

"And it worked," Mrs. Berg concluded.

The idea of expanding the festival this year from the small, intimate hall in St. Columba's Church that seated only 150 persons to eight other locations in seven Marin communities drew impetus from the energy crisis. But its genesis was the desire of festival organizers to bring the festival to those who normally wouldn't be able to attend.

CAROLE BERG
Inverness Festival president

HUGO RINALDI
Reflects on festival

Toward this end, Rinaldi staged 15 rehearsals of his specially organized, 35-member, festival chamber orchestra in various convalescent homes, much to the delight of the elderly and nonambulatory patients.

Besides St. Columba's Church, one or another of the 18 festival performances, which ranged from an all-Ives concert to Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera, "The Consul," was held at San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow, the Veterans Memorial Building in San Rafael, St. Sebastian's Church in Kentfield, the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo, the Del Mar School in Tiburon, the United Methodist Church in Mill Valley, College of Marin in Kentfield and the Francis Blair home in Point Reyes Station.

Including the chamber orchestra rehearsals, from 6,500 to 7,000 persons witnessed the performances, Mrs. Berg estimated.

Though final receipts are still being tabulated, she estimated that aided by an $8,000 grant from the California Arts Committee and $6,500 from the county government, the festival — which grossed about $17,000 from other sources — would probably break even.

"The cost of just renting Veterans auditorium was enormous," Rinaldi pointed out. It came to $1,200 for five events, just for the hall itself. He said that the amount paid to electricians there in overtime alone, $800, for the two performances of "The Consul," was more than the full orchestra combined received.

Although importing some guest talent, notably cellist Laszlo Varga and harpist Marcella DeCray, the festival's emphasis this year was on local talent, particularly youth.

Rinaldi matched student musicians and conductors with their professional counterparts including Varga, and vocalists Gwen Curatilo, Marian Marsh and Donna Peterson of Marin, pianist Paul Hersh of Mill Valley and guitarist George Sakellarious of San Rafael.

Eighteen scholarships of $100 each were also awarded to top high school student musicians in Marin.

But Mrs. Berg stressed that one of the main intentions of the festival organizers was to offer a musical experience that persons of all ages and backgrounds could share and enjoy, even nonmusicians such as herself.

Even County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney contributed his spare time to play the consul in Menotti's opera, she said.

Rinaldi pointed with pride to the chamber orchestra that was composed in part by families with two generations participating. Violinist Daniel Smiley for instance performed in the orchestra along with his mother.

But the Inverness Festival organizers experienced frustration along with success.

"We made mistakes, Mrs. Berg said, adding, "We're still learning."

Besides the expense of renting Veterans' Auditorium, she suggested that perhaps too many performances were scheduled and that it might be wise in the future to schedule the festival a little earlier to give Marin residents a break before the onset of the Forest Meadows Center of the Arts music festival which began last week.

Rinaldi reflected that small, intimate halls are more conducive to chamber orchestra music than the expansive Veterans' Auditorium.

"It was a psychologically demoralizing experience both to the audience and the musicians when only 400 out of 2,000 seats in the auditorium were filled," Mrs. Berg explained.

Rinaldi also suggested scheduling of a chorus next year and continuance of the chamber orchestra, which performed for the first time this year with a fully staged opera.

Further he toyed with the thought of a local composer-in-residence for the festival.

Both agreed that spreading the festival throughout the county, a radical departure this year from past festivals, had proved worthwhile and should be continued next year.

But the two organizers cautioned that these were only suggestions and that the festival board will have to adopt plans for the future when it meets later this month.

Asked whether she would work with festival organizers next year, Mrs. Berg, who has been associated with the festival since 1969, left it to Rinaldi to speak for both of them.

"Music's a way of life. It's a love, an avocation and a profession."

Pianist Horacio Gutierrez will perform works by Mozart, Ravel, Rachmaninov and Prokofiev at 2:30 p.m. Aug. 18 at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building in San Rafael. The event will conclude the 1974 Marin Music Chest summer concert series.

The 25-year-old Cuban-born pianist has played with leading orchestras in the United States in the last three years and has toured Europe, Canada, Israel, the USSR and South America.

During intermission, the 1974 Marin Music Chest music and ballet scholarship winners will be announced.

Lawyer Says Sirhan Didn't Murder Kennedy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A New York attorney says evidence shows that convicted assassin Sirhan Sirhan did not kill Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The evidence "conclusively shows" that Sirhan, now serving life at San Quentin, fired his .25-caliber gun while in front of Kennedy, but the fatal bullet struck the Senator in the back of the head, said Henry B. Rothblatt.

"I am recommending that a panel of the top forensic scientists of the nation be set up to completely review the circumstances and issue a report—in all fairness to Sirhan as well as the American people," he said.

Rothblatt spoke yesterday at the convention of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America.

Balloonist Dies With His Dream

OCEAN GATE, N.J. (UPI) — Robert Berger hoped to be the first man to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a balloon. Yesterday he rose 6,000 feet in a homemade craft but fell to his death when the balloon burst.

Witnesses said the 12-story-high, helium-filled balloon broke apart as it fell into Barnegat Bay near the New Jersey shore.

Berger's body was found trapped in the gondola. He apparently did not have time to use his parachute, which was also found in the craft.

Berger, 47, a Philadelphia electrician who was married and the father of four children, had never flown in a homemade balloon before.

He spent two years and $25,000 building the craft. Berger intended to float across the ocean and land in Paris in 36 to 48 hours.

Record Scratching Case Is Dismissed

LEICESTER, England (UPI) — Stephanie Cox, 20, pleaded guilty yesterday to scratching 299 music records belonging to her boyfriend.

Magistrates dismissed the case when she said she and Paul Cook had patched up their lover's tiff and were now engaged to be married.

Brass Concert Set For Sunday

A free brass concert will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at Old Mill Park in Mill Valley under the sponsorship of the Mill Valley Art Commission and Chamber Music Society.

According to society director David Subke of Mill Valley, selections will include music by Scott Joplin, Beethoven, Corelli, Bach and Vivaldi.

Performers will be Laurie McGaw and Marvin Nelson on trumpets; John Krieger on french horn; Will and Jack Sudmeier, Mitchell Ross, and Miles Anderson on trombones.

Petaluma Sewer Fee Reduction Requested

A compromise of the City of Petaluma sewer use charge for rural residents probably can be worked out, Petaluma city councilmen have agreed.

The council on Monday postponed to Aug. 19 action on a draft ordinance that would have cost residents outside city limits $137 a year to use the city's sewers.

According to David A. Breninger, assistant city manager, Donald M. Van Dyke, spokesman for the sewer user group known as Petalumans Unincorporated, stressed that outside sewer users are being asked to pay as much as six times the use fee charged in-city residents, and said the fee is about three items the actual cost of handling the unincorporated area sewage.

Van Dyke asked that the annual fee be lowered to $53 per household, Breninger reported.

The county of Sonoma requires any household within 300 feet of a public sewer main to hook into it, regardless of septic tank utility, Breninger explained. The city has sewer mains extending into the Sunnyslope area south of the city, where most of the protesting homeowners live.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

BOND ISSUE — Formally put a $2.2 million park bond issue on the general election ballot Nov. 5.

TRANSPORT — Learned that the Metropolitan Transportation Commission has approved a $189,829 grant to the city for use either in buying transit rights-of-way for the transport systems such as a bus fleet. The city's only transport service now is Golden Gate Bridge District buses and Greyhound buses passing through.

PARKS — Set priorities for using the city's $122,000 share from the state park bond election in June. First priority will be purchase of the McNear Peninsula property on the Petaluma River; otherwise the money will be used to buy hillside open space. The council disapproved of a city parks and recreation commission proposal giving second priority to improvements of Lucchesi Park.

VANDALISM — Informally approved steps recommended by a council-citizens' committee to halt vandalism at Lucchesi Park. The plan includes new shrubbery barriers, more police patrols and possible removal of restrooms.

Rinaldi also suggested scheduling of a chorus next year and continuance of the chamber orchestra, which performed for the first time this year with a fully staged opera.

Further he toyed with the thought of a local composer-in-residence for the festival.

Both agreed that spreading the festival throughout the county, a radical departure this year from past festivals, had proved worthwhile and should be continued next year.

But the two organizers cautioned that these were only suggestions and that the festival board will have to adopt plans for the future when it meets later this month.

Asked whether she would work with festival organizers next year, Mrs. Berg, who has been associated with the festival since 1969, left it to Rinaldi to speak for both of them.

Lawyer Says Sirhan Didn't Murder Kennedy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A New York attorney says evidence shows that convicted assassin Sirhan Sirhan did not kill Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The evidence "conclusively shows" that Sirhan, now serving life at San Quentin, fired his .25-caliber gun while in front of Kennedy, but the fatal bullet struck the Senator in the back of the head, said Henry B. Rothblatt.

"I am recommending that a panel of the top forensic scientists of the nation be set up to completely review the circumstances and issue a report—in all fairness to Sirhan as well as the American people," he said.

Rothblatt spoke yesterday at the convention of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America.

Balloonist Dies With His Dream

OCEAN GATE, N.J. (UPI) — Robert Berger hoped to be the first man to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a balloon. Yesterday he rose 6,000 feet in a homemade craft but fell to his death when the balloon burst.

Witnesses said the 12-story-high, helium-filled balloon broke apart as it fell into Barnegat Bay near the New Jersey shore.

Berger's body was found trapped in the gondola. He apparently did not have time to use his parachute, which was also found in the craft.

Berger, 47, a Philadelphia electrician who was married and the father of four children, had never flown in a homemade balloon before.

He spent two years and $25,000 building the craft. Berger intended to float across the ocean and land in Paris in 36 to 48 hours.

Record Scratching Case Is Dismissed

LEICESTER, England (UPI) — Stephanie Cox, 20, pleaded guilty yesterday to scratching 299 music records belonging to her boyfriend.

Magistrates dismissed the case when she said she and Paul Cook had patched up their lover's tiff and were now engaged to be married.

Petaluma Sewer Fee Reduction Requested

A compromise of the City of Petaluma sewer use charge for rural residents probably can be worked out, Petaluma city councilmen have agreed.

The council on Monday postponed to Aug. 19 action on a draft ordinance that would have cost residents outside city limits $137 a year to use the city's sewers.

According to David A. Breninger, assistant city manager, Donald M. Van Dyke, spokesman for the sewer user group known as Petalumans Unincorporated, stressed that outside sewer users are being asked to pay as much as six times the use fee charged in-city residents, and said the fee is about three items the actual cost of handling the unincorporated area sewage.

Van Dyke asked that the annual fee be lowered to $53 per household, Breninger reported.

The county of Sonoma requires any household within 300 feet of a public sewer main to hook into it, regardless of septic tank utility, Breninger explained. The city has sewer mains extending into the Sunnyslope area south of the city, where most of the protesting homeowners live.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

TRANSPORT — Learned that the Metropolitan Transportation Commission has approved a $189,829 grant to the city for use either in buying transit rights-of-way for the transport systems such as a bus fleet. The city's only transport service now is Golden Gate Bridge District buses and Greyhound buses passing through.

PARKS — Set priorities for using the city's $122,000 share from the state park bond election in June. First priority will be purchase of the McNear Peninsula property on the Petaluma River; otherwise the money will be used to buy hillside open space. The council disapproved of a city parks and recreation commission proposal giving second priority to improvements of Lucchesi Park.

VANDALISM — Informally approved steps recommended by a council-citizens' committee to halt vandalism at Lucchesi Park. The plan includes new shrubbery barriers, more police patrols and possible removal of restrooms.

Cabot Released From Hospital

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI) — Actor Sebastian Cabot, who suffered a stroke three weeks ago, was released from Royal Jubilee Hospital here last weekend, according to a hospital spokesman.

The spokesman, who said the Cabot family requested that no information be released concerning the 55-year-old actor's state of health, said yesterday only that Cabot had recovered sufficiently to be discharged.

Cabot was best known as the butler in the television comedy series "Family Affair."

Sausalito Council Rejects Bob's Boatyard Demolition

The Sausalito City Council last night again declined to grant developers of the Schoonmaker project a permit to tear down Bob's Boatyard, sought for preservation by conservationist forces.

Councilmen voted 3-1, Sally Stanford opposed, to ask planning commissioners for an opinion on whether the proposed demolition is part of a larger development project, thus requiring an environmental impact report.

The city is scheduled to be in court on the matter Aug. 19 in a lawsuit by the developers who are seeking to force the council to permit razing the yard.

A parade of citizens last night opposed the Schoonmaker plans, saying that to tear down the yard would do irreparable damage to the local fishing industry. The facility is the only one in Sausalito with capacity to handle fishing vessels and houseboats running 400 tons or more.

Resident Robert Clark urged the council to buy the yard from the developers and operate it as a municipal port facility.

Schoonmaker spokesman Steve Siskind blamed the city for foot dragging in approving development plans for forcing him to close the yard.

Siskind said that if he receives an indication from the council that development plans would be approved within 90 days, he would reopen the yard and subsidize its operation until a new boatyard could be built as part of O'Meara Chandler Corporation's proposal for development of the Schoonmaker property in the Marinship area of the city waterfront.

Speaking in favor of the demolition were Sam Zakessian, owner of Sausalito Marine, a boatyard that specializes in yacht repair, and Ralph (Swede) Pedersen. Both said the yard is inefficient, incapable of performing quality repair work and an eyesore on the waterfront.

The Sausalito City Council also:

DEVELOPMENT — Passed on first reading a zoning amendment prohibiting simultaneous filing of more than one development application for the same parcel of land, Sally Stanford opposed.

HOUSE — Overruled a community appearances advisory board decision and approved design plans by William Hynes for a single-family home at 3 Marion Avenue on the South Ridgelands.

VARIANCE — On a split vote, upheld a planning commission decision to grant a variance from parking requirements to William Charles for a proposed retail sales and office establishment at the former Glen Five and Ten at 670 Bridgeway.

CASA MADRONA — Postponed until next Tuesday a decision on a committee recommendation that the mudslide-threatened Casa Madrona Hotel be vacated by Sept. 15.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned until Tuesday in council chambers.

Sausalito Councilman Stalls Bond Election

Sausalito City Councilman Sally Stanford withheld her support for a proposed $1.5 million open space bond election last night, an action that could keep the measure off the ballot in November.

Miss Stanford refused to approve spending $6,000 for bond counselor's fees although City Atty. Leland H. Jordan warned that delay could cause the city to miss the deadline for meeting requirements to get the issue before voters in the November general election.

Approval requires the unanimous vote of all four councilmen.

She resisted pleas from Councilman Robin Sweeny, who argued that the council is obligated to allow the people to decide the issue at the polls, regardless of any individual councilman's stand on open space.

Miss Stanford explained that she decided to oppose the measure after her three colleagues earlier had voted for tougher requirements in filing applications for development proposals.

Continued persuasion from Mrs. Sweeny softened her position somewhat and the matter was scheduled to be taken up again next Tuesday after Miss Stanford agreed to "think it over" in the interim.

Petaluman Killed In One-Car Crash

A Petaluma youth was fatally injured last night in a one-car accident near Cotati, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Rudolph L. Reckny Jr., 21, of 809 Paula Lane, died in Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital shortly after the 10:55 p.m. accident on Highway 101. He was a passenger in a car driven by James Douglas Staydon, 18, of 701 Carline Court, Petaluma, the patrol said.

Investigators reported Staydon's car, southbound on the freeway about one-half mile north of the Gravenstein Highway offramp, apparently drifted off the road and hit a redwood tree.

Survival Inc. Supported In Sausalito

The Sausalito City Council last night granted Survival Inc. $500 to establish the city's first recycling center.

In approving the grant unanimously, the council also offered the 3-year-old recycling firm the use of a former city corporation yard on Bee Street for a collection depot.

The depot will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each weekend for the pickup of glass, aluminum, tin, newspapers, paper bags and cardboard.

The operation is expected to begin shortly after Labor Day, according to a spokesman for Survival Inc.

Speaking in favor of the demolition were Sam Zakessian, owner of Sausalito Marine, a boatyard that specializes in yacht repair, and Ralph (Swede) Pedersen. Both said the yard is inefficient, incapable of performing quality repair work and an eyesore on the waterfront.

The Sausalito City Council also:

DEVELOPMENT — Passed on first reading a zoning amendment prohibiting simultaneous filing of more than one development application for the same parcel of land, Sally Stanford opposed.

HOUSE — Overruled a community appearances advisory board decision and approved design plans by William Hynes for a single-family home at 3 Marion Avenue on the South Ridgelands.

VARIANCE — On a split vote, upheld a planning commission decision to grant a variance from parking requirements to William Charles for a proposed retail sales and office establishment at the former Glen Five and Ten at 670 Bridgeway.

CASA MADRONA — Postponed until next Tuesday a decision on a committee recommendation that the mudslide-threatened Casa Madrona Hotel be vacated by Sept. 15.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned until Tuesday in council chambers.

Sausalito Councilman Stalls Bond Election

Sausalito City Councilman Sally Stanford withheld her support for a proposed $1.5 million open space bond election last night, an action that could keep the measure off the ballot in November.

Miss Stanford refused to approve spending $6,000 for bond counselor's fees although City Atty. Leland H. Jordan warned that delay could cause the city to miss the deadline for meeting requirements to get the issue before voters in the November general election.

Approval requires the unanimous vote of all four councilmen.

She resisted pleas from Councilman Robin Sweeny, who argued that the council is obligated to allow the people to decide the issue at the polls, regardless of any individual councilman's stand on open space.

Miss Stanford explained that she decided to oppose the measure after her three colleagues earlier had voted for tougher requirements in filing applications for development proposals.

Continued persuasion from Mrs. Sweeny softened her position somewhat and the matter was scheduled to be taken up again next Tuesday after Miss Stanford agreed to "think it over" in the interim.

Petaluman Killed In One-Car Crash

A Petaluma youth was fatally injured last night in a one-car accident near Cotati, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Rudolph L. Reckny Jr., 21, of 809 Paula Lane, died in Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital shortly after the 10:55 p.m. accident on Highway 101. He was a passenger in a car driven by James Douglas Staydon, 18, of 701 Carline Court, Petaluma, the patrol said.

Investigators reported Staydon's car, southbound on the freeway about one-half mile north of the Gravenstein Highway offramp, apparently drifted off the road and hit a redwood tree.

Survival Inc. Supported In Sausalito

The Sausalito City Council last night granted Survival Inc. $500 to establish the city's first recycling center.

In approving the grant unanimously, the council also offered the 3-year-old recycling firm the use of a former city corporation yard on Bee Street for a collection depot.

The depot will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each weekend for the pickup of glass, aluminum, tin, newspapers, paper bags and cardboard.

The operation is expected to begin shortly after Labor Day, according to a spokesman for Survival Inc.

JACKSON, Tenn. (UPI) — Susan Eliff of Jackson holds the world's rocking chair record of 125 hours and 40 minutes.

Susan, munching toast and jelly for energy and sniffing ammonia to stay awake, creaked to the record on June 15, 1972. She set it at age 18.

New Record Set For Monopoly

DALLAS (UPI) — Two 17 year-old boys yesterday claimed the world record for the continuous playing of Monopoly —90 hours.

Tommy Thomas and Rober James started playing Monopoly at 6 p.m. last Friday and ended at noon yesterday. They said the old record was 86 hours, set in Birmingham, England.

The youths agreed to stop playing at noon and promptly fell asleep on the floor.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

BIT OF SHERLOCK HOLMES

Dog Catcher Likes Job

By FRED STREBEIGH

"What do you do when your work gets you down and things are getting boring?" asked special investigator Donald J. Simpson of the Marin County Humane Society. "Play a little bit of the old Sherlock Holmes, right?" he said as he wheeled his animal ambulance around in pursuit of a fleeing mutt.

"He knows this truck," Simpson deduced as the Wily prey, a "golden Lab mix," took evasive action. "That indicates to me not only that he's been out a lot, but that he's been caught out."

DOG MEETS CATCHER — Humane Society officer Donald J. Simpson nabs Peppy, a friendly terrier found frisking unlicensed, unleashed, and unattended on the road in front of his San Rafael home. "He's a nice puppy," Simpson said as he delivered Peppy and a $15 dollar citation home to Carol Jordan at 349 Mountain View Avenue, "but you have to cite the nice ones too."

"See that great leather I.D. tag like they put on suitcases. He was probably picked up once and taken to the pound for no identification, so his folks decided it was better to have him taken home next time."

Simpson, 32, a resident of Petaluma, said that after his four years on the beat he has learned "to think the way a dog thinks", but this time his canine quarry — using the terrain to best advantage — escaped by bolting downstreet and vaulting a 5.5-foot pineboard fence into the safety of his home yard.

"I could still mail them a citation," Simpson said, but the absent dog-owners were saved the $15 fine when he surveyed the fence and decided it was sufficient to restrain "any ordinary dog."

"To like this job you have to like animals," Simpson said, directly contradicting the stereotype of the cursing, net-wielding dogcatcher.

In a four hour patrol through San Rafael and adjoining territories this week, Simpson made it clear that he likes both, although, he said, "nobody likes being called dogcatcher."

Humane society officers are not mere dogcatchers, spending only about 40 per cent of their time rounding up pets, according to superintendent Robert L. Dollahite. More time is spend helping injured animals, including deer and wounded bobcats, tracking down packs of vicious dogs in west Marin, and checking on reports of rabies in bats, skunks, and other animals.

And when the nine officers are patrolling as dogcatchers, Simpson said, the problem is not to discipline dogs, but to discipline people. He feels the $15 slap on the nose is justified because many owners don't realize what damage their pets can do.

"For example," he said, "where there's a female in season we'll find 15 to 20 dogs around the house — from as much as two miles away — and they're tearing the door down. And they definitely can tear the door down.

MARIN

TWO MILES TOO MANY — Officer Simpson discusses the broader points of San Rafael's leash law with Barbara L. Polk and her coon hound Hodges. Hodges, a frequent offender, was first sighted strolling down Mission Street, two miles from his home on Gold Hill Grade.

"The dogs just go a little nutty. And you can't blame the dogs, so you have to blame the owner for not having the dog under control at that time."

On this particular tour of duty, which Simpson said was "very quiet", only three strays were picked up.

Two of them offered more affection than resistance as Simpson delivered them back, with citations, to their chagrined but resigned owners.

The third, an old coon hound strolling down Mission Street in San Rafael, recognized Simpson's truck and lit off down and out through the apartments at the bottom of a dead end street.

"That SOB.", Simpson said. "I've caught him two times before."

"You see, I've got a definite advantage with this dog, because I know where he lives, and he knows I'm chasing him, and I know he'll head home," Simpson said.

With complete faith in his deductive gift, Simpson turned from the scene and drove two miles to 55 Gold Hill Grade where he told a flabbergasted Barbara L. Polk that her errant hound was headed home.

"And I told you last time that I'd have to cite you if he got out again," he told her, just as Hodges, her 10-year-old Black and Tan Coon hound loped into the driveway with tongue and ears flapping.

Leaving the scene, Simpson insisted it was all elementary. "When you've been at this business a while," he said, "dogs are pretty predictable."

Marin Transit Board Refuses To Support Big Bus Service Subsidy

The Marin County Transit District board shied away yesterday from a proposal that it subsidize a special bus service to West Marin at nearly $10 per passenger.

The service, which was started July 4 by the Golden Gate Bridge District, carries weekend tourists to and from various West Marin recreational areas. It will end Labor Day.

The new service was never referred to the county for review even though Marin's estimated share of the cost totals $8,500 for 900 passengers.

In flatly rejecting the amount, transit district directors said they would pay no more than $2,700, based on the $3-per-rider subsidy paid for other West Marin runs.

Chairman Michael Wornum, while joining in the unanimous vote, earlier spoke in support of the higher amount saying the recreational travel service is something "that should be tried."

"We've been encouraging it for years," he said.

Other directors differed, however, and their position was summed up by director Jack G. Nixon who said that "regardless of the desirability of recreational transit to West Marin, it's sheer foolishness to talk of $10 per trip. It's ridiculous."

"Where else can you go on vacation for two-bits and get the taxpayers to pay the rest?" chimed in Director Robert A. Roumiguiere.

The board's stand means the bridge district will have to pick up the added cost.

The Marin County Transit District board also:

BUS LANE — Urged the state to designate exclusive bus lanes on Highway 101 between Greenbrae and Richardson Bay Bridge. The stretch is being widened to four lanes each way and directors urged that buses have exclusive use of one lane during commute hours.

CONTRACT — Supported a staff suggestion that a contract be drafted between the transit district and Golden Gate Bridge District outlining the bus services provided the county by the bridge district. No contract has existed between the two even though the county purchases local bus service from the bridge district.

GRAND JURY — Urged further study into a proposal from the county grand jury that busing of school children be incorporated into the county transit system.

Burton Speaks Out On Ferry Terminal

Rep. John L. Burton, D-Sixth District, has urged directors of the Golden Gate Bridge District to pay heed to citizen objections before proceeding with plans for a temporary downtown ferry terminal in Sausalito.

"I am in support of mass transportation and support the concept of using ferries as an alternative to vehicular traffic," Burton said in a letter received this week by the bridge district and Sausalito city officials. "However, it seems to me these concerns expressed by the community are quite valid. I would hope you would address yourselves to the concerns of the Sausalito residents and other people in Marin before proceeding with this temporary terminal and the expenditure of $200,000."

The congressman said his letter was prompted by complaints from constituents.

Bridge directors have voted to go ahead with the project over objections by the Sausalito City Council and many citizens.

Opponents fear the district's new 750-passenger boats, which the temporary facility is intended to serve, will bring an even greater influx of tourists to the city. The present ferry, the Golden Gate, has a capacity of 575.

They also are protesting the construction of the terminal without an environmental assessment of the project's impact on the community.

Tiburon Sanitary Budget Cut

The Tiburon Sanitary District board has adopted a 1974-75 budget of $208,200, which will make possible a drop in the tax rate of about 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation, according to board president James Murray.

The budget is almost $75,000 less than last year's. The tax rate for 1973-74 was 79 cents, but Murray estimated that this year's rate will be 64 cents.

The biggest decrease in the budget stemmed from a board decision not to buy a new sewage treatment system from the Bio-Kinetics firm of San Rafael. In 1973-74 the district spent the $81,000 originally budgeted for this project on upgrading lines and pumps after it decided not to go ahead with the Bio-Kinetics proposal, Murray noted.

Other budget categories for this year with last year's figures in parentheses:

Salaries, $71,300 ($67,000); plant utilities, $8,650 ($8,650); pump utilities, $2,100 ($2,100); plant repairs $15,500 ($15,500); audit $3,000 ($2,800); pension, $7,500 ($12,500); insurance, $3,675 ($3,675); repairs of pumps and lines, $74,700 ($54,000); legal, $3,100 ($2,900); board attendance $2,400 ($2,400); miscellaneous 0 ($300); travel, 0 ($1,500); Southern Marin Subregional Sewerage Agency fees, $5,400 ($5,000); office expenses, $1,000 ($1,000); autos and truck, $1,500 ($3,000); telephone, $1,000 ($1,625); dues, $500 ($300); postage, $200 ($200); meetings, $300 ($300); monitoring of lines, $5,000 ($10,000); consulting, 0 ($6,000).

Firemen Have Narrow Escape

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Five firemen narrowly escaped injury yesterday by jumping inside the cab of their fire truck and rolling up the windows when flames from a grass and brush fire swept over their truck.

The fire, which investigators said may have been started by two boys, charred more than 125 acres of brushland in the Diamond Bar area south of the Pomona Freeway.

Another blaze in the Hollywood Hills blackened 20 acres near the Franklin Canyon Resevoir, while 75 acres of land burned in the Westlake area and five acres burned in Elysian Park north of the Police Academy.

BIT OF SHERLOCK HOLMES

Dog Catcher Likes Job

By FRED STREBEIGH

"What do you do when your work gets you down and things are getting boring?" asked special investigator Donald J. Simpson of the Marin County Humane Society. "Play a little bit of the old Sherlock Holmes, right?" he said as he wheeled his animal ambulance around in pursuit of a fleeing mutt.

"He knows this truck," Simpson deduced as the Wily prey, a "golden Lab mix," took evasive action. "That indicates to me not only that he's been out a lot, but that he's been caught out."

"See that great leather I.D. tag like they put on suitcases. He was probably picked up once and taken to the pound for no identification, so his folks decided it was better to have him taken home next time."

Simpson, 32, a resident of Petaluma, said that after his four years on the beat he has learned "to think the way a dog thinks", but this time his canine quarry — using the terrain to best advantage — escaped by bolting downstreet and vaulting a 5.5-foot pineboard fence into the safety of his home yard.

"I could still mail them a citation," Simpson said, but the absent dog-owners were saved the $15 fine when he surveyed the fence and decided it was sufficient to restrain "any ordinary dog."

"To like this job you have to like animals," Simpson said, directly contradicting the stereotype of the cursing, net-wielding dogcatcher.

In a four hour patrol through San Rafael and adjoining territories this week, Simpson made it clear that he likes both, although, he said, "nobody likes being called dogcatcher."

Humane society officers are not mere dogcatchers, spending only about 40 per cent of their time rounding up pets, according to superintendent Robert L. Dollahite. More time is spend helping injured animals, including deer and wounded bobcats, tracking down packs of vicious dogs in west Marin, and checking on reports of rabies in bats, skunks, and other animals.

And when the nine officers are patrolling as dogcatchers, Simpson said, the problem is not to discipline dogs, but to discipline people. He feels the $15 slap on the nose is justified because many owners don't realize what damage their pets can do.

"For example," he said, "where there's a female in season we'll find 15 to 20 dogs around the house — from as much as two miles away — and they're tearing the door down. And they definitely can tear the door down.

"The dogs just go a little nutty. And you can't blame the dogs, so you have to blame the owner for not having the dog under control at that time."

On this particular tour of duty, which Simpson said was "very quiet", only three strays were picked up.

Two of them offered more affection than resistance as Simpson delivered them back, with citations, to their chagrined but resigned owners.

The third, an old coon hound strolling down Mission Street in San Rafael, recognized Simpson's truck and lit off down and out through the apartments at the bottom of a dead end street.

"That SOB.", Simpson said. "I've caught him two times before."

"You see, I've got a definite advantage with this dog, because I know where he lives, and he knows I'm chasing him, and I know he'll head home," Simpson said.

With complete faith in his deductive gift, Simpson turned from the scene and drove two miles to 55 Gold Hill Grade where he told a flabbergasted Barbara L. Polk that her errant hound was headed home.

"And I told you last time that I'd have to cite you if he got out again," he told her, just as Hodges, her 10-year-old Black and Tan Coon hound loped into the driveway with tongue and ears flapping.

Leaving the scene, Simpson insisted it was all elementary. "When you've been at this business a while," he said, "dogs are pretty predictable."

DOG MEETS CATCHER — Humane Society officer Donald J. Simpson nabs Peppy, a friendly terrier found frisking unlicensed, unleashed, and unattended on the road in front of his San Rafael home. "He's a nice puppy," Simpson said as he delivered Peppy and a $15 dollar citation home to Carol Jordan at 349 Mountain View Avenue, "but you have to cite the nice ones too."

Marin Transit Board Refuses To Support Big Bus Service Subsidy

The Marin County Transit District board shied away yesterday from a proposal that it subsidize a special bus service to West Marin at nearly $10 per passenger.

The service, which was started July 4 by the Golden Gate Bridge District, carries weekend tourists to and from various West Marin recreational areas. It will end Labor Day.

The new service was never referred to the county for review even though Marin's estimated share of the cost totals $8,500 for 900 passengers.

In flatly rejecting the amount, transit district directors said they would pay no more than $2,700, based on the $3-per-rider subsidy paid for other West Marin runs.

Chairman Michael Wornum, while joining in the unanimous vote, earlier spoke in support of the higher amount saying the recreational travel service is something "that should be tried."

"We've been encouraging it for years," he said.

Other directors differed, however, and their position was summed up by director Jack G. Nixon who said that "regardless of the desirability of recreational transit to West Marin, it's sheer foolishness to talk of $10 per trip. It's ridiculous."

"Where else can you go on vacation for two-bits and get the taxpayers to pay the rest?" chimed in Director Robert A. Roumiguiere.

The board's stand means the bridge district will have to pick up the added cost.

The Marin County Transit District board also:

BUS LANE — Urged the state to designate exclusive bus lanes on Highway 101 between Greenbrae and Richardson Bay Bridge. The stretch is being widened to four lanes each way and directors urged that buses have exclusive use of one lane during commute hours.

CONTRACT — Supported a staff suggestion that a contract be drafted between the transit district and Golden Gate Bridge District outlining the bus services provided the county by the bridge district. No contract has existed between the two even though the county purchases local bus service from the bridge district.

GRAND JURY — Urged further study into a proposal from the county grand jury that busing of school children be incorporated into the county transit system.

Burton Speaks Out On Ferry Terminal

Rep. John L. Burton, D-Sixth District, has urged directors of the Golden Gate Bridge District to pay heed to citizen objections before proceeding with plans for a temporary downtown ferry terminal in Sausalito.

"I am in support of mass transportation and support the concept of using ferries as an alternative to vehicular traffic," Burton said in a letter received this week by the bridge district and Sausalito city officials. "However, it seems to me these concerns expressed by the community are quite valid. I would hope you would address yourselves to the concerns of the Sausalito residents and other people in Marin before proceeding with this temporary terminal and the expenditure of $200,000."

The congressman said his letter was prompted by complaints from constituents.

Bridge directors have voted to go ahead with the project over objections by the Sausalito City Council and many citizens.

Opponents fear the district's new 750-passenger boats, which the temporary facility is intended to serve, will bring an even greater influx of tourists to the city. The present ferry, the Golden Gate, has a capacity of 575.

They also are protesting the construction of the terminal without an environmental assessment of the project's impact on the community.

Tiburon Sanitary Budget Cut

The Tiburon Sanitary District board has adopted a 1974-75 budget of $208,200, which will make possible a drop in the tax rate of about 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation, according to board president James Murray.

The budget is almost $75,000 less than last year's. The tax rate for 1973-74 was 79 cents, but Murray estimated that this year's rate will be 64 cents.

The biggest decrease in the budget stemmed from a board decision not to buy a new sewage treatment system from the Bio-Kinetics firm of San Rafael. In 1973-74 the district spent the $81,000 originally budgeted for this project on upgrading lines and pumps after it decided not to go ahead with the Bio-Kinetics proposal, Murray noted.

County Retreats From Pool Plan

Approval of an agreement to share in construction of a 50-meter swimming pool at Indian Valley Colleges hit a new snag yesterday as county supervisors demanded greater public use. (Other supervisors stories, page 1.)

The proposed contract between the college district and county listed county use during summer months and said year-round use should be negotiated later.

Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini and Robert A. Roumiguiere objected strongly, saying the hours of public use should be negotiated now, before the contract is signed.

Under it, the county will put $273,000 toward the pool — the difference between building a regular-sized pool and an Olympic-sized pool.

Also questioned yesterday was a requirement that the county help finance maintenance and operating costs. Both Giacomini and Roumiguiere said that had never been agreed to by the county.

The discussion was sparked by Betty Machado, a trustee of the Novato Unified School District, who urged the county to stay out of the deal. She said a similar "community pool" at Novato High School has become virtually a school pool, with limited public hours.

The discussion opened up past arguments between Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste and Roumiguiere over where to locate the 50-meter pool. Roumiguiere favors McInnis Park.

Giacomini, noting the contract called for public use during the summer only, said "we're not getting anything, the public could use it during the summer anyway."

At his urging, the contract was referred back so public use provisions on a year-round basis can be added.

Board Won't Budge On Retirement Issue

Marin County supervisors yesterday refused to budge from the county's latest offer to the probation and social workers union in the three-year dispute over a county retirement plan.

Under the latest offer, members of Local 535, Service Employees International Union, will be offered a choice of two retirement plans depending on their willingness to pay back premiums.

The issue stems from a 1971 decision by county supervisors to provide an "enriched retirement system" to county employees.

In acting, however, they failed to negotiate the new system with employee groups and Local 535 sued, winning a decision that the county must negotiate the matter.

Other employees began paying higher premiums — for higher benefits — immediately, but the higher premiums paid by probation and social workers were refunded.

Attorney Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., a former Marin Municipal Court judge, represented the union yesterday before supervisors, saying the county offer was not acceptable.

He said the union members should be placed in the "enriched retirement system" but not be required to pay back premiums to 1971.

The county erred and the county should pay those premiums, he said.

Supervisors disagreed, saying to do so would cost taxpayers up to $127,000 and would not be equitable to 1,100 other employees who have paid higher premiums during the last three years.

Goldstein offered a compromise that the county and union members split the cost, if any, but his offer was rejected.

The union will next ask the county retirement board to consider the matter.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

FUNDS — Approved a shift of $20,000 budgeted for road improvements to cover the cost of a soils study of the Oak Manor slide near Fairfax. The study will proceed once homeowners agree not to hold the county liable for future damages that might occur as a result of the soils work.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed former Supervisor Vera Schultz to the county auditorium, cultural and fair advisory board; Ruth Lederman and Sue Olive to the human rights commission; and Ed Ryken to the North Bay Senior Planning Council Advisory Board.

TRIP — Authorized supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. to travel to Washington D. C. to testify at congressional hearings on acquiring additional lands for the Point Reyes National Seashore and Golden Gate National Recreation Area. The hearings are set for Aug. 20.

ROAD — Designated North San Pedro Road as the county's top choice for a share of federal road funds to be shared among Marin's 11 cities and the county. Cost of the North San Pedro project is about $1 million.

LEGISLATION — Voted 3-to-2, supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. dissenting, to support state legislation creating a Bay Area planning agency. It would merge the water quality control board, air pollution control board, Bay Conservation and Development Commission and Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

Pixie Trail Bike Path Top Project

The Homestead Valley Community Association last night decided that a bike trail up Pixie Trail towards Mount Tamalpais would be one of the first projects which should be undertaken with any money coming to the area through the state park bond issue.

Other projects picked were a new tot lot at Homestead School and repairs for a swimming hole once used on a creek which runs through Three Groves, a recently acquired park in Homestead Valley on Montford Avenue.

Kalmbach Now Serving Term

LOMPOC (UPI) — Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's former personal lawyer, has begun serving his term for Watergate-related offenses at the minimum security federal prison.

He was assigned to work on construction of a sewage treatment plant.

Kalmbach, 52, once one of the most prominent lawyers in Southern California, was sentenced to six to 18 months by U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica in Washington, D.C. after pleading guilty to two counts of violating campaign practice laws in the 1970 elections.

Fairfax Tennis Club Is Approved

A $1 million tennis club project near Fairfax was approved unanimously yesterday by Marin County supervisors over the objections of a well-organized band of neighbors.

Approval of the Redwood Racquet Club project followed lengthy debate over its merits and demerits before an audience of protesting Monte Cristo area residents.

The decision brought groans and recriminations from some residents, one of whom told newsmen after the meeting: "Make sure you tell how we were ripped off."

The project, planned for the 20-acre Camp Lilienthal site on Bolinas Road, calls for eight tennis courts and related facilities.

Project backers, represented yesterday by San Rafael attorney Albert Bianchi, said the club would be a better use of the site than 20 homes as allowed under current zoning.

Architect Robert Arrigoni, brother of Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., charged that much of the protest was prompted by misleading information circulated by protesting neighbors.

The neighbors, however, represented by Novato attorney Joseph A. Forest, countered that noise and traffic generated by the club would be objectionable in the quiet residential area.

Forest also charged that the club was commercial in nature, a use not permitted in areas zoned for residential use.

Supervisors were not persuaded, however.

"I don't think this use will be detrimental to the area," Supervisor Arrigoni said, adding homes would cause greater damage to the picturesque property.

(Arrigoni earlier questioned whether he had a conflict-of-interest because of his brother's involvement and was told by the county counsel's office that he didn't.)

Other supervisors agreed. Chairman Michael Wornum added that the use "will be less of a nuisance than the boy scouts who used to use the site."

The land is being sold to W. Shell Fuller, a San Francisco real estate broker, for $200,000 by the boy scouts.

Kalmbach Now Serving Term

LOMPOC (UPI) — Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's former personal lawyer, has begun serving his term for Watergate-related offenses at the minimum security federal prison.

He was assigned to work on construction of a sewage treatment plant.

Kalmbach, 52, once one of the most prominent lawyers in Southern California, was sentenced to six to 18 months by U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica in Washington, D.C. after pleading guilty to two counts of violating campaign practice laws in the 1970 elections.

Fairfax Tennis Club Is Approved

A $1 million tennis club project near Fairfax was approved unanimously yesterday by Marin County supervisors over the objections of a well-organized band of neighbors.

Approval of the Redwood Racquet Club project followed lengthy debate over its merits and demerits before an audience of protesting Monte Cristo area residents.

The decision brought groans and recriminations from some residents, one of whom told newsmen after the meeting: "Make sure you tell how we were ripped off."

The project, planned for the 20-acre Camp Lilienthal site on Bolinas Road, calls for eight tennis courts and related facilities.

Project backers, represented yesterday by San Rafael attorney Albert Bianchi, said the club would be a better use of the site than 20 homes as allowed under current zoning.

Architect Robert Arrigoni, brother of Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., charged that much of the protest was prompted by misleading information circulated by protesting neighbors.

The neighbors, however, represented by Novato attorney Joseph A. Forest, countered that noise and traffic generated by the club would be objectionable in the quiet residential area.

Forest also charged that the club was commercial in nature, a use not permitted in areas zoned for residential use.

Supervisors were not persuaded, however.

"I don't think this use will be detrimental to the area," Supervisor Arrigoni said, adding homes would cause greater damage to the picturesque property.

(Arrigoni earlier questioned whether he had a conflict-of-interest because of his brother's involvement and was told by the county counsel's office that he didn't.)

Other supervisors agreed. Chairman Michael Wornum added that the use "will be less of a nuisance than the boy scouts who used to use the site."

The land is being sold to W. Shell Fuller, a San Francisco real estate broker, for $200,000 by the boy scouts.

Libyan Regime Is Blasted By Sadat

CAIRO (UPI) — In his strongest denunciation of the Libyan regime in nearly three months, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has accused Col. Moammar Khadafy of "playing with fire" and sabotaging attempts for a dialogue between the two countries.

In a 10-page letter to Khadafy and his ruling Revolutionary Command Council published today, Sadat blamed the deepening gulf between the neighboring Arab states on recent violence and propaganda attacks against Egypt and the recall of Libyan Mirage jet fighters stationed here since the October Middle East war.

Arrigoni Pension In Another Bill

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — Special legislation to benefit Marin County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. — by qualifying him for a 40 per cent boost in retirement pension — has been amended into a bill awaiting final passage.

Present law prohibits Arrigoni from getting retirement benefits from his four years on the Fairfax city council because it was an unpaid position when he held it. The special legislation would abolish the restriction.

A spokesman for Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, who had the amendment introduced at Arrigoni's request, said the supervisor apparently was its sole beneficiary in the state.

The amendment was tacked onto AB 3275 by Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-San Bernardino, while the retirement bill was in a Senate committee just before the June recess. The measure needs only Assembly concurrence in the amendment to send it to the governor for his signature into law. It would be effective immediately upon his signature.

The legislation will permit Arrigoni to add the four years of extra retirement credit by paying the state retirement system both his share and the county's share for the four years.

(Officials in the county treasurer's office, which administers the retirement program, said no computations had been made to show how much Arrigoni will have to pay or how much he will get back in pension payments.)

If Arrigoni leaves office after his present term expires in two years, he will qualify when he is 55 for 10 years of retirement pension. This will include eight years as a supervisor and two in the armed forces.

The present pension system pays beneficiaries 16.67 per cent of their last annual salary if they have 10 years of credit, and 23.33 per cent if they have 14 years. The difference of 6.66 per cent is equal to $1,230 a year under the supervisor's current annual salary of $18,480.

The actual amount paid Arrigoni will be more, since the system adds up to 3 per cent a year for cost of living increases after payments begin. The supervisor's salary which went up 10 per cent this year, also may rise again before he retires.

Arrigoni is 43 now, thus will start drawing his pension 10 years after he leaves office. His wife would get 60 per cent of the pension until her death if he died first.

The measure was requested privately by Arrigoni, and was not part of the county's official legislative program. The bill requires that the board of supervisors approve adding the four years of credit to Arrigoni's pension.

County Bus Cost Bill Is Dropped By Behr

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to save Marin County at least $250,000 a year in payments to the Golden Gate Bridge District for disputed bus costs has been dropped by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

The measure was introduced in April by Rep. John L. Burton, D-Sixth District, while he was an assemblyman. It was drafted by Marin County Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini.

Burton turned the bill over to Behr after his election to Congress in June. (The senator's decision was backed unanimously yesterday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.)

Behr said the legislation (AB 3595) "had served its purpose as a catalyst for this year's agreement" on a payment by the county to the bridge district. The compromise calls for payment of $85,000. The district had asked $351,000.

The dispute is over the cost of carrying intracounty passengers on intercounty buses operated by the bridge district. The county has argued for years that these passengers produce extra revenue on buses that would run anyway.

Behr said the Metropolitan Transportation Commission should arbitrate the dispute next fiscal year.

Boardwalks' Exemption From Controls Sought

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation exempting the Greenbrae and Larkspur boardwalks from Bay Conservation and Development Commission jurisdiction was introduced yesterday.

Owners of undeveloped property in the boardwalk area objected that the commission's limits on bay fill bar virtually any use of their parcels. The commission requested the legislation after it concluded it never intended to have control over the boardwalk areas.

Also introduced yesterday was an amendment deleting the requirement that the commission draw up an annual list of properties to be acquired for public use within three years. The listing has had no effect on public purchase of bay properties, the commission's staff said.

Both provisions were amended into SB 2155, a bill by Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, that is pending in the Senate.

Man Held On Probe Of Burglary

A Mill Valley man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglary and possession of stolen property after unusual ceramic pots reported stolen from a Sausalito house were found in the living room of his home.

Police said the pots containing house plants were of a unique and easily identifiable design and bore the initials of the burglary victim on the bottom.

Held in lieu of $10,000 bail was Steve Constantine Negoesco, 22, of 156 Florence Avenue. He was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Investigators said officers from Sausalito and Mill Valley went to Negoesco's home at 11:45 a.m. to question him about several recent burglaries.

Police reported that the young man tried to evade them by hiding in bushes behind the house. He was discovered and taken inside the residence, where the pots were found.

Bagley Bill Would Limit Donations

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A $50,000 limit on donations from single campaign contributors was proposed yesterday in a bill (AB 1122) introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The limit also would apply to businesses which are 25 per cent or more owned by the contributor.

Bagley, the Republican nominee for state controller, said the measure was necessary because the recently passed Proposition 9 "is silent on the subject" of a maximum gift.

He denounced his Democratic opponent for controller, Assemblyman Kenneth Cory of Garden Grove, for accepting primary campaign contributions totaling $508,000 from two Southern California businessmen. They were Louis Cella, owner of a chain of Orange County hospitals, and Mission Viejo developer Richard O'Neill.

The newspaper said Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung and his supporters have found it undesirable to have in the cities large numbers of young people who have acquired a taste for "challenging established authorities."

No. 1125 July 24, 31, Aug. 7, 14, 1974

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Any individual, firm or agency who plans to build or place a structure in, on, under, or over the navigable waters of the United States must first obtain a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Such Permits are also required for any dredging, filling, or dredge disposal in navigable waters. Regulations governing the administrative procedures on permits for activities in navigable or ocean waters were published in the Federal Register on April 3, 1974 as 33 CFR 209.120.

Navigable waters are any waters which are, have been, or can be used for commercial or navigation purposes. Federal permit authority extends over the entire surface of such a water body. Thus, any work in areas presently or formerly subject to tidal action (below the plane of mean higher high water, including unfilled areas behind dikes) or below the ordinary high water mark of rivers and streams may require a Corps permit.

The Federal Corps of Engineers permit is required in addition to any State or local permits. Private ownership of land under or beside the water has no effect on the requirement. If work is done in navigable waters as described above without a permit from the Corps, civil or criminal actions (including removal) can be instituted pursuant to 33 U. S. Code Secs. 406, 407, and 1319. Any questions regarding permits for work in navigable waters may be directed to the Regulatory Functions Branch, San Francisco District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco 94102, telephone: (415) 556-5178 or 556-5489.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Any individual, firm or agency who plans to build or place a structure in, on, under, or over the navigable waters of the United States must first obtain a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Such Permits are also required for any dredging, filling, or dredge disposal in navigable waters. Regulations governing the administrative procedures on permits for activities in navigable or ocean waters were published in the Federal Register on April 3, 1974 as 33 CFR 209.120.

Navigable waters are any waters which are, have been, or can be used for commercial or navigation purposes. Federal permit authority extends over the entire surface of such a water body. Thus, any work in areas presently or formerly subject to tidal action (below the plane of mean higher high water, including unfilled areas behind dikes) or below the ordinary high water mark of rivers and streams may require a Corps permit.

The Federal Corps of Engineers permit is required in addition to any State or local permits. Private ownership of land under or beside the water has no effect on the requirement. If work is done in navigable waters as described above without a permit from the Corps, civil or criminal actions (including removal) can be instituted pursuant to 33 U. S. Code Secs. 406, 407, and 1319. Any questions regarding permits for work in navigable waters may be directed to the Regulatory Functions Branch, San Francisco District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco 94102, telephone: (415) 556-5178 or 556-5489.

Arrest Made In Pipe Bombing

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — Ricky A. Young, 22, a laborer, was arrested yesterday on charges he mailed a pipe bomb which exploded and killed a superior court judge.

U.S. postal inspectors said Young was picked up in Richland, Wash., and ordered by a federal magistrate to be held without bail.

Judge James Lawless was killed June 3 in his office. The bomb was mailed to the Benton County Courthouse, and a law clerk carried the package into the judge's office.

Lawless had sentenced Young to a year in jail in 1971 on a burglary conviction.

A Fishy Mystery

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Police inspector John Sole ordered Constable Philip Herring to investigate a theft yesterday. The missing property was a box of haddock.

Lindsay Fired By Station

By FRANK S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — The possible misuse of television by a politician is always a danger for the American political process.

WCBS-TV in New York recognized this possiblity of compromising its fairness in its election reporting this week when it fired ex-Mayor John V. Lindsay, a former presidential candidate, because he endorsed a candidate for governor.

Lindsay was hired to join the WCBS-TV election team for the September primary and November election. His comments might have been informative, especially from someone as colorful as Lindsay.

Certainly, the actual endorsement is not critical to the future of New York politics. He just doesn't have the political clout he once did.

But the question of the possible misuse of television by a charismatic politician such as Lindsay is disturbing, not just for this election, but for future elections on the national level. Lindsay will be a regular on ABC-TV's upcoming morning show "AM America." And it will give him an incredible and unprecedented forum to reach the American public.

WCBS made the right move after Lindsay disregarded the "no-politics" pledge of his staff to the station. ABC, however, someday may be put in a similar situation.

And before Lindsay makes his first broadcast, ABC might ask its new employe: Why should he be provided with a forum that no other politician will have?

For the ratings?

Certainly Lindsay would argue that he is out of politics and is looking for a new career in the medium that helped advance him.

But who's kidding who?

Lindsay made an unsuccessful bid for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination and anytime a politican gets hit by White House fever, he is smitten for life. And what does the Howard Samuel's endorsement mean? Support for Lindsay in a Senate race? Who knows, but his hat is still in the political ring.

WCBS should have been a little more perceptive before Lindsay was hired. But the station has its assurances. Lindsay's media man David Garth told the station the former mayor was out of politics and would make no endorsements.

"We had been assured that Lindsay would stay out of the political arena for the near future or at least until after the election," said Ed Joyce, WCBS-TV's news director, after he dropped Lindsay on Monday. "Lindsay was clearly defined as a non-partisan who could not endorse anybody."

Joyce said that Lindsay's endorsement, which was made in Paris Sunday, was a "surprise."

"When I heard about the endorsement yesterday, I said to myself ... this blows it!'" said Joyce.

Joyce admitted, despite Lindsay's avowed disinterest in politics, he was going to take a hard look at Lindsay before he made his first broadcast for the station. Lindsay would undergo tests in advance and a member of the WCBS-TV broadcast team would report back to Joyce on any partisanship.

"He would have gotten the hook if he showed any favoritism," said Joyce. "He would have been removed."

However, ABC said Lindsay's job on "AM America" will be unaffected by the endorsement.

The show's executive producer, Dennis Doty, said Lindsay had been hired to "provide a point of view, insight and style that is John Lindsay on everything from government, sports, society and the arts."

He said that since the show was scheduled to premiere after the November election, the endorsement had no effect on Lindsay's position.

However, if Lindsay makes an endorsement while in the employ of ABC, he would have to take a leave of absence.

"ABC policy does not permit news correspondents or commentators to make any endorsements at any level unless thay take a leave of absence," said Elmer Lower, president ABC News.

Drunks Find It Hard To Drive These Days

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The higher cost of liquor, the diminished availability of gasoline, and the general depressed economy, may be forcing California's drunken drivers off the road, a leading law enforcement official said yesterday.

Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski said during an interview with UPI that there has been a 14 per cent decrease in the number of California highway fatalities involving intoxicated drivers so far this year.

During the first seven months of this year, 2,094 persons have been killed on the state's highways. Usually, the percentage of drunks involved in the fatal accidents runs about 50 per cent. But so far this year it has dropped to 36 per cent.

Pudinski said the cost of drinks and the late-hour scarcity of gasoline is accounting for fewer intoxicated drivers on the road. He said other factors also are responsible, such as a lower speed limit, year around daylight savings and the Highway Patrol's increasing crackdown on drunks.

"The energy crisis and the economy have somewhat changed the driving habits of drinking drivers," Pudinski said.

He said persons are now using the money for four or five drinks to purchase a bottle of liquor to drink at home.

"I'm sure the bar people don't like it," said Pudinski," But I'm pleased."

Other law enforcement officials put it more bluntly.

They said if a driver traditionally stopped at a bar and had seven or eight drinks after work he no longer can afford it. Now he takes that money and buys "a good bottle of liquor."

At night, they said, if a driver is sitting in a bar and he remembers his fuel gage is low, he leaves early to assure that a gasoline station is still open.

"Once he is out of the bar and at the gas station it is doubtful he will return to the bar," one Highway Patrol employee said.

Although patrol officials feel there are fewer drunken drivers on the road, figures show they are catching more of them.

This, Pudinski said, is due to an increased effort of the patrol and local law enforcement to spot and stop drunken drivers.

The patrol last year arrested 120,000 drunken drivers. This year they are projecting a record 130,000 such arrests. If local law enforcement stays abreast with the patrol there will be nearly a quarter-million drunks arrested on California highways.

Pudinski also said officers — who have not been with the state force for long — are learning how to spot drunken drivers on freeways and secondary highways.

Novato Officer Given Promotion

Ronald K. Buzzard, 32, a 10-year law enforcement veteran, has been promoted to sergeant in the Novato Police Department.

Buzzard, top man on the eligibility list, became a patrol sergeant last week.

He has been a member of the department since March, 1972, and had been working as a detective. He previously served with the California Highway Patrol from 1966-72 and the West Covina Police Department in Los Angeles County from 1964-66.

Bicycle Event Draws 26 Riders

The Cotati-Rohnert Park Recreation Department's bicycle marathon attracted 26 riders on Saturday and raised at least $200, a spokesman for the fundraiser said yesterday.

About half the riders have turned in their pledges so far after collecting from sponsors who promised to contribute amounts ranging from 25 cents to $1.50 per mile ridden. The total collected so far is about $106, according to Deanna Jones of the department.

The money will be used to help establish a teen-age activity program in Rohnert Park and a swimming program in Cotati, she said.

Medical Pioneer Receives Award

STANFORD (UPI) — The Stanford Alumni Association has awarded its Herbert Hoover Medal for distinguished service to Dr. Russel Van Arsdale Lee, a pioneer in group medical practice.

Lee founded the Palo Alto Medical Clinic in 1930 despite opposition from the medical establishment. He also set up the Palo Alto Medical Research Foundation and Channing House, a residential retirement home.

Arrest Made In Pipe Bombing

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — Ricky A. Young, 22, a laborer, was arrested yesterday on charges he mailed a pipe bomb which exploded and killed a superior court judge.

U.S. postal inspectors said Young was picked up in Richland, Wash., and ordered by a federal magistrate to be held without bail.

Judge James Lawless was killed June 3 in his office. The bomb was mailed to the Benton County Courthouse, and a law clerk carried the package into the judge's office.

Lawless had sentenced Young to a year in jail in 1971 on a burglary conviction.

A Fishy Mystery

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Police inspector John Sole ordered Constable Philip Herring to investigate a theft yesterday. The missing property was a box of haddock.

Lindsay Fired By Station

By FRANK S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — The possible misuse of television by a politician is always a danger for the American political process.

WCBS-TV in New York recognized this possiblity of compromising its fairness in its election reporting this week when it fired ex-Mayor John V. Lindsay, a former presidential candidate, because he endorsed a candidate for governor.

Lindsay was hired to join the WCBS-TV election team for the September primary and November election. His comments might have been informative, especially from someone as colorful as Lindsay.

Certainly, the actual endorsement is not critical to the future of New York politics. He just doesn't have the political clout he once did.

But the question of the possible misuse of television by a charismatic politician such as Lindsay is disturbing, not just for this election, but for future elections on the national level. Lindsay will be a regular on ABC-TV's upcoming morning show "AM America." And it will give him an incredible and unprecedented forum to reach the American public.

WCBS made the right move after Lindsay disregarded the "no-politics" pledge of his staff to the station. ABC, however, someday may be put in a similar situation.

And before Lindsay makes his first broadcast, ABC might ask its new employe: Why should he be provided with a forum that no other politician will have?

For the ratings?

Certainly Lindsay would argue that he is out of politics and is looking for a new career in the medium that helped advance him.

But who's kidding who?

Lindsay made an unsuccessful bid for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination and anytime a politican gets hit by White House fever, he is smitten for life. And what does the Howard Samuel's endorsement mean? Support for Lindsay in a Senate race? Who knows, but his hat is still in the political ring.

WCBS should have been a little more perceptive before Lindsay was hired. But the station has its assurances. Lindsay's media man David Garth told the station the former mayor was out of politics and would make no endorsements.

"We had been assured that Lindsay would stay out of the political arena for the near future or at least until after the election," said Ed Joyce, WCBS-TV's news director, after he dropped Lindsay on Monday. "Lindsay was clearly defined as a non-partisan who could not endorse anybody."

Joyce said that Lindsay's endorsement, which was made in Paris Sunday, was a "surprise."

"When I heard about the endorsement yesterday, I said to myself ... this blows it!'" said Joyce.

Joyce admitted, despite Lindsay's avowed disinterest in politics, he was going to take a hard look at Lindsay before he made his first broadcast for the station. Lindsay would undergo tests in advance and a member of the WCBS-TV broadcast team would report back to Joyce on any partisanship.

"He would have gotten the hook if he showed any favoritism," said Joyce. "He would have been removed."

However, ABC said Lindsay's job on "AM America" will be unaffected by the endorsement.

The show's executive producer, Dennis Doty, said Lindsay had been hired to "provide a point of view, insight and style that is John Lindsay on everything from government, sports, society and the arts."

He said that since the show was scheduled to premiere after the November election, the endorsement had no effect on Lindsay's position.

However, if Lindsay makes an endorsement while in the employ of ABC, he would have to take a leave of absence.

"ABC policy does not permit news correspondents or commentators to make any endorsements at any level unless thay take a leave of absence," said Elmer Lower, president ABC News.

Drunks Find It Hard To Drive These Days

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The higher cost of liquor, the diminished availability of gasoline, and the general depressed economy, may be forcing California's drunken drivers off the road, a leading law enforcement official said yesterday.

Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski said during an interview with UPI that there has been a 14 per cent decrease in the number of California highway fatalities involving intoxicated drivers so far this year.

During the first seven months of this year, 2,094 persons have been killed on the state's highways. Usually, the percentage of drunks involved in the fatal accidents runs about 50 per cent. But so far this year it has dropped to 36 per cent.

Pudinski said the cost of drinks and the late-hour scarcity of gasoline is accounting for fewer intoxicated drivers on the road. He said other factors also are responsible, such as a lower speed limit, year around daylight savings and the Highway Patrol's increasing crackdown on drunks.

"The energy crisis and the economy have somewhat changed the driving habits of drinking drivers," Pudinski said.

He said persons are now using the money for four or five drinks to purchase a bottle of liquor to drink at home.

"I'm sure the bar people don't like it," said Pudinski," But I'm pleased."

Other law enforcement officials put it more bluntly.

They said if a driver traditionally stopped at a bar and had seven or eight drinks after work he no longer can afford it. Now he takes that money and buys "a good bottle of liquor."

At night, they said, if a driver is sitting in a bar and he remembers his fuel gage is low, he leaves early to assure that a gasoline station is still open.

"Once he is out of the bar and at the gas station it is doubtful he will return to the bar," one Highway Patrol employee said.

Although patrol officials feel there are fewer drunken drivers on the road, figures show they are catching more of them.

This, Pudinski said, is due to an increased effort of the patrol and local law enforcement to spot and stop drunken drivers.

The patrol last year arrested 120,000 drunken drivers. This year they are projecting a record 130,000 such arrests. If local law enforcement stays abreast with the patrol there will be nearly a quarter-million drunks arrested on California highways.

Pudinski also said officers — who have not been with the state force for long — are learning how to spot drunken drivers on freeways and secondary highways.

Novato Officer Given Promotion

Ronald K. Buzzard, 32, a 10-year law enforcement veteran, has been promoted to sergeant in the Novato Police Department.

Buzzard, top man on the eligibility list, became a patrol sergeant last week.

He has been a member of the department since March, 1972, and had been working as a detective. He previously served with the California Highway Patrol from 1966-72 and the West Covina Police Department in Los Angeles County from 1964-66.

Bicycle Event Draws 26 Riders

The Cotati-Rohnert Park Recreation Department's bicycle marathon attracted 26 riders on Saturday and raised at least $200, a spokesman for the fundraiser said yesterday.

About half the riders have turned in their pledges so far after collecting from sponsors who promised to contribute amounts ranging from 25 cents to $1.50 per mile ridden. The total collected so far is about $106, according to Deanna Jones of the department.

The money will be used to help establish a teen-age activity program in Rohnert Park and a swimming program in Cotati, she said.

Medical Pioneer Receives Award

STANFORD (UPI) — The Stanford Alumni Association has awarded its Herbert Hoover Medal for distinguished service to Dr. Russel Van Arsdale Lee, a pioneer in group medical practice.

Lee founded the Palo Alto Medical Clinic in 1930 despite opposition from the medical establishment. He also set up the Palo Alto Medical Research Foundation and Channing House, a residential retirement home.

Reserve Fund Causes Split By Trustees

Cotati-Rohnert Park School District trustees last night adopted a $2,503,626 budget by a split 3-2 vote caused by disagreement over the district's need for larger cash reserves.

The budget, about $300,000 higher than last year, will increase the district tax rate by 21 cents per $100 assessed valuation to a total rate of $2.46 per $100, according to Assist. Supt. Robert Plikuhn.

He said the budget increase reflects salary hikes totaling $110,000 and the district's efforts to rebuild the present $40,000 cash reserve back up to $100,000. Trustee Andrew J. Camozzi said he opposes such a large reserve Trustee Anthony Carbone also voted against the budget without voicing any reason, Plikuhn reported.

Trustees also learned that their long campaign to extend the district schools to the junior high and high school level may come to a head tomorrow when the Sonoma County Committee on School District Reorganization gives the latest in a lengthy series of reports on the issue.

The session on whether the Cotati-Rohnert Park District should take over about one-third of the Petaluma High School District's enrollment will begin at 8 p.m. in the gymnasium of Rohnert Park Junior High School, Plikuhn said.

The session conflicts with another meeting he had previously arranged for trustees and parents to hear Dr. Eugene Antone of the State Department of Education speak on "Communicating With Youngsters." That session is set for 7 p.m. in Waldo Rohnert School.

Plikuhn said the trustees made no decision about which meeting they will attend.

The committee on school district reorganization report was not available today for preview.

Dynamite Is Found In UN Building

NEW YORK (UPI) — Security Police today found five sticks of dynamite in the United Nations Meditation room. The city police bomb squad deactivated the explosives without incident.

There was no immediate indication of who planted the dynamite in the room that diplomats use daily for meditation and silent prayer.

"The dynamite was found under a stairwell in a very, very dark corner of the room," A U.N. spokesman said. "It might have been placed there yesterday."

U.N. Security Police notified city police at 10:44 a.m. that they had found a package of explosives in the room, near the visitor's entrance to the U.N. building.

One guard described the Meditation Room as a "very dark room —a perfect place to hide a bomb." He said the room was checked each morning because of this and it was during the routine check that the dynamite was discovered.

Police said the dynamite was wrapped in a brown paper bag. They said matches and a cigarette lighter also were found in the room, which is located on the first floor in the northwest corner of the Assembly building.

Doctor Says Inmates Pale But Not Ill

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Inmates in San Quentin's Adjustment Center may become pale for lack of sunning, but it is not physically harmful, a physician testified in a civil rights suit.

The "San Quentin Six" inmates of the adjustment center have asked a federal court to release them from it on grounds that it is cruel and unusual punishment.

Dr. James Kasch testified yesterday before U.S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli that he had examined Johnny Spain, Hugo Pinnel and Luis Talamantas, three of the six, and found them suffering no serious maladies.

Earlier three other physicians testified that the three suffered from dietary inadequacy, hypertension and anxiety. Katz said this was nonsense.

He said the pallid complexion of the convicts was not physically harmful but resulted from a lack of exposure to the sun.

Board Sets Water And Tax Rates

North Marin County Water District directors last night set the tax rate in the Novato area at 8 cents per $100 assessed valuation, down one cent.

Auditor Sage L. Morris said the rate is expected to bring in about $115,000 in revenue to be applied toward retiring bond debt.

Directors also set a tax rate of 66 cents per $100 assessed valuation in the Point Reyes Station Improvement District and increased the water rates at Point Reyes Station-Inverness Park and Olema from 30 to 32 cents per 100 cubic feet.

The board also received notice from District Manager John O. Nelson that three lawyers have appealed North Central Coastal Commission approval of plans for a sewage treatment plant to serve the Coast Guard housing at Point Reyes Station and a hearing will be before the state Coastal Commission Sept. 4.

The appeal filed by John Burroughs of Inverness, Paul Kayfetz of Bolinas and Gary Near of San Francisco claims the district failed to evaluate the seismic hazard at the site adequately and failed to have proper design for flooding of the ponds.

Nelson also reported that bids on construction of the 5-million gallon Pacheco Reservoir were 66 per cent higher than estimated with O. C. Jones and Sons of Berkeley, low bidder, at $1,086,000.

The district is to contribute 31.7 per cent toward the cost and U.S. Development Corp., owner of the property, the remainder. The board postponed awarding a contract until Aug. 20.

$13 Million Budget Is Approved

The San Rafael Board of Education last night adopted an overall budget of $13,160,928 for 1974-75.

The budget is composed of a $6,833,488 high school district program, up from this year's $6,638,341, and a $6,327,440 elementary district program, up from this year's $5,989,988.

Supt. Donald Leisey estimated the high school budget will require a general purpose tax rate of $1.83 per $100 of assessed valuation, down from this year's $2.08 rate, and the elementary school budget will reqqire a general purpose rate of $1.74 per $100 of assessed valuation, down from this year's $1.96 rate. Total tax rates in all cases are substantially higher.

The board last night also decided to boost by five cents the cost of all items except drinks in the school system's cafeterias, the superintendent said.

The board also approved a $47,400 contract with Marin County Roofing, low bidder, for various roofing jobs, he said.

The board cancelled its regulary scheduled Aug. 13 meeting and next meets at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 27.

Reserve Fund Causes Split By Trustees

Cotati-Rohnert Park School District trustees last night adopted a $2,503,626 budget by a split 3-2 vote caused by disagreement over the district's need for larger cash reserves.

The budget, about $300,000 higher than last year, will increase the district tax rate by 21 cents per $100 assessed valuation to a total rate of $2.46 per $100, according to Assist. Supt. Robert Plikuhn.

He said the budget increase reflects salary hikes totaling $110,000 and the district's efforts to rebuild the present $40,000 cash reserve back up to $100,000. Trustee Andrew J. Camozzi said he opposes such a large reserve Trustee Anthony Carbone also voted against the budget without voicing any reason, Plikuhn reported.

Trustees also learned that their long campaign to extend the district schools to the junior high and high school level may come to a head tomorrow when the Sonoma County Committee on School District Reorganization gives the latest in a lengthy series of reports on the issue.

The session on whether the Cotati-Rohnert Park District should take over about one-third of the Petaluma High School District's enrollment will begin at 8 p.m. in the gymnasium of Rohnert Park Junior High School, Plikuhn said.

The session conflicts with another meeting he had previously arranged for trustees and parents to hear Dr. Eugene Antone of the State Department of Education speak on "Communicating With Youngsters." That session is set for 7 p.m. in Waldo Rohnert School.

Plikuhn said the trustees made no decision about which meeting they will attend.

The committee on school district reorganization report was not available today for preview.

Dynamite Is Found In UN Building

NEW YORK (UPI) — Security Police today found five sticks of dynamite in the United Nations Meditation room. The city police bomb squad deactivated the explosives without incident.

There was no immediate indication of who planted the dynamite in the room that diplomats use daily for meditation and silent prayer.

PRACTICING FOR AMERICA'S CUP BID

Valiant (right), one of four American 12-meter yachts vying for the right to defend America's Cup next month, sailed on as the two Australian entries — Southern Cross (left) and Gretel II — practiced off the coast of Newport, R.I. yesterday. One of the Australian yachts will meet the French entry France in a preliminary series to choose the challenger for America's Cup.

ABOUT SETTLING NFL STRIKE

Mediator Is 'Very Hopeful'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The striking pro football players and the National Football League owners returned to another bout of bargaining talks today with the government's chief labor mediator, who described progress toward settlement as "very hopeful."

W.J. Usery Jr., head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, called both sides back for talks at 9 a.m. EDT in an effort to end the 37-day-old dispute. He said developments today and tomorrow would be "very critical".

At the end of a five-and-a half-hour session with the NFL Players Association and the owners' Management Council yesterday, Usery commented: "I am more hopeful. I don't want to use the word optimistic, but I am very hopeful."

Usery renewed the talks after a weekend which saw both sides in the strike score psychological points. Low attendance marked almost every one of the first 12 pre-season games played with a resultant dollar cost to the owners. On the other hand, a number of top stars such as quarterbacks Bob Griese, Roger Staubach, John Hadl and Terry Bradshaw broke ranks to report to their team training camps.

There was no assurance that the strike would end before this weekend when every NFL team swings into action in an exhibition game.

Usery met throughout most of yesterday's session with key members of the two bargaining teams—Ed Garvey, executive director of the Players Association and Theodore W. Kheel Jr., special labor consultant for the owners. Nine player representatives and six owners also were on hand.

At the end of the day, Usery said: "I was very impressed with their attitudes and their desire to get on with it, to dig in as hard as they can to find a resolution to their problem. For the first time we have seen a genuine desire for a settlement."

Elsewhere, name veterans continued to drift into camps. Middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti and tackle Norm Evans joined World Champion Miami while safety Steve Preece became the fourth Los Angeles starter to come to camp. Joining Preece yesterday were backup quarterback James Harris and second-year cornerback Bill Drake.

Starting tackle Jon Kolb joined Pittsburgh and two starters — cornerback Pete Athas and kicker Pete Gogolak —and return specialist Rocky Thompson reported to the New York Giants.

A's Jackson Compliments Jenkins

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — After swinging and missing at yet another of Ferguson Jenkins' curve balls Tuesday night, Oakland's Reggie Jackson yelled out to the pitcher:

"Hey, quit making it look so easy."

But Jenkins went right on making it look easy all night long in recording his third shutout and his second against Oakland.

The 1-0 Texas victory over the A's also improved Jenkins' record to 15-10 and went down as one of the very best he has thrown this year.

"Fergie pitched a awfully good game," Ranger Manager Bill Martin said. "He was in control all the way."

Jenkins is now 3-0 against Oakland this season but he proclaims no special magic against the two time defending world champions.

"You just have to go out after them," Jenkins said. "They are the best ball club in the division so you have to go after them. They weren't hitting my curve ball too well and I kept getting ahead of them with my fast ball and then throwing the curve."

It was Jenkins' curve that got him out of the only jam he was in all night. With two out in the sixth, first baseman Mike Hargrove booted Claudell Washington's grounder and Jenkins walked Sal Bando to bring up the dreaded Jackson, who has mauled the Rangers all year.

Jenkins struck out Jackson, feeding him a slow curve on the outside corner.

Jenkins' counterpart, John Odom, also pitched well but was the victim of an untypical field lapse.

Odom, who had been scheduled to make only his third start of the season tonight, was moved up a day because of chest pains suffered by sched-

San Francisco Castoffs Help In Flag Drives

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Juan Marichal and Orlando Cepeda staged a couple of unscheduled "old timers day" celebrations last night to the delight of the Boston Red Sox and Kansas City Royals.

The 35-year-old Marichal and the 36-year-old Cepeda, former teammates at San Francisco, seemed pretty much washed up a few weeks ago but may still play important roles in the American League's eastern and western races respectively.

A healthy Marichal could prove decisive for the Red Sox in the eastern race and a slugging Cepeda might help the Royals make a late run on the western-leading Oakland A's.

Marichal, who was making only his second appearance since May 15, pitched three-hit ball for seven innings and Diego Segui finished up a 6-0 victory which gave the Red Sox a sweep of their doubleheader with the Milwaukee Brewers. The Red Sox won the first game, 6-3.

Cepeda, who has been playing on weak knees for a season and a half, made his debut with the Royals a success by hitting a two-run single in the fifth inning and making two hits in Kansas City's 17-3 rout of the Minnesota Twins.

Baltimore beat New York 4-1, Chicago downed California 12-2, Cleveland downed Detroit 9-7 and Texas shaded the A's 1-0 in the only other AL games.

Orioles 4, Yankees 1

Paul Blair drove in two runs with a double and two singles for the Orioles, who tagged Dick Tidrow with his ninth loss against eight wins.

Indians 9, Tigers 7

White Sox 12, Angels 2

Ken Henderson capped a seven-run second inning with a bases-loaded triple and added two doubles to help Wilbur Wood coast to his 17th victory as the White Sox routed California.

Braves' Star Nears Ruth's RBIs Record

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The ghost of Babe Ruth still haunts Henry Aaron.

The 40-year-old superstar of the Atlanta Braves, who became baseball's all-time home run king earlier this season when he bested the Babe's career record, is moving at a rapid pace toward another one of the Bambino's golden marks — the record for most career runs batted in.

Aaron moved to within 27 of setting an RBI standard last night when he drove in four runs with a pair of homers while leading the Braves to a 5-2 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

The Braves have only 52 games remaining and Aaron, who figures to sit out at least 25 per cent of those, will have to push hard to surpass Ruth's career RBI total of 2,217.

In other NL games, Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 6-3 in 10 innings, Houston routed San Francisco 13-4, Pittsburgh edged New York 9-8 in 11 innings, Philadelphia beat Chicago 8-3 and St. Louis swept Montreal 5-4 and 9-4.

Reds 4, Dodgers 3

Johnny Bench's two-run homer off ace reliever Mike Marshall with one out in the 10th inning touched off a three-run rally which enabled the Reds to snap the Dodgers' eight-game winning streak and move to within 6½ games of the NL West Division leaders.

Pirates 9, Mets 8

Gene Clines scored an unearned run on a throwing error by reliever Tug McGraw in the 11th inning to give the Pirates a victory over the Mets.

Phils 8, Cubs 3

Willie Montanez hit his first career grand slam and Jay Johnstone collected a pair of homers to help Steve Carlton to his 14th win as the Phillies whipped the Cubs.

Cardinals 5-9, Expos 4-4

Mike Tyson drove in three runs in the first game to help Lynn McGlothen register his 13th victory and Joe Torre collected four hits in the nightcap as the Cardinals swept a pair and increased their lead in the NL East over Philadelphia.

WFL Method Of Counting Fans To End

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Has the World Football League been lying about its attendance figures?

Well, er, ah, yes! And, um, then again, no!

After two teams spilled the beans yesterday that their announced attendance figures for the year had taken into account all "freebies," WFL President Gary L. Davidson said that the league had adopted that practice to start but would dispense with it by Sept. 11.

The Philadelphia Bell disclosed Monday that 60,000 of the 110,000 fans who saw the Bell's first two regular season home games either paid a discount fee or nothing at all.

The Jacksonville Sharks said 44,000 of the more than 100,000 fans who attended their first two home games paid nothing for their tickets. As many as 57,000 are expected at Legion Field in Birmingham, Ala., where the unbeaten Americans play host to the winless Detroit Wheels.

In other games tonight, unbeaten Chicago entertains Florida, Southern California plays host to New York, Memphis visits Philadelphia and winless Portland entertains Houston.

Changes Loom For Beleaguered Giants

By JOE SARGIS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If Wes Westrum gets his way, and he probably will, you'll need a new scorecard to recognize the 1975 San Francisco Giants.

Westrum hasn't given up entirely on the 1974 Giants, at least not publicly, but already the manager is thinking ahead to next year.

"I have my ideas about who can play and who can't," Westrum said last night after watching the Houston Astros rock four of his pitchers for 18 hits enroute to a 13-4 victory. The day before, the Astros ripped Giant pitching for 19 hits.

"Obviously, our pitching is thin," said Westrum. "You don't have to be a magician to figure that out, so that's the part of the club that needs the biggest overhauling. There are others on this team who haven't or don't want to produce. I'm not going to mention any names but I've been here long enough now to know who can help us next year."

The Giants, as has been the pattern all year long, are short on fundamentals. In back-to-back losses to the Astros it took one miscue to do them in.

"We can't afford to make one mistake," said Westrum. "When we do it's always the blow that kills. The club is badly in need of work on the little things in this game. Those are the mistakes that are killing us. This should have been done in spring training. I can't start that kind of a program now with less than 50 games to go."

In Jim Barr, John D'Acquisto and Mike Caldwell, who will pitch the three weekend games against Chicago, Westrum has three pretty good starters. From there on there is little to recommend the Giants' pitching staff.

Green Talkative Before Big PGA Tourney

The clubhouse chatter leaves nobody in doubt that another major golf championship is at hand. (See picture, page 38.)

The 56th PGA championship begins tomorrow at the Tangle- begins Tnursday at the Tanglewood Golf Club and the wonder is that nobody has inquired about Hubie Green.

There was a time early this year when Green, a native of Birmingham, Ala., and Johnny Miller, the former U.S. Open champion from San Francisco, were making the tour their own private battleground.

Going into the PGA, Miller has five victories behind him and Green, three. Not surprisingly, they stand 1-2 in the money list, with Miller leading at $204,750 and Green at $160,449.

The 27-year-old Green, one of the most talkative players on the tour, doesn't see the PGA as anything more than just another tournament.

"It's you guys (media) who make it something special. Sure, when I win one of the accepted big-four titles, I can say 'I've been there,' but I've already won three times this year and all those victories were sweet."

To illustrate his point, Green said, "Go tell Victor Regalado he won nothing last week." The Mexican picked up a $40,000 check for winning the Pleasant Valley Classic at Sutton, Mass.

"Apart from my victories, there was one stretch of six weeks when I was in a challenging position every tournament. You just get plain tired, that's all, mentally and physically.

"The heat, the travel, the concentration ... it just gets to you. You have a letdown and somebody says you don't care. It really is stupid. Every pro wants to win each time he goes out on a golf course. It's just that there are a lot of good, young, players around today."

Although Green is in the money, he insists, "I don't play for money only," but he does maintain golf is the toughest of the pro sports.

"Just look at the time we spend away from home. How much time does a pro footballer spend on the road? Or a ballplayer? Us golfers, we get to spend three, possibly four months with our families. The kids grow up and you don't know it.

"But it's a great way to make a living. I enjoy it. I wouldn't have it any other way."

Green finished fourth in last month's British Open on his first visit to England, was tied for ninth in the Masters and tied for 26th in the U.S. Open the week after he won the IGB Philadelphia Classic.

"I'm not playing as well as I like, but I have another day to get my gametogether," he said.

Hubie Green did not wish to discuss the rough, which some of his rivals claimed was unfair, or the weather, which turned wet after two months of uninterrupted sunshine that caused neighborhood farmers a bundle of money.

"What's the point of discussing the course?," Green said. "You have to go out and win the tournament. We all start even. Talking about shots which got away don't help."

And with that Green went out to unravel the mysteries of Tanglewood's 7,050-yards. Not an eyebrow was raised.

The talk was still of Gary, Jack, Johnny, Lee and Tom.

Player expressed satisfaction with his game; Nicklaus arrived late to prepare; Miller, whose wife gave birth to a baby girl July 30, said he was hungry again; Trevino said nothing and Weiskopf said his ailing wrist ailed him no more.

San Francisco Castoffs Help In Flag Drives

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Juan Marichal and Orlando Cepeda staged a couple of unscheduled "old timers day" celebrations last night to the delight of the Boston Red Sox and Kansas City Royals.

The 35-year-old Marichal and the 36-year-old Cepeda, former teammates at San Francisco, seemed pretty much washed up a few weeks ago but may still play important roles in the American League's eastern and western races respectively.

A healthy Marichal could prove decisive for the Red Sox in the eastern race and a slugging Cepeda might help the Royals make a late run on the western-leading Oakland A's.

Marichal, who was making only his second appearance since May 15, pitched three-hit ball for seven innings and Diego Segui finished up a 6-0 victory which gave the Red Sox a sweep of their doubleheader with the Milwaukee Brewers. The Red Sox won the first game, 6-3.

Cepeda, who has been playing on weak knees for a season and a half, made his debut with the Royals a success by hitting a two-run single in the fifth inning and making two hits in Kansas City's 17-3 rout of the Minnesota Twins.

Baltimore beat New York 4-1, Chicago downed California 12-2, Cleveland downed Detroit 9-7 and Texas shaded the A's 1-0 in the only other AL games.

Orioles 4, Yankees 1

Paul Blair drove in two runs with a double and two singles for the Orioles, who tagged Dick Tidrow with his ninth loss against eight wins.

Indians 9, Tigers 7

White Sox 12, Angels 2

Ken Henderson capped a seven-run second inning with a bases-loaded triple and added two doubles to help Wilbur Wood coast to his 17th victory as the White Sox routed California.

Braves' Star Nears Ruth's RBIs Record

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The ghost of Babe Ruth still haunts Henry Aaron.

The 40-year-old superstar of the Atlanta Braves, who became baseball's all-time home run king earlier this season when he bested the Babe's career record, is moving at a rapid pace toward another one of the Bambino's golden marks — the record for most career runs batted in.

Aaron moved to within 27 of setting an RBI standard last night when he drove in four runs with a pair of homers while leading the Braves to a 5-2 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

The Braves have only 52 games remaining and Aaron, who figures to sit out at least 25 per cent of those, will have to push hard to surpass Ruth's career RBI total of 2,217.

In other NL games, Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 6-3 in 10 innings, Houston routed San Francisco 13-4, Pittsburgh edged New York 9-8 in 11 innings, Philadelphia beat Chicago 8-3 and St. Louis swept Montreal 5-4 and 9-4.

Reds 4, Dodgers 3

Johnny Bench's two-run homer off ace reliever Mike Marshall with one out in the 10th inning touched off a three-run rally which enabled the Reds to snap the Dodgers' eight-game winning streak and move to within 6½ games of the NL West Division leaders.

Pirates 9, Mets 8

Gene Clines scored an unearned run on a throwing error by reliever Tug McGraw in the 11th inning to give the Pirates a victory over the Mets.

Phils 8, Cubs 3

Willie Montanez hit his first career grand slam and Jay Johnstone collected a pair of homers to help Steve Carlton to his 14th win as the Phillies whipped the Cubs.

Cardinals 5-9, Expos 4-4

Mike Tyson drove in three runs in the first game to help Lynn McGlothen register his 13th victory and Joe Torre collected four hits in the nightcap as the Cardinals swept a pair and increased their lead in the NL East over Philadelphia.

ABOUT SETTLING NFL STRIKE

Mediator Is 'Very Hopeful'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The striking pro football players and the National Football League owners returned to another bout of bargaining talks today with the government's chief labor mediator, who described progress toward settlement as "very hopeful."

W.J. Usery Jr., head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, called both sides back for talks at 9 a.m. EDT in an effort to end the 37-day-old dispute. He said developments today and tomorrow would be "very critical".

At the end of a five-and-a half-hour session with the NFL Players Association and the owners' Management Council yesterday, Usery commented: "I am more hopeful. I don't want to use the word optimistic, but I am very hopeful."

Usery renewed the talks after a weekend which saw both sides in the strike score psychological points. Low attendance marked almost every one of the first 12 pre-season games played with a resultant dollar cost to the owners. On the other hand, a number of top stars such as quarterbacks Bob Griese, Roger Staubach, John Hadl and Terry Bradshaw broke ranks to report to their team training camps.

There was no assurance that the strike would end before this weekend when every NFL team swings into action in an exhibition game.

Usery met throughout most of yesterday's session with key members of the two bargaining teams—Ed Garvey, executive director of the Players Association and Theodore W. Kheel Jr., special labor consultant for the owners. Nine player representatives and six owners also were on hand.

At the end of the day, Usery said: "I was very impressed with their attitudes and their desire to get on with it, to dig in as hard as they can to find a resolution to their problem. For the first time we have seen a genuine desire for a settlement."

Elsewhere, name veterans continued to drift into camps. Middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti and tackle Norm Evans joined World Champion Miami while safety Steve Preece became the fourth Los Angeles starter to come to camp. Joining Preece yesterday were backup quarterback James Harris and second-year cornerback Bill Drake.

Starting tackle Jon Kolb joined Pittsburgh and two starters — cornerback Pete Athas and kicker Pete Gogolak —and return specialist Rocky Thompson reported to the New York Giants.

A's Jackson Compliments Jenkins

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — After swinging and missing at yet another of Ferguson Jenkins' curve balls Tuesday night, Oakland's Reggie Jackson yelled out to the pitcher:

"Hey, quit making it look so easy."

The 1-0 Texas victory over the A's also improved Jenkins' record to 15-10 and went down as one of the very best he has thrown this year.

"Fergie pitched a awfully good game," Ranger Manager Bill Martin said. "He was in control all the way."

Jenkins is now 3-0 against Oakland this season but he proclaims no special magic against the two time defending world champions.

"You just have to go out after them," Jenkins said. "They are the best ball club in the division so you have to go after them. They weren't hitting my curve ball too well and I kept getting ahead of them with my fast ball and then throwing the curve."

It was Jenkins' curve that got him out of the only jam he was in all night. With two out in the sixth, first baseman Mike Hargrove booted Claudell Washington's grounder and Jenkins walked Sal Bando to bring up the dreaded Jackson, who has mauled the Rangers all year.

Jenkins struck out Jackson, feeding him a slow curve on the outside corner.

Jenkins' counterpart, John Odom, also pitched well but was the victim of an untypical field lapse.

Odom, who had been scheduled to make only his third start of the season tonight, was moved up a day because of chest pains suffered by sched-

Problems Facing Young Giants

The 1974 San Francisco Giants are not going to win the pennant in the National League West. There is no doubt about it. So why, you ask, should you spend good money to go out and see the Giants play? Good question.

There are many reasons for not going out to Candlestick Park to see the Young Giants. My own main reason is Candlestick Park itself. Poorly located in a windswept area, it is a dismal place to watch a game. And who needs all that phony grass (Astro turf). If God (or Abner Doubleday) had Astro turf in mind as a surface for baseball it would have been included in the rule book. In this case, progress has taken a giant step backwards. One need only travel to Oakland to see the game played in its proper setting.

Another reason for not journeying to the City for a game is the team itself. Totally inconsistent, the Giants have shown little or nothing to encourage patriotic support. One need not look back any further than last weekend to see clearly how inconsistent the team can be.

Now that we see that there's no pennant hope, that the park is brutal and that the team is totally unpredictable what possible reason is there for anything but a public execution?

Answer: Faith and Hope.

If the Giants are your team, don't quit on them. The same would be true if your team is San Diego or Minnesota or (heaven forbid) the California Angels. Like Wilkens Micawber in David Copperfield, you have to believe that a better day is just around the corner.

As many a learned man has said the hope of this country is its youth. The same is true of the Giants. The greatest asset the young team has is also the cause of its present plight. If this team is allowed to mature it will be a winner inside of two years.

Trades have to be made. Nothing earth-shattering. Keep a nucleus of Speier, Bonds, Maddox, D'Acquisto, Barr, Caldwell and Miller and then go out and get two pitchers. The reason I mention Miller is that I think he has a chance to be an outstanding third baseman.

Soem realistic goals for this year are: a .500 season, fourth place, 14 wins for D'Acquisto. If one of these goals is reached I'm sure the other two will fall in place.

Notes: Mike Parnow, former Dodger farmhand, called to let me know that Randy Jones, my pick for Rookie of the Year, isn't a rookie. This being true I'll switch to the obvious choice, Greg Gross of Houston. His five hits Monday made a believer out of me. . .

All this newspaper talk about Alvin Dark's newly won respect is just not true. One of the players quoted as saying what a great job Dark was doing told me recently that he didn't think Dark could correctly manage a one-car funeral procession. The fact that fines are now being levied is the reason the players have stopped being critical.

victim of too many innings already and Elias Sosa, the other half of the bullpen, pitched more than 100 innings of winter ball and is out of gas.

The remainder of the staff adds up to zero with the possible exception of rookie Ed Halicki, who was touched for nine hits and six runs in absorbing last night's loss to Houston. That means both Ron Bryant and Tom Bradley can expect to be working elsewhere next year.

Among the others who have played regularly this year, Ed Goodson, Steve Ontiveros, Dave Rader and probably even Bobby Bonds will be offered around during the winter, with the Giants looking for pitching and catching help in return. Gary Thomasson, a part-timer who hasn't lived up to promise, is another who can be had.

One thing that bothers Westrum, who often caught with broken fingers, more than anything else about his current crew is the constant begging out of the lineup with minor hurts.

"This is a different generation of players and maybe I shouldn't be so hard on them," said Westrum. "But it bothers me the way some of them complain about the smallest of injuries. Besides, I think there are just too many damn injuries and if you ask me why, it's because most players today aren't in shape. You hardly ever see a player in shape get hurt. It's always the other guys who do."

Tigers Remove Cash From Active Roster

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers removed veteran Norm Cash from the active roster today — the first step towards giving him an unconditional release after 15 years with the team.

Cash, 39, is the second leading home run hitter in Tiger history. His 377 homers are second only to 394 hit by Al Kaline.

Trophy Race Set On Bay

Of the hundreds of boats that will sail San Francisco Bay Sunday, most will be out for pleasure. Two, however, will be in dead earnest as they race for the 1974 San Francisco Perpetual Challenge Trophy.

One will be the 35-foot aluminum-hulled sloop Kingfish out of the San Diego Yacht Club, challenger in the race. The other, as yet unchosen craft, will defend the trophy for the San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere. They will race the bay channel course, 14 miles, beginning at 1 p.m. off the St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco.

"I think we can safely say this is the most prestigious trophy race on the West Coast," says Robert Potter of Mill Valley, the chairman for the 1974 trophy defense committee.

It is also one of the oldest, having been held almost annually since 1895. That year the Encinal Yacht Club, with a boat called El Sueno, outraced Queen of the San Francisco club for the first trophy. San Francisco won it the next year and has successfully challenged for or defended it 14 times since, including the last three years.

Any recognized yacht club on the Pacific Coast can challenge for the trophy, but it has left the Bay only three times. Eureka took it north in 1912, the Los Angeles Yacht Club carried it south in 1946 and San Diego won in 1964.

St. Francis beat San Diego for the trophy in 1969. The following year, no race was held. In 1971, San Francisco challenged and defeated St. Francis. In '72 and '73, San Francisco defeated San Diego, last year with the sloop Gamma and Evan Dailey at the helm.

Although at least four boats are still in the running to defend this year, the crew is set. Frank (Jake) Wosser of Tiburon and Shelly Miller of Belvedere will co-captain, with a crew of seven: Jim Davies of Mill Valley, Peter Salz and Don Jessberg of Belvedere and Tom Eliot, Wynn Ward, Steve Greene and Tad Lacey of Tiburon.

The crew has been practicing with several craft, among them the 33-foot Molly B, 39-foot Bohemia, 30-foot Spruce Goose and Espirit, a one-ton sloop. Race rules permit the defending club to withhold the name of their boat until the day of the race.

The event will take from two and a half to three hours. Unlike some other cup races, this is a one shot deal. The San Diego crew arrived early this week with Kingfish to begin practice on the Bay.

Problems Facing Young Giants

The 1974 San Francisco Giants are not going to win the pennant in the National League West. There is no doubt about it. So why, you ask, should you spend good money to go out and see the Giants play? Good question.

There are many reasons for not going out to Candlestick Park to see the Young Giants. My own main reason is Candlestick Park itself. Poorly located in a windswept area, it is a dismal place to watch a game. And who needs all that phony grass (Astro turf). If God (or Abner Doubleday) had Astro turf in mind as a surface for baseball it would have been included in the rule book. In this case, progress has taken a giant step backwards. One need only travel to Oakland to see the game played in its proper setting.

Another reason for not journeying to the City for a game is the team itself. Totally inconsistent, the Giants have shown little or nothing to encourage patriotic support. One need not look back any further than last weekend to see clearly how inconsistent the team can be.

Now that we see that there's no pennant hope, that the park is brutal and that the team is totally unpredictable what possible reason is there for anything but a public execution?

Answer: Faith and Hope.

If the Giants are your team, don't quit on them. The same would be true if your team is San Diego or Minnesota or (heaven forbid) the California Angels. Like Wilkens Micawber in David Copperfield, you have to believe that a better day is just around the corner.

As many a learned man has said the hope of this country is its youth. The same is true of the Giants. The greatest asset the young team has is also the cause of its present plight. If this team is allowed to mature it will be a winner inside of two years.

Trades have to be made. Nothing earth-shattering. Keep a nucleus of Speier, Bonds, Maddox, D'Acquisto, Barr, Caldwell and Miller and then go out and get two pitchers. The reason I mention Miller is that I think he has a chance to be an outstanding third baseman.

Soem realistic goals for this year are: a .500 season, fourth place, 14 wins for D'Acquisto. If one of these goals is reached I'm sure the other two will fall in place.

Notes: Mike Parnow, former Dodger farmhand, called to let me know that Randy Jones, my pick for Rookie of the Year, isn't a rookie. This being true I'll switch to the obvious choice, Greg Gross of Houston. His five hits Monday made a believer out of me. . .

All this newspaper talk about Alvin Dark's newly won respect is just not true. One of the players quoted as saying what a great job Dark was doing told me recently that he didn't think Dark could correctly manage a one-car funeral procession. The fact that fines are now being levied is the reason the players have stopped being critical.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Big Wake Means Poor Efficiency

Look at the wake the next time you are in a boat. It makes no difference if it's a sailboat or power boat, the bigger and more turbulent the wake, the less efficiently the boat is performing.

For motor boatmen it's an important consideration in this day of high fuel costs and potential shortages. Look at it this way: if the power of the engine — or the power from the sails — is being used to churn up a lot of water, it certainly isn't being used to propel the boat. . . and that is really what you are paying for.

First, let's look at the small powered pleasure craft — mainly because it is the most common and the worst offender in wasteful operation.

If an outboard motorboat is creating a big wake it's usually because it isn't planing properly, and the ability to plane, or skim over the water's surface is what makes the small outboard so fast and economical.

The most common causes of a boat not planing efficiently are overloading and failure to distribute weight properly. Correcting these difficulties is simple once you have discovered the cause. Throw out the unnecessary equipment and rearrange the passengers.

Another cause is "parasitic drag." Marine growth on the hull, which is very common in salt water, cuts down planing efficiency quickly. This problem is becoming more of a factor in fresh water, now that so much of our water is polluted by fertilizing materials which stimulate the growth of algae to fantastic levels.

Inefficient planing can also be the result of incorrect tilt of the outboard motor. For instance: if your motor is tilted too far aft, the cavitation plate will be pulled through the water at an angle causing "parasitic drag." This shows up as a mighty big wake. If your motor is tilted too far forward it causes the bow to dig in creating big waves. The prop runs too close to the surface and will "cavitate." This is a condition in which the propeller sucks air into its slipstream, speeds up, and churns away in a froth of air and water.

This topic of boat efficiency is a very big one, as some of the questions I've been asked indicate:

Q. I have had a tiny imported 1-horsepower motor on our sailboat as an auxiliary. It was very slow. Recently I bought a 5-hp motor. It's still just as slow. Why?

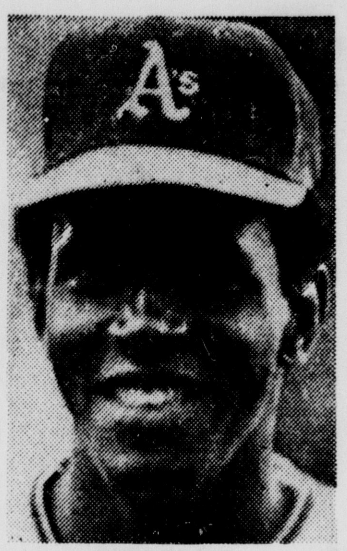
A. There are many factors limiting the speed of a sailing hull regardless of the power applied. The main one is length. Undoubtedly, the small outboard drove the hull to its maximum design speed and any increase in power is hardly noticeable. But I'll bet the bigger motor kicked up a bigger wake, didn't it?

Q. Can sailboats be made to "plane" like a power boat?

A. Yes, very much so. This is one of the breakthroughs that is giving sailing the big impetus these days with new flashy speeds. Formerly, sailing craft were strictly "displacement" hulls — they pushed through the water. The new shapes, notable in many of the small "sailboard" type craft, plane just like an outboard boat. Ride in one. . . you feel it lift.

Q. My boat sat on a trailer in Southern California all winter. Now that I have it back north it "porpoises" so badly it's almost impossible to handle. . . Why?

A. The boat (made of molded plywood) has lost its shape. The keel has developed a "rocker" effect. (On investigating further I found that this boat had been poorly supported on its trailer.) The only cure for a "rocker" is to apply a device on the bottom called variously a wedge, shingle or squatboard. This is applied at the transom in a manner to flatten out the planing surface. Another device that will cure "porpoising" — a rhythmic rising and falling of the bow — is a set of trim tabs.



VIDA BLUE

uled starter Vida Blue. Blue was hospitalized pending further tests.

Len Randle doubled to start the fourth inning and with one out, Toby Harrah lifted a popup to shallow right. Jackson romped in to make the play but second baseman Dick Green hustled out to do the same thing. They each stopped, looked at each other and let the ball fall in, allowing Randle to score.

"That sort of thing doesn't happen to Oakland very often," Martin said. "But that outfield was awfully tough to play (because of heavy rains during the day)."

Meanwhile, doctors treating pitcher Vida Blue today said electrocardiogram tests had been administered to Blue, but that results were not available.

Blue, a two-time 20-game winner for the world champion A's, was admitted to Baylor Hospital yesterday complaining of minor chest pains.

"Mr. Blue had a good night and is in satisfactory condition," a hospital spokesman said today. "He is still experiencing minor chest pains of questionable origin."

Raiders Insist Choice No Fluke

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — While those National Football League exhibition games involving rookies and free agents don't seem to prove much, the Oakland Raiders insist that linebacker Mike Dennery's fine performance against Dallas last Saturday was no fluke.

Dennery is a 13th-round pick from Southern Mississippi who was involved in three turnovers.

Dennery says he's not quite sure how the Raiders found him but Player Director Ron Wolf says "every time we saw him, he was making 15 or 20 tackles."

IN MINOR LEAGUES

Mediocre Week For Marinites

It's been a mediocre week for former Marin County stars playing baseball in the minor leagues.

Tom Thomas of Novato, who moved from double A to triple A three weeks ago, had the best performance with seven hits in 23 at bats for Charleston of the International League. He belted a double and a home run, and raised his average to .229.

Three Class A players, Clifford Hall of Marin City and Tom Olson and Jim Wilhelm of Kentfield, hit .235, .211 and .240 for the week respectively. Hall, with Newport News of the Carolina League, had a double and a homer, but his season average dropped to .279.

Olson, with Anderson of the Western Carolinas League, went just four for 19. Wilhelm, with Walla Walla of the Northwest League, had six hits in 25 at bats. Wilhelm's average dropped to .279.

Corte Madera's Rob Long, playing for Kingsport in the Appalachian Rookie League, went five for 23 with a double. He's currently hitting .239.

Marin's two pitchers, Russ Dillon of Novato and Dewey Forry of Terra Linda, each posted an 0-1 record for the week. Dillon, with Eugene of the Northwest League, lost his first decision of the year against eight wins, while Forry, with Waterbury of the Class AA Eastern League, ran his record to 2-4.

Schreiber, Hall To Start Monday

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — Running back Larry Schreiber and safety Windlan Hall, two of 13 veterans in camp, will start next Monday when the San Francisco 49ers meet the Cleveland Browns in an exhibition game.

Coach Dick Nolan confirmed Tuesday he will use the pair. They could have played in the team's first exhibition game against the San Diego Chargers last weekend but Nolan wanted to give them another week to get ready.

The 49er front office, meanwhile, indicated that it hoped to swap running back Vic Washington for a defensive lineman. Washington was ousted from training camp Monday after a squabble with Nolan.

Softball Results

Munchies destroyed Scoreboard 18-1, Bud's Travel walloped Positively Fourth Street 12-3 and Greco's Babe's annihilated Western Travel Lifers 25-2 last night in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult softball league play at Albert Field.

Group Therapy Wins

Perry's Group Therapy edged Cap Purcell, 5-4, with Steve Mack winning the game with a home run in the sixth inning last night in a San Anselmo Parks and Recreation softball game at Memorial Park.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Big Wake Means Poor Efficiency

Look at the wake the next time you are in a boat. It makes no difference if it's a sailboat or power boat, the bigger and more turbulent the wake, the less efficiently the boat is performing.

For motor boatmen it's an important consideration in this day of high fuel costs and potential shortages. Look at it this way: if the power of the engine — or the power from the sails — is being used to churn up a lot of water, it certainly isn't being used to propel the boat. . . and that is really what you are paying for.

First, let's look at the small powered pleasure craft — mainly because it is the most common and the worst offender in wasteful operation.

If an outboard motorboat is creating a big wake it's usually because it isn't planing properly, and the ability to plane, or skim over the water's surface is what makes the small outboard so fast and economical.

The most common causes of a boat not planing efficiently are overloading and failure to distribute weight properly. Correcting these difficulties is simple once you have discovered the cause. Throw out the unnecessary equipment and rearrange the passengers.

Another cause is "parasitic drag." Marine growth on the hull, which is very common in salt water, cuts down planing efficiency quickly. This problem is becoming more of a factor in fresh water, now that so much of our water is polluted by fertilizing materials which stimulate the growth of algae to fantastic levels.

Inefficient planing can also be the result of incorrect tilt of the outboard motor. For instance: if your motor is tilted too far aft, the cavitation plate will be pulled through the water at an angle causing "parasitic drag." This shows up as a mighty big wake. If your motor is tilted too far forward it causes the bow to dig in creating big waves. The prop runs too close to the surface and will "cavitate." This is a condition in which the propeller sucks air into its slipstream, speeds up, and churns away in a froth of air and water.

This topic of boat efficiency is a very big one, as some of the questions I've been asked indicate:

Q. I have had a tiny imported 1-horsepower motor on our sailboat as an auxiliary. It was very slow. Recently I bought a 5-hp motor. It's still just as slow. Why?

A. There are many factors limiting the speed of a sailing hull regardless of the power applied. The main one is length. Undoubtedly, the small outboard drove the hull to its maximum design speed and any increase in power is hardly noticeable. But I'll bet the bigger motor kicked up a bigger wake, didn't it?

Q. Can sailboats be made to "plane" like a power boat?

A. Yes, very much so. This is one of the breakthroughs that is giving sailing the big impetus these days with new flashy speeds. Formerly, sailing craft were strictly "displacement" hulls — they pushed through the water. The new shapes, notable in many of the small "sailboard" type craft, plane just like an outboard boat. Ride in one. . . you feel it lift.

Q. My boat sat on a trailer in Southern California all winter. Now that I have it back north it "porpoises" so badly it's almost impossible to handle. . . Why?

A. The boat (made of molded plywood) has lost its shape. The keel has developed a "rocker" effect. (On investigating further I found that this boat had been poorly supported on its trailer.) The only cure for a "rocker" is to apply a device on the bottom called variously a wedge, shingle or squatboard. This is applied at the transom in a manner to flatten out the planing surface. Another device that will cure "porpoising" — a rhythmic rising and falling of the bow — is a set of trim tabs.

Len Randle doubled to start the fourth inning and with one out, Toby Harrah lifted a popup to shallow right. Jackson romped in to make the play but second baseman Dick Green hustled out to do the same thing. They each stopped, looked at each other and let the ball fall in, allowing Randle to score.

"That sort of thing doesn't happen to Oakland very often," Martin said. "But that outfield was awfully tough to play (because of heavy rains during the day)."

Meanwhile, doctors treating pitcher Vida Blue today said electrocardiogram tests had been administered to Blue, but that results were not available.

Blue, a two-time 20-game winner for the world champion A's, was admitted to Baylor Hospital yesterday complaining of minor chest pains.

"Mr. Blue had a good night and is in satisfactory condition," a hospital spokesman said today. "He is still experiencing minor chest pains of questionable origin."

Raiders Insist Choice No Fluke

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — While those National Football League exhibition games involving rookies and free agents don't seem to prove much, the Oakland Raiders insist that linebacker Mike Dennery's fine performance against Dallas last Saturday was no fluke.

Dennery is a 13th-round pick from Southern Mississippi who was involved in three turnovers.

Dennery says he's not quite sure how the Raiders found him but Player Director Ron Wolf says "every time we saw him, he was making 15 or 20 tackles."

IN MINOR LEAGUES

Mediocre Week For Marinites

It's been a mediocre week for former Marin County stars playing baseball in the minor leagues.

Tom Thomas of Novato, who moved from double A to triple A three weeks ago, had the best performance with seven hits in 23 at bats for Charleston of the International League. He belted a double and a home run, and raised his average to .229.

Three Class A players, Clifford Hall of Marin City and Tom Olson and Jim Wilhelm of Kentfield, hit .235, .211 and .240 for the week respectively. Hall, with Newport News of the Carolina League, had a double and a homer, but his season average dropped to .279.

Olson, with Anderson of the Western Carolinas League, went just four for 19. Wilhelm, with Walla Walla of the Northwest League, had six hits in 25 at bats. Wilhelm's average dropped to .279.

Corte Madera's Rob Long, playing for Kingsport in the Appalachian Rookie League, went five for 23 with a double. He's currently hitting .239.

Marin's two pitchers, Russ Dillon of Novato and Dewey Forry of Terra Linda, each posted an 0-1 record for the week. Dillon, with Eugene of the Northwest League, lost his first decision of the year against eight wins, while Forry, with Waterbury of the Class AA Eastern League, ran his record to 2-4.

Softball Results

Munchies destroyed Scoreboard 18-1, Bud's Travel walloped Positively Fourth Street 12-3 and Greco's Babe's annihilated Western Travel Lifers 25-2 last night in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult softball league play at Albert Field.

Group Therapy Wins

Perry's Group Therapy edged Cap Purcell, 5-4, with Steve Mack winning the game with a home run in the sixth inning last night in a San Anselmo Parks and Recreation softball game at Memorial Park.

Schreiber, Hall To Start Monday

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — Running back Larry Schreiber and safety Windlan Hall, two of 13 veterans in camp, will start next Monday when the San Francisco 49ers meet the Cleveland Browns in an exhibition game.

Coach Dick Nolan confirmed Tuesday he will use the pair. They could have played in the team's first exhibition game against the San Diego Chargers last weekend but Nolan wanted to give them another week to get ready.

The 49er front office, meanwhile, indicated that it hoped to swap running back Vic Washington for a defensive lineman. Washington was ousted from training camp Monday after a squabble with Nolan.

HOUSTON FLOURNOY
Wants state coverage

Flournoy Criticizes News Media

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Houston I. Flournoy criticized the news media yesterday for not paying enough attention to the state election campaign.

"The sad fact is that there is less interest paid to the coverage of state politics today than there was when I first ran for the Assembly 14 years ago," he said.

"Only one news organization —the Los Angeles Times — covers the candidates for governor. Others pick up as we enter and leave their local areas."

He said this was not true during the 1962 Nixon-Brown campaign race when newspaper, television and radio reporters followed the candidates around the state, covering them "intensively and consistently during both the primary and general elections."

Flournoy's criticism came in a speech to the San Francisco Public Relations Roundtable. He said he was having trouble selling his "product," and "my product is me."

The GOP candidate said his problem was complicated because his opponent, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., has "disappeared."

Flournoy said Brown chose to address a convention in Fresno by telephone, instead of in person, and that he "sneaked" into San Diego recently for a fund raising dinner.

"Reporters covering his campaign complain that they have nothing to write about," Flournoy said.

"It is obvious that my opponent has adopted a low profile strategy --hoping that the daily outpouring of news from Washington will sweep him to victory in California in November," he said.

"If this fall's campaign is so overshadowed by what happens in Washington that people will not know what and whom they are buying, then California may be in for a time of trouble."

At a news conference, Flournoy repeated his statement of Monday that President Nixon should resign. If not, he said Nixon will be impeached.

Flournoy, the state controller, also said he has no preference as to how Gov. Ronald Reagan should fill the post of Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, who has been found guilty of perjury.

Flournoy said it made no difference to him whether Reagan appoints State Sen. John Harmer, the GOP candidate for the post, or whether he "goes the caretaker route."

Oxford Forced To Freeze Staff

OXFORD, England (UPI) — Government spending cuts have forced Oxford University to stop filing vacancies in its academic staff for the time being, the university announced.

Vice Chairman H. J. Habakkuk said government cuts had "disrupted financial planning" for the period up to the end of 1977.

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 7, the 219th day of 1974 with 46 to follow.

The moon is between its full stage and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

American statesman Ralph Bunche was born Aug. 7, 1904.

On this day in history:

In 1782, the Order of the Purple Heart was established by George Washington.

In 1942, U.S. Marines launched America's first offensive in World War II by landing on Guadalcanal in the Pacific.

In 1962, Mrs. John Kennedy became the first presidnt's wife to give birth while living in the White House since the days of Grover Cleveland. Patrick Bouvier Kennedy died two days later.

In 1971, the U.S. Apollo 15 moonship returned to earth safely despite failure of one of its three parachutes during splashdown in the Pacific.

A thought for the day: British humorist Patrick Herbert said, "We should not produce equality by turning everything upside down."

RECENT MATCH

When this hand was played in a recent match, one defense tried for the overruff and came a cropper. East took the first two heart tricks with the king and ace, and then led another heart to put his partner in overruffing position.

Declarer stepped up with the ace of trumps to shut West out. He then drew trumps with the jack and queen, after which he could safely cash dummy's last heart to discard his losing diamond.

The rest was easy. Declarer led a club from dummy, giving up one club, winning one in his hand and ruffing the other two in dummy. He lost two hearts and one club, making the contract.

STOPS DISCARD

At the other table of the match, East saw the danger of setting up dummy's hearts. He won the first trick with the king of hearts and returned the three of hearts to give West an immediate ruff.

West returned a club to the ace, and East led another low heart. South could step up with a high trump to shut West out, but East still had the ace of hearts to top dummy's last heart. Dummy's hearts thus provided no discards, and South had to lose a diamond trick as well as the two hearts and a club.

HOUSTON FLOURNOY
Wants state coverage

Flournoy Criticizes News Media

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Houston I. Flournoy criticized the news media yesterday for not paying enough attention to the state election campaign.

"The sad fact is that there is less interest paid to the coverage of state politics today than there was when I first ran for the Assembly 14 years ago," he said.

"Only one news organization —the Los Angeles Times — covers the candidates for governor. Others pick up as we enter and leave their local areas."

He said this was not true during the 1962 Nixon-Brown campaign race when newspaper, television and radio reporters followed the candidates around the state, covering them "intensively and consistently during both the primary and general elections."

Flournoy's criticism came in a speech to the San Francisco Public Relations Roundtable. He said he was having trouble selling his "product," and "my product is me."

The GOP candidate said his problem was complicated because his opponent, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., has "disappeared."

Flournoy said Brown chose to address a convention in Fresno by telephone, instead of in person, and that he "sneaked" into San Diego recently for a fund raising dinner.

"Reporters covering his campaign complain that they have nothing to write about," Flournoy said.

"It is obvious that my opponent has adopted a low profile strategy --hoping that the daily outpouring of news from Washington will sweep him to victory in California in November," he said.

"If this fall's campaign is so overshadowed by what happens in Washington that people will not know what and whom they are buying, then California may be in for a time of trouble."

At a news conference, Flournoy repeated his statement of Monday that President Nixon should resign. If not, he said Nixon will be impeached.

Flournoy, the state controller, also said he has no preference as to how Gov. Ronald Reagan should fill the post of Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, who has been found guilty of perjury.

Flournoy said it made no difference to him whether Reagan appoints State Sen. John Harmer, the GOP candidate for the post, or whether he "goes the caretaker route."

Oxford Forced To Freeze Staff

OXFORD, England (UPI) — Government spending cuts have forced Oxford University to stop filing vacancies in its academic staff for the time being, the university announced.

Vice Chairman H. J. Habakkuk said government cuts had "disrupted financial planning" for the period up to the end of 1977.

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 7, the 219th day of 1974 with 46 to follow.

The moon is between its full stage and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

American statesman Ralph Bunche was born Aug. 7, 1904.

On this day in history:

In 1782, the Order of the Purple Heart was established by George Washington.

In 1942, U.S. Marines launched America's first offensive in World War II by landing on Guadalcanal in the Pacific.

In 1962, Mrs. John Kennedy became the first presidnt's wife to give birth while living in the White House since the days of Grover Cleveland. Patrick Bouvier Kennedy died two days later.

In 1971, the U.S. Apollo 15 moonship returned to earth safely despite failure of one of its three parachutes during splashdown in the Pacific.

A thought for the day: British humorist Patrick Herbert said, "We should not produce equality by turning everything upside down."

Don't Set Up Dummy's Suit— Clearcut Action For Victory

It's usually a good idea to put your partner in overruffing position, but it may not pay to do so if his trumps are obviously no threat to declarer. Beware of setting up tricks for declarer in such situations.

RECENT MATCH

When this hand was played in a recent match, one defense tried for the overruff and came a cropper. East took the first two heart tricks with the king and ace, and then led another heart to put his partner in overruffing position.

Declarer stepped up with the ace of trumps to shut West out. He then drew trumps with the jack and queen, after which he could safely cash dummy's last heart to discard his losing diamond.

The rest was easy. Declarer led a club from dummy, giving up one club, winning one in his hand and ruffing the other two in dummy. He lost two hearts and one club, making the contract.

STOPS DISCARD

At the other table of the match, East saw the danger of setting up dummy's hearts. He won the first trick with the king of hearts and returned the three of hearts to give West an immediate ruff.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Bond And Stock Balance Is Advised

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and
DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. My husband and I are close to retirement and have $100,000 to invest. Our goals are security and income with a hedge against inflation. What type of investments would meet our needs? — T.L.

A. A balanced portfolio, 50 per cent invested in bonds for safety and income and 50 per cent in income/growth stocks, should provide you with a comfortable retirement cushion. For the bond segment of your portfolio, I suggest putting approximately $10,000 in each of the recommended issues.

All five bonds are A-rated or better and listed on the NYSE. These are: 10M Bethlehem Steel 9s of 2000, 11M Brooklyn Union 9⅛s of 1995, 12M Illinois Bell Telephone 8s of 2004, 12M Southern Bell Telephone 8s of 2014 and 12M TVA 7.35s of 1997, the B series bonds. This package costing about $50,000 will pay $4,700 annually in interest, a yield of 9.4 per cent.

Equal dollar amounts in the following five NYSE stocks will net you about $14,000 from dividend income, an 8 per cent average return. American Telephone (buy 230 shares) reported a 16 per cent increase in the first fiscal half and should earn a record $5.45 for the year. A liberal yield, 9.6 per cent, makes well-situated Cleveland Electric attractive. Your purchase here would be 400 shares.

W.R. Grace has recently reported earnings for the first half of $2.31 per share, up 72 per cent year-to-year. This massive chemical company derived a good share of this gain from its agricultural chemical division. The company is currently expanding phosphate capacity 75 per cent and urea capacity by 50 per cent. A new plant to be built in Trinidad will boost ammonia production. Buy 440 shares.

Gulf Oil (buy 500) on its way to record 1974 earnings has reported a 50 per cent gain for first half net. Gulf Oil, which is selling at four times projected earnings to yield 7.3 per cent, has above-average recovery potential. A purchase of 355 shares of U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty will round out your retirement portfolio. Inflation-swelled property/casualty settlements which depressed 1973 earnings should be offset by rate increases. This bond/stock retirement portfolio yields 8.7 per cent on average.

Resignation Talk Spurs Action On Stock Market

An hour-long meeting apparently called by President Nixon for "an exchange of views on the current situation" with Vice President Gerald Ford and White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig, Jr. fueled investors' hopes that Nixon may opt for resignation now that his support in Congress has been seriously eroded by the latest tape disclosure.

With pressure mounting from GOP congressmen for Nixon to step down rather than face impeachment and a likely conviction in the Senate, the financial community was concerned about the ability of the current administration to minister to the nation's economic woes.

The glamors also attracted buyers. Xerox added 1 ½, IBM 1 ¼, and McDonald's and Walt Disney ⅝ each.

Boeing led the actives, off ¼ to 17 ¾ on 110,700 shares, including a block of 100,000 at 18.

On the American Exchange, prices moved higher in light trading. Syntex, the volume leader, added ¼ to 39 on 12,300 shares.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Bond And Stock Balance Is Advised

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and
DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. My husband and I are close to retirement and have $100,000 to invest. Our goals are security and income with a hedge against inflation. What type of investments would meet our needs? — T.L.

A. A balanced portfolio, 50 per cent invested in bonds for safety and income and 50 per cent in income/growth stocks, should provide you with a comfortable retirement cushion. For the bond segment of your portfolio, I suggest putting approximately $10,000 in each of the recommended issues.

All five bonds are A-rated or better and listed on the NYSE. These are: 10M Bethlehem Steel 9s of 2000, 11M Brooklyn Union 9⅛s of 1995, 12M Illinois Bell Telephone 8s of 2004, 12M Southern Bell Telephone 8s of 2014 and 12M TVA 7.35s of 1997, the B series bonds. This package costing about $50,000 will pay $4,700 annually in interest, a yield of 9.4 per cent.

Equal dollar amounts in the following five NYSE stocks will net you about $14,000 from dividend income, an 8 per cent average return. American Telephone (buy 230 shares) reported a 16 per cent increase in the first fiscal half and should earn a record $5.45 for the year. A liberal yield, 9.6 per cent, makes well-situated Cleveland Electric attractive. Your purchase here would be 400 shares.

W.R. Grace has recently reported earnings for the first half of $2.31 per share, up 72 per cent year-to-year. This massive chemical company derived a good share of this gain from its agricultural chemical division. The company is currently expanding phosphate capacity 75 per cent and urea capacity by 50 per cent. A new plant to be built in Trinidad will boost ammonia production. Buy 440 shares.

Gulf Oil (buy 500) on its way to record 1974 earnings has reported a 50 per cent gain for first half net. Gulf Oil, which is selling at four times projected earnings to yield 7.3 per cent, has above-average recovery potential. A purchase of 355 shares of U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty will round out your retirement portfolio. Inflation-swelled property/casualty settlements which depressed 1973 earnings should be offset by rate increases. This bond/stock retirement portfolio yields 8.7 per cent on average.

UNUSED FILM PROTECTOR

Velvet ribbons are cut by a heated-knife multiple cutter at the Eastman Kodak plant in Rochester, N. Y., to be attached to the lips of 35 millimeter film casettes. The ribbons form a "light lock" and prevent film exposure prior to customer use.

Resignation Talk Spurs Action On Stock Market

An hour-long meeting apparently called by President Nixon for "an exchange of views on the current situation" with Vice President Gerald Ford and White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig, Jr. fueled investors' hopes that Nixon may opt for resignation now that his support in Congress has been seriously eroded by the latest tape disclosure.

With pressure mounting from GOP congressmen for Nixon to step down rather than face impeachment and a likely conviction in the Senate, the financial community was concerned about the ability of the current administration to minister to the nation's economic woes.

The glamors also attracted buyers. Xerox added 1 ½, IBM 1 ¼, and McDonald's and Walt Disney ⅝ each.

Boeing led the actives, ott ¼ to 17 ¾ on 110,700 shares, including a block of 100,000 at 18.

On the American Exchange, prices moved higher in light trading. Syntex, the volume leader, added ¼ to 39 on 12,300 shares.

Wilson

W & J SLOANE at Northgate Mall in Terra Linda announced the appointment of HAROLD WILSON of Mountain View as new manager, succeeding Joel Mizerik.

Wilson has been with Sloane's for 10 years, serving for the past four years as manager of W & J Sloane in San Jose. He and his wife plan to relocate to Marin County.

LAMKIN CAMERAWORK Gallery, devoted exclusively to fine photography, will open next month in the Fair Anselm Shopping Center in Fairfax, across the street from Lucky Market. It will be located at 737 Center Street No. 2, next to the Crocker National Bank branch office.

The gallery is being organized and operated by John Patrick Lamkin of Kentfield, founder and former director of Camera Work Gallery in Costa Mesa, Orange County. Lamkin has been in photography work for six or seven years and took graduate studies at the San Francisco Art Institute.

Lamkin Camerawork Gallery will open with exhibits of photographs by Timo Tauno Pajunen of Richmond and John Spence Weir of Oakland. Lamkin said his gallery will sponsor lectures, workshops, classes and seminars. Later, the facilities might be expanded to include a bookshop, library and classrooms.

The gallery will be supported by print sales and, in part, by memberships. Members will receive newsletters and announcements of exhibits and will get discounts on lectures, workshops, classes and prints.

Lamkin's gallery is now soliciting prints for the following exhibits: erotica, self-portraits, and polaroid prints.

A THRIFT SHOP, operated for the Marin Child Development Center, opened this month at a new location in Larkspur at 1011 Magnolia Avenue next to United Moving and Storage. It was formerly at 943 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield corners, for two years.

Patricia Kane, manager of the Marin Child Development Thrift Shop, said the new location has triple the former space and allows the shop to take in furniture and antiques, as well as toys, books, gifts, clothing and household goods.

REDWOOD TIRE CENTER in Corte Madera announced the following winners of door prizes at its grand opening Saturday at 13 San Clemente Drive: Alan Grubb of San Anselmo and Billie Blasel of Corte Madera.

Gerhard and Hanni Butter are owners of the new 10,000-square-foot facility, which carries a large inventory of Continental, Michelin, Pirelli, Toyo and Uniroyal tires for wholesale and retail.

JOHN H. REININGA Jr. of San Rafael has been appointed California state director of the International Council of Shopping Centers. He is president of the Reininga Corporation in San Francisco which specializes in the development, leasing and management of shopping centers.

City Staff Produces Improved General Plan

There are several lessons to be drawn from the new San Rafael General Plan, which has now cleared the planning commission and awaits action by the city council.

Most obvious is that it is not easy to replan an existing community. The planner who lays out a new community on what is raw land has a much simpler job. (Thirty years later, the town may turn out to be quite different from the way he envisioned it, but at least it starts out as planned.)

ALMOST EQUALLY obvious is that a plan must embrace a series of compromises. What pleases the business community or even the average wage-earner may enrage the all-out environmentalists, and vice versa. The goals of social planners often conflict with the rights of property owners. To be workable, a plan must recognize the rights and desires of all.

Lack of such compromises spelled the downfall of the general plan draft prepared for the city by consultants Duncan and Jones of Berkeley. The firm produced a plan keyed to the sociological notions of some, without allowance for the conflicting interests of others whose rights are as real and whose interest in the future of their city is as great..

The plan now before the city council retains some of what Duncan and Jones produced. But for the most part, it is a new plan, produced by the city's own planning staff with plenty of input from the planning commission and the citizen advisory committee.

It lacks some things that need to be spelled out; it includes some things that remain questionable. Even the public hearing last Saturday disclosed a couple of omissions that must be corrected by the planning staff. No doubt it will get further refinement before its final adoption by the council. But it is far better, far more workable, and far less offensive to major groups of longtime San Rafael residents than the initial draft by Duncan and Jones.

THERE IS A LESSON in this which might be kept in mind hereafter — not only in San Rafael City Hall, but in the Civic Center, in other city halls andd districts offices.

This is to make use of the city's (or county's, or district's) own staff. Often these people have the know-how to do a better job than the high-priced imported consultant — as the San Rafael General Plan's history demonstrates.

Cities and county have on their payrolls experts who are just as competent as those who set themselves up in the consulting business. Only when the city or county staff is lacking in a particular kind of expert, or when (as in the case of San Rafael Redevleopment) the job is too big for the existing staff to handle, do we need to go outside for help. The idea that existing city and county staffs are capable only of doing the routine is a false idea, and is demeaning to those who live in and work for our communities.

It should be obvious (although often it is not) that the resident staffs can do a better job by augmenting their expert knowledge with the special community understanding that no outsider can have.

The San Rafael Planning Department and the planning commission (which at first was precluded from participation) deserve commendation for the city general plan in its present form. Further refining at city council direction should produce a plan with which we all can live, and which will benefit the city in the future.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Swan Song For A Column In Look At Today's Schools

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

This is the 423rd "People's Schools" column by this writer — and the last. It is being discontinued to free the writer's time for other activities.

The first column, in March, 1966, dealt with the confusing and misleading manner in which school tax rates were reported to the public by school board and superintendents. To an extent, this was rectified by Senate Bill 90, which ties school taxes to a spending-per-pupil formula.

Not all the people's concerns of eight years ago about their schools have been dealt with, however; and some new ones have arisen.

A FEW BRIEF ITEMS may indicate the present state of the public school system:

The National Education Association, in a recent press release, reported that a call for greater teacher political power "is the word that NEA, the nation's second largest union, is putting out to its 1.5 million members as teachers prepared to make their political muscle felt, as never before, in the national elections."

NEA, along with the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations, is out to elect a "veto-proof Congress" in November. In our own state, the NEA-affiliated California Teachers Association, through its political arm, the Association for Better Citizenship, is working to elect a "veto-proof legislature."

IN THE CALIFORNIA Legislature are four bills calling for exclusive union collective bargaining for teachers. Top priority on CTA's list of proposed legislation has been given AB 3254 (Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles), a compulsory union shop bill. Other teacher collective bargaining bills are AB 1857 (Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento), SB 2432 (George Moscone, D-San Francisco), and AB 1243 (Robert Moretti, D-North Hollywood). The last would mandate the union ship in all California public employment.

(Eight years ago, the official position of NEA was still: "It is not only harmful but fallacious to assume that the labor-management relation applies in public schools." CTA took a similar position.)

EDUCATORS NEGOTIATING Service reported recently that NEA has a battle plan worked out so that "at the push of a button, so to speak, 'spontaneous' strikes break out over entire states." From the 1969-70 through the 1972-73 school years, according to the U.S. Department of Labor, there were 438 teacher strikes by NEA affiliates and 98 by American Federation of Teachers affiliates. Most of them were illegal.

(Eight years ago, CTA's official position condemned "the use of strikes and other unlawful acts as a means of resolving differences of opinion regarding salaries." NEA was on the verge of modifying its long-standing anti-strike policy.)

DECLINING SCHOOL enrollments, combined with ironclad tenure laws, have virtually closed the door to teaching careers for recent college graduates. As George Iannacone, superintendent of Palisades Park (N.J.) schools, wrote in a recent Council for Basic Education Bulletin: "With the teacher oversupply, there is no reason why mediocre or incompetent personnel should be permitted to continue to wreak havoc upon the learners in our schools."

However, the only tenure revision enacted in California in the past eight years, the Stull-Rodda Act, made it even more difficult to dismiss incompetent teachers. And tenure would be further tightened by two bills now in the legislature: SB 368 (Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, and Alan Robbins, D-North Hollywood), and AB 3418 (Howard Berman, D-Sherman Oaks).

JAMES W. GUTHRIE, associate professor of education at University of California, declared in his newly issued "Guthrie Report" that taxpayers have lost control of the public schools to a professional elite. "In effect, teachers have been accorded veto power over school board policy making," he wrote.

Perhaps there was a bit of wishful thinking eight years ago in my titling this column, "The People's Schools." If Professor Guthrie is right, they are no longer the people's schools, although the people still are taxed for them — more and more each year. So it may be appropriate that the name "The People's Schools" should vanish with this final column.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND:

Impeachment Inevitable; Removal Not So

WASHINGTON — By now most Americans are getting used to the idea of impeachment and are not shuddering as they were some weeks ago at the possibility of removing the President from office.

The debate on the articles of impeachment among members of the House Judiciary Committee — brought into the homes of millions by television — demonstrated three things:

—That the proceedings of the House committee were carried out fairly, responsibly and deliberately.

—That the decisions of the committee, approving the two central articles of impeachment, rejecting two others and endorsing a third by a narrow vote, revealed relatively little partisanship — in fact, so little partisanship as to merit genuine respect.

—That thus far the proceedings have been conducted in a manner to deserve trust in the impeachment process which is the only constitutional way to resolve this kind of problem and should justify our support whichever way it comes out.

I AM NOT ASSUMING to prejudge what the end result will be or should be. I am adhering to the first principle of law that the accused is innocent until proved guilty. But I feel that I should put into the record of these columns one judgment. It is this:

The evidence before the Judiciary Committee raises sufficient doubt about the actions of Mr. Nixon so that the impeachment process should go forward to determine whether he is innocent or guilty.

That is all the Judiciary Committee has decided. That is all the full House will be deciding; namely, that the evidence justifies a trial.

ALREADY SOME Republican members of the House are trying out an idea that the president should ask the Republicans to try to get the House to waive its responsibility by a pro-forma vote and rush the case to trial in the Senate.

How shortsighted can some of the president's supporters get? This wouldn't help Richard Nixon one bit because it would be a sly effort by the Republicans to get off the hook by not having to cast a vote on impeachment. The theory is that they would thus be home scot-free when the congressional elections come in November.

The effect would be just the opposite. This is probably the most serious vote to be cast in the lifetime of all congressmen. To run away from it would be offensive to most constituents. It would be degrading. Furthermore, such a cringing, irresponsible course would be blandly disdainful of the Constitution by assuming that the House could ease out of its constitutional duty by asking the Senate to take over.

I doubt if this will appeal to the president. I hope we won't hear about it much longer.

What the House is almost certainly about to do is to indict the president so that the Senate can determine whether the accusations against him are true or false. We should bear in mind that, as the Stans-Mitchell acquittal showed, indictment is not conviction but is the means toward determining what the verdict should be.

Inflation Could Clear Way For A Hitler To 'Save' America

(Reprinted from Eureka (Nev.) Sentinel)

It is probably safe to say that without inflation there would have been no Adolph Hitler. That sobering assessment of what runaway inflation can bring lends a special urgency to the recent warning of Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur F. Burns that "if the past . . . is any guide, the future of our country is in jeopardy" from inflation.

Following Germany's defeat in World War I, and up to 1923, money became virtually worthless in that country. The professional classes, having no other source of income, turned to salesmen, workmen, or speculators. The entire middle class dependent upon small fixed incomes was virtually wiped out.

Enter Adolph Hitler, the "savior" who promised to avenge Germany's humiliation and restore its prosperity. The rest is tragic history.

COULD SUCH a thing happen in the United States? Listen to Arthur Burns, a man now known for overstatement:

"The gravity of our current inflationary problems can hardly be overestimated. Except for a brief period at the end of World War II, prices in the United States have of late been rising faster than in any other peacetime period of our history.

"No country I know of has been able to maintain widespread economic prosperity once inflation got out of hand. And the unhappy consequences are by no means solely of an economic nature. If long continued, inflation at anything like the present rate would threaten the very foundation of our society."

ALTHOUGH IT IS true that there have been contributing factors such as the energy crisis, the primary blame for high inflation must be laid firmly on the steps of Congress. In the short run, the country cannot stand a tax cut at this time. In the long run, members of Congress must be told in no uncertain terms that no longer will we stand for high-priced programs we cannot afford.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Count Your Blessings Instead Of Complaining

When I read Vel De Leon's letter to the I.J., July 31, I sensed Mrs. De Leon is a most unhappy individual. I sympathize with her situation, which no doubt is not an easy one. It is so easy for us, however, to air our adverse feelings to the public, but I am wondering how we would feel if we would "count our blessing," publicly, more often. A person's attitude is very infectious to those around him, so wouldn't it be great if more people expressed a positive reaction to the many daily situations which occur.

I am sure you are aware, Mrs. De Leon, that in many countries the mortgage payment is not of concern, but the lack of shelter is; the cost of the food is of no concern, but the lack of it. Gas and lights too high? I assume you are warm and comfortable? Impeach Nixon? Is he a dictator? Have any of your individual rights been taken away from you? Do you travel wherever you desire? Did anyone dictate to you where to live? Has your son been taken from you and placed in a factory to work? Or enforced to join the military at his tender age? And aren't you fortunate to have an automobile to drive wherever you would like to go? Need I go on?

You see, Mrs. De Leon, you do have many blessings to be thankful for, and I am sure you can count them better than I. Try very hard, my fellow countryman, to find something to be thankful for every day and you will discover your upset stomach will disappear.

Thinks 'Leakers' Far Worse Than 'Plumbers'

My letter that was published in Friday's I-J has brought some response, which I expected, of course. Some of it was very approbatory — and some not, to say the least — and in every case, the latter were all anonymous. Anonymous calls and letters carry absolutely no weight with me and cannot be answered except through such a medium as this column. So, with your permission:

For those who say "You're some kind of nut!" I can only say that these people are certainly entitled to their opinion. I don't know the reason for their anonymity, unless it were that these people can always tell their friends, "I guess I told her!" and feel better, perhaps, for the catharsis.

To those who say I am "political" in my views, I am an American first. And from what I can see the whole thing has been "political," as what could be more political than a House Judiciary Chairman who promised, if such be the case, to deliver all the Democrats' votes for impeachment, and make such promise nine months before the hearings? I say "if such be the case;" I wasn't there. But my observations were of things that I had seen in the newspaper — this one, to be exact, was the one quoted — or on television . . .

To me, the "leakers" are far worse than the "plumbers," and I do not for one moment defend them unequivocally.

Finally, to the lady (obviously outraged feminine handwriting) who anonymously castigates me for "loving Nixon more than (my) country" . . . and is a fellow-Republican who is ashamed of me, I would like to remind her that she has the same right to her opinion as I do mine, all politics aside, and I understand her outrage and sympathize with it.

But I would humbly suggest that in the interest of fair play it might be well for all of us to exercise fair play and wait until all the evidence is in before jumping on a lynch bandwagon. Then, and only then, I might just join her.

Student From England Dislikes System

I am a student probation officer from England. I came to Marin to work in the probation office as part of my training.

During the six weeks that I have been here I have seen many aspects of the California judicial system.

I cannot claim to understand the judicial system in depth, but feel unable now to have any involvement in the supervision of probationers.

I have therefore written the county probation officer, John Brewer, pointing out the three areas I find myself unable to accept:

.I feel I cannot work within a justice system which perpetuates an institution such as the California Medical Facility at Vacaville;

I feel that I cannot accept the death penalty as punishment for a crime, however serious;

I cannot accept the disparity between sentences given to those who would thwart the Constitution and those whose crimes have a lesser total effect on society.

"There must not be such a thing in this country as, what you call, an 'amateur crook'. Each person that is caught in some terrible crime, you find where he has been 'paroled, pardoned and pampered' by every jail or insane asylum in the country. Some of these criminals' records and the places they have been freed from, why, it sounds like a tour of a 'one night theatrical troop'.

"It must be awful monotonous, belonging to one of these state parole boards. There is days and days when they just have to sit around, waiting for new criminals to be caught, so they can parole them." — Oct. 18, 1934.

Butz Calls It Like It Is On Waste In Feeding Pets

WASHINGTON — Ever since he got off the plane from Indianapolis, Earl Butz has been saying things that outraged everybody except the farmers. The secretary of agriculture's joy is to tell it like he thinks it is but most city people don't — as when a couple of years ago he said ever-higher beef prices were just what the beefeaters of America needed.

This time, however, he has temporarily enlarged his constituency into the suburbs and downtown. He did it by speaking some common sense on behalf of the non-pet owners of the nation. The non-pet pamperers, rather.

IN A TIME of rising concern over international famine and future world food supplies, when drought threatens this year's crops and prices fly further out of sight, some thinkers have suggested that we all eat one hamburger less per week. The theory is that that would release vast amounts of grain for shipment to hungry areas rather than for steer fattening in feed lots of the West and Middle West.

Butz could not let this latest threat to the beef business go unzapped. Wondering out very loud whether "those ill-informed, fuzzy-thinking do-gooders" could possibly be serious, he made his counterproposal.

If those busybodies do mean what they say, Butz replied, "they could make the first onslaught on this noble goal by reducing our dog and cat population by 50 per cent, which likewise would suddenly release more grain for the world. We could also make very substantial progress increasing grain supplies by reducing by 50 per cent our horse population — which no longer pulls the plow or the dray."

Uncharacteristically, the secretary made a gesture to calm the pet fanciers before they could rise up against him. He is not really advocating cutting down the number of pets, he says. He is just making a point.

WELL, HIS POINT is worth a little discussion. Most of us average sleepers and walkers are dog lovers in the abstract; it is only when we step in the evidence, or when they bark all night next door, that thoughts of poisoning or shotgunning flit through our minds.

People who are professionally burdened with the surplus of pets in our country are a little colder about it. Public campaigns to have all pets spayed are familiar by now. Not many of us realize, however, that animal control in our cities and counties is now a half-billion-dollar annual expenditure. That is for catching, sheltering, killing and disposing of unwanted pets.

Yet if that sounds expensive, consider the cost of the ones that are wanted. Dog and cat food make a $1.8 billion industry in our country; with bird and fish food added, it comes to more than $2 billion a year.

It is a growth industry partly because of the tremendous increase in ownership of big eaters like German shepherds by city dwellers paralyzed by fear of burglars and rapists. But more expensive brands cater to the delicate palates of nervous little barkers who should be named Fifi.

IN GENERAL, pet food is fish parts, cereals and meat byproducts — things like snouts, tripe, tongue and udders. Sophisticated diners since the time of Upton Sinclair ("The Jungle," 1906) have known those are the same ingredients that go into hot dogs and bologna.

Which returns us to Butz's idea, on which I offer an improvement in the same spirit. Let the products that now go into commercial pet food, including gourmet varieties labeled London Broil and Cheese-Flavored Burgers, be used in variety meats for needy humans. Let pets eat table scraps wherever possible, as they used to. And let the multibillion-dollar pet-food industry perform a useful social function by taking a role in the animal-control program —carting away carcasses to be ground up and recycled as more pet food.

A modest proposal whereby everybody would win, including the taxpayers and the hungry.

ALREADY SOME Republican members of the House are trying out an idea that the president should ask the Republicans to try to get the House to waive its responsibility by a pro-forma vote and rush the case to trial in the Senate.

How shortsighted can some of the president's supporters get? This wouldn't help Richard Nixon one bit because it would be a sly effort by the Republicans to get off the hook by not having to cast a vote on impeachment. The theory is that they would thus be home scot-free when the congressional elections come in November.

The effect would be just the opposite. This is probably the most serious vote to be cast in the lifetime of all congressmen. To run away from it would be offensive to most constituents. It would be degrading. Furthermore, such a cringing, irresponsible course would be blandly disdainful of the Constitution by assuming that the House could ease out of its constitutional duty by asking the Senate to take over.

I doubt if this will appeal to the president. I hope we won't hear about it much longer.

What the House is almost certainly about to do is to indict the president so that the Senate can determine whether the accusations against him are true or false. We should bear in mind that, as the Stans-Mitchell acquittal showed, indictment is not conviction but is the means toward determining what the verdict should be.

Inflation Could Clear Way For A Hitler To 'Save' America

(Reprinted from Eureka (Nev.) Sentinel)

It is probably safe to say that without inflation there would have been no Adolph Hitler. That sobering assessment of what runaway inflation can bring lends a special urgency to the recent warning of Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur F. Burns that "if the past . . . is any guide, the future of our country is in jeopardy" from inflation.

Following Germany's defeat in World War I, and up to 1923, money became virtually worthless in that country. The professional classes, having no other source of income, turned to salesmen, workmen, or speculators. The entire middle class dependent upon small fixed incomes was virtually wiped out.

Enter Adolph Hitler, the "savior" who promised to avenge Germany's humiliation and restore its prosperity. The rest is tragic history.

COULD SUCH a thing happen in the United States? Listen to Arthur Burns, a man now known for overstatement:

"The gravity of our current inflationary problems can hardly be overestimated. Except for a brief period at the end of World War II, prices in the United States have of late been rising faster than in any other peacetime period of our history.

"No country I know of has been able to maintain widespread economic prosperity once inflation got out of hand. And the unhappy consequences are by no means solely of an economic nature. If long continued, inflation at anything like the present rate would threaten the very foundation of our society."

ALTHOUGH IT IS true that there have been contributing factors such as the energy crisis, the primary blame for high inflation must be laid firmly on the steps of Congress. In the short run, the country cannot stand a tax cut at this time. In the long run, members of Congress must be told in no uncertain terms that no longer will we stand for high-priced programs we cannot afford.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Count Your Blessings Instead Of Complaining

When I read Vel De Leon's letter to the I.J., July 31, I sensed Mrs. De Leon is a most unhappy individual. I sympathize with her situation, which no doubt is not an easy one. It is so easy for us, however, to air our adverse feelings to the public, but I am wondering how we would feel if we would "count our blessing," publicly, more often. A person's attitude is very infectious to those around him, so wouldn't it be great if more people expressed a positive reaction to the many daily situations which occur.

I am sure you are aware, Mrs. De Leon, that in many countries the mortgage payment is not of concern, but the lack of shelter is; the cost of the food is of no concern, but the lack of it. Gas and lights too high? I assume you are warm and comfortable? Impeach Nixon? Is he a dictator? Have any of your individual rights been taken away from you? Do you travel wherever you desire? Did anyone dictate to you where to live? Has your son been taken from you and placed in a factory to work? Or enforced to join the military at his tender age? And aren't you fortunate to have an automobile to drive wherever you would like to go? Need I go on?

You see, Mrs. De Leon, you do have many blessings to be thankful for, and I am sure you can count them better than I. Try very hard, my fellow countryman, to find something to be thankful for every day and you will discover your upset stomach will disappear.

Thinks 'Leakers' Far Worse Than 'Plumbers'

My letter that was published in Friday's I-J has brought some response, which I expected, of course. Some of it was very approbatory — and some not, to say the least — and in every case, the latter were all anonymous. Anonymous calls and letters carry absolutely no weight with me and cannot be answered except through such a medium as this column. So, with your permission:

For those who say"You're some kind of nut!" I can only say that these people are certainly entitled to their opinion. I don't know the reason for their anonymity, unless it were that these people can always tell their friends, "I guess I told her!" and feel better, perhaps, for the catharsis.

To those who say I am "political" in my views, I am an American first. And from what I can see the whole thing has been "political," as what could be more political than a House Judiciary Chairman who promised, if such be the case, to deliver all the Democrats' votes for impeachment, and make such promise nine months before the hearings? I say "if such be the case;" I wasn't there. But my observations were of things that I had seen in the newspaper — this one, to be exact, was the one quoted — or on television . . .

To me, the "leakers" are far worse than the "plumbers," and I do not for one moment defend them unequivocally.

Finally, to the lady (obviously outraged feminine handwriting) who anonymously castigates me for "loving Nixon more than (my) country" . . . and is a fellow-Republican who is ashamed of me, I would like to remind her that she has the same right to her opinion as I do mine, all politics aside, and I understand her outrage and sympathize with it.

But I would humbly suggest that in the interest of fair play it might be well for all of us to exercise fair play and wait until all the evidence is in before jumping on a lynch bandwagon. Then, and only then, I might just join her.

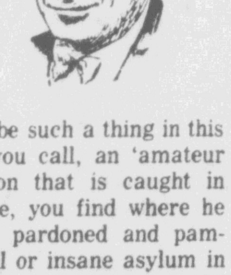
WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .



"There must not be such a thing in this country as, what you call, an 'amateur crook'. Each person that is caught in some terrible crime, you find where he has been 'paroled, pardoned and pampered' by every jail or insane asylum in the country. Some of these criminals' records and the places they have been freed from, why, it sounds like a tour of a 'one night theatrical troop'.

"It must be awful monotonous, belonging to one of these state parole boards. There is days and days when they just have to sit around, waiting for new criminals to be caught, so they can parole them." — Oct. 18, 1934.

Student From England Dislikes System

I am a student probation officer from England. I came to Marin to work in the probation office as part of my training.

During the six weeks that I have been here I have seen many aspects of the California judicial system.

I cannot claim to understand the judicial system in depth, but feel unable now to have any involvement in the supervision of probationers.

I have therefore written the county probation officer, John Brewer, pointing out the three areas I find myself unable to accept:

.I feel I cannot work within a justice system which perpetuates an institution such as the California Medical Facility at Vacaville;

I feel that I cannot accept the death penalty as punishment for a crime, however serious;

I cannot accept the disparity between sentences given to those who would thwart the Constitution and those whose crimes have a lesser total effect on society.

Butz Calls It Like It Is On Waste In Feeding Pets

WASHINGTON — Ever since he got off the plane from Indianapolis, Earl Butz has been saying things that outraged everybody except the farmers. The secretary of agriculture's joy is to tell it like he thinks it is but most city people don't — as when a couple of years ago he said ever-higher beef prices were just what the beefeaters of America needed.

This time, however, he has temporarily enlarged his constituency into the suburbs and downtown. He did it by speaking some common sense on behalf of the non-pet owners of the nation. The non-pet pamperers, rather.

IN A TIME of rising concern over international famine and future world food supplies, when drought threatens this year's crops and prices fly further out of sight, some thinkers have suggested that we all eat one hamburger less per week. The theory is that that would release vast amounts of grain for shipment to hungry areas rather than for steer fattening in feed lots of the West and Middle West.

Butz could not let this latest threat to the beef business go unzapped. Wondering out very loud whether "those ill-informed, fuzzy-thinking do-gooders" could possibly be serious, he made his counterproposal.

If those busybodies do mean what they say, Butz replied, "they could make the first onslaught on this noble goal by reducing our dog and cat population by 50 per cent, which likewise would suddenly release more grain for the world. We could also make very substantial progress increasing grain supplies by reducing by 50 per cent our horse population — which no longer pulls the plow or the dray."

Uncharacteristically, the secretary made a gesture to calm the pet fanciers before they could rise up against him. He is not really advocating cutting down the number of pets, he says. He is just making a point.

WELL, HIS POINT is worth a little discussion. Most of us average sleepers and walkers are dog lovers in the abstract; it is only when we step in the evidence, or when they bark all night next door, that thoughts of poisoning or shotgunning flit through our minds.

People who are professionally burdened with the surplus of pets in our country are a little colder about it. Public campaigns to have all pets spayed are familiar by now. Not many of us realize, however, that animal control in our cities and counties is now a half-billion-dollar annual expenditure. That is for catching, sheltering, killing and disposing of unwanted pets.

Yet if that sounds expensive, consider the cost of the ones that are wanted. Dog and cat food make a $1.8 billion industry in our country; with bird and fish food added, it comes to more than $2 billion a year.

It is a growth industry partly because of the tremendous increase in ownership of big eaters like German shepherds by city dwellers paralyzed by fear of burglars and rapists. But more expensive brands cater to the delicate palates of nervous little barkers who should be named Fifi.

IN GENERAL, pet food is fish parts, cereals and meat byproducts — things like snouts, tripe, tongue and udders. Sophisticated diners since the time of Upton Sinclair ("The Jungle," 1906) have known those are the same ingredients that go into hot dogs and bologna.

Which returns us to Butz's idea, on which I offer an improvement in the same spirit. Let the products that now go into commercial pet food, including gourmet varieties labeled London Broil and Cheese-Flavored Burgers, be used in variety meats for needy humans. Let pets eat table scraps wherever possible, as they used to. And let the multibillion-dollar pet-food industry perform a useful social function by taking a role in the animal-control program —carting away carcasses to be ground up and recycled as more pet food.

A modest proposal whereby everybody would win, including the taxpayers and the hungry.

Fairfax, San Anselmo Councils Move To Let The Sun Shine In

In an extraordinary departure from past practice in Marin, the city councils of Fairfax and San Anselmo last month interviewed applicants for city manager in public sessions.

The public, perhaps unaccustomed to participating in such matters, did not attend the sessions.

UNDER PROVISIONS of the Ralph M. Brown Act, the state's anti-secrecy law, city councils are allowed to meet behind closed doors to consider hiring municipal employees.

But Fairfax and San Anselmo went a step farther than the law and opened up the hiring process to public view.

The San Anselmo City Council, at 8 p.m. Aug. 13, will consider approval of a resolution calling for all employee hiring to be conducted in open session.

The resolution also calls for public airing of employee salary negotiations. The Brown Act allows legislative bodies to meet behind closed doors to discuss such negotiations.

THE MOVE TO OPEN hiring and salary negotiating sessions to public view was sparked by Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro, who feels that secret sessions sap public confidence in elected officials.

"Elected and appointed bodies have been hiding behind the shield of the Brown Act and the end result has been many questionable meetings," Capurro said at a recent council meeting.

"When we're spending the taxpayer's money, the public has a right to hear," he told colleagues. "I personally have nothing to hide."

Mayor Martin G. Blinder has backed Capurro's open meeting proposal. "There's no question in my mind this resolution will make life harder for me as a councilman, but I didn't run to make life easy," he said.

COUNCILMEN Kenneth L. Anderson and John H. Colteaux have opposed Capurro's proposal. They claim that open hiring and negotiating sessions would serve to hamstring the council, prevent councilmen from asking embarrassing questions of employee candidates, and spark the spectacle of "collective begging" salary sessions.

Colteaux has even claimed that residents would "lose information" under the Capurro resolution, saying councilmen would consult on the phone rather than speak out at open meetings.

Holding the swing vote on Aug. 13 is Councilman Pieter Toal, who has balked at open airings of salary negotiations.

Should Toal vote with Capurro and Blinder, San Anselmo citizens have much to gain.

Committee Beats Retirement Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A controversial bill designed to prevent state legislators from collecting a special retirement bonus has been defeated by the Assembly Rules Committee.

The panel yesterday voted 5-2 to hold the measure (AB4506) in committee after two members in line to receive the pension benefits denounced the bill's author, freshman Assemblyman Bob McLennan, R-Downey.

"I'd like to wad this bill up and stick it in his (McLennan's) ear," Assemblyman John Quimby, D-San Bernardino, said when the bill was brought up.

"I'm led to the inescapable conclusion that this is horrible grandstanding ..." said Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Los Angeles.

The bill was designed to end a provision of the legislator's retirement plan under which lawmakers who serve at least four years can immediately begin receiving a full pension when they leave the legislature instead of waiting until age 60, the normal starting age for legislative pensions. Slightly more than half of the 120 lawmakers are affected by the provision. It does not affect lawmakers elected after 1969.

The committee's action came when McLennan requested that it suspend house rules so his measure, introduced Monday, could be heard without waiting the normal 30-day period following introduction.

McLennan said afterwards he was "very disappointed and disgusted" with the committee's action. He said such a request is approved routinely by the committee, adding, "I've never seen one denied previously."

He said Karabian "went into a tirade about the bill" in the rules committee although only the merits of his request to waive the 30-day rule should have been debated.

"Since he (Karabian) has a chance of losing $140,000 in retirement benefits because of my bill," McLennan said, "It is understandable that he would react so violently. He didn't want any part of the bill to get out of the committee."

Karabian, 36, an eight-year assembly man who was defeated for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state in June, will receive $146,995 in retirement benefits before he turns 60. Quimby, 39, a 12-year veteran assemblyman who was defeated for re-election in June, will collect $213,678 before he turns 60.

Compromise Sought To Rescue BART

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A compromise bill designed to save the financially troubled Bay Area Rapid Transit District will be submitted to state legislators representing the Bay Area, Sen. James R. Mills says.

"We have to do something," Mills, D-San Diego, said yesterday. "They can't shut it down."

BART officials have said money problems could force closure of the transit system.

To reach an agreement among Bay Area lawmakers on a plan to bail out the district, Mills said he is working with the legislative analyst to amend his bill (SB1966) which is currently stalled in the Assembly Transportation Committee.

He said his bill will be heard by the committee only if it "can be put in a form acceptable to the delegation."

Mills' proposed bill would:

Extend the sales tax for a limited period in order to issue tax anticipation notes to cover the impending operating deficit.

Direct the legislative analyst to monitor management of the BART system during the period while this temporary sales tax is imposed.

Direct the legislative analyst to undertake a study to develop long-range financing alternatives for BART.

"While the subject of what kind of tax is the most equitable may be a subject for discussion," Mills said, "the simple fact is that extending the present one-half per cent sales tax is mechanically the easiest method."

In addition, he said, the time of the tax is critical.

The bill proposes to extend the one-half cent sales tax through fiscal year 1976-77, at which time the tax would be reduced to one-quarter per cent for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

20-Mile Parkway Study Authorized

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The City Council yesterday authorized a $50,000 environmental impact report as the first step towards building a 20-mile parkway along Mullholland Drive from the Hollywood Freeway to Topanga Canyon Boulevard.

The controversial $20 million project was first approved by the Council in March, 1973, and would include two-lane road, bikeways, equestrian and hiking trails and scenic development.

Most Major Papers Urge Resignation

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Most major newspapers across the nation are calling for President Nixon's resignation or a speeding up of the impeachment process for the good of the country following disclosure of Nixon's own involvement in the Watergate coverup.

But the New York Times today came out in support of the President's present position that he not resign.

The Times said it saw "considerable merit in the President's attitude ... that he intends to 'allow the Constitution to be the overriding factor.'"

"To accept this statement as a guilty plea and suggest that resignation would now close the book on Watergate would leave too many loose ends, too many questions unresolved," the Times said.

"It would do nothing to inhibit subsequent fostering of the myth of a President hounded out of office by his political enemies. Doubts could be created whether the President would actually have been convicted in an impeachment trial, whether his departure from office was really justified by the facts."

The Los Angeles Times, calling for his resignation, said in any event he will be impeached and convicted.

"He should resign immediately," the Times said. "There is no question that he will be impeached. His admissions on Monday assure his conviction in the Senate. To resign is to achieve the purpose of impeachment while sparing the nation more weeks of his inevitably uncertain leadership."

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, Omaha World-Herald and the Dallas Times Herald also said the President should step down.

The Post-Gazette said "The President should step aside and let Vice President Ford attempt to reunite the nation and get it moving in constructive directions."

"All of the President's maneuvering could not salvage anything from the wreckage of the Watergate adventure," the World-Herald said. "At this late date he could salvage something for his country —an end to a disruptive, disquieting and divisive period of history —and for himself —the redemption of bowing gracefully before necessity —by resigning."

The Times Herald said, "The public trust is gone. He should remove himself and let Vice President Ford begin to bind the nation's wounds."

Other editorial comment:

Detroit Free Press: "There should be little doubt left any more that he has ... committed offenses for which he should be impeached and removed from office."

Chicago Sun-Times: "More than ever are we thankful that the process of impeachment is under way and that the Constitution will be allowed to work its own will."

Chicago Tribune: "Every day that Mr. Nixon remains in office is a day's delay in meeting the many urgent problems that face the country."

Syracuse (N.Y.) Herald-Journal: "Resignation would be his most heroic act. The nation's preoccupation with Watergate must end."

The Oregonian, Portland, Ore.: "President Nixon's admission ... destroys not only the remaining vestiges of his credibility as chief executive, it also makes it almost impossible for his lawyers, whom he also deceived, or for any remaining Nixon loyalists in Congress, to provide for the President a credible defense in a trial in the Senate."

Trenton (N.J.) Evening Times: "The good of the country now demands that Richard M. Nixon step down from the presidency."

Boston Herald American: "... Richard M. Nixon has been his own worst enemey in the Watergate debacle. He would not be in his precarious position today if he had told the American public the truth long ago, instead of trying to outsmart his critics.

"We will not presume to judge this man whose noble dream was a peaceful world, but whose feet have been mired in the mud of supposedly practical politics. That is the duty of the other politicians in Congress. Let them judge honestly, in conscience, and with a maximum of compassion."

Boston Globe: "The President of the United States has made what amounts to a plea of guilty. But it is still his choice as to how he will leave his high office. There has to be an orderly transition. It is time now for Mr. Nixon and the Congress to come to some accommodation respecting the welfare of both the nation and the President who has led it — or misled it."

Berkshire Eagle, Pittsfield, Mass.: "The latest and biggest bombshell in the Watergate scandal seems virtually certain to blow to bits what is left of the Nixon presidency. The White House bunker is selfdestructing, and the one big thing Mr. Nixon can still do for the country is to quit his office, the sooner the better."

Brockton (Mass.) Enterprise and Times: "President Nixon by his own words has with a ringing finality sealed the lid on his own credibility. He has stripped the public of any rationale by which one could justify future face."

Providence (R.I.) Journal: "...If Mr. Nixon continues to hang on to his office then the constitutional process of impeachment and trial will have to go on to its final and bitter end. If so, Mr. Nixon's latest statement can only help speed up that denouement, and that is at least one small thing for which we all can be grateful."

New York Daily News: "Three courses are open to the President. He can resign. He can step aside ... he can fight impeachment through the House and Senate.... Everybody else, almost, is telling the President what he should or should not do next. We believe the next move is Mr. Nixon's and Mr. Nixon's alone."

Compromise Sought To Rescue BART

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A compromise bill designed to save the financially troubled Bay Area Rapid Transit District will be submitted to state legislators representing the Bay Area, Sen. James R. Mills says.

"We have to do something," Mills, D-San Diego, said yesterday. "They can't shut it down."

BART officials have said money problems could force closure of the transit system.

To reach an agreement among Bay Area lawmakers on a plan to bail out the district, Mills said he is working with the legislative analyst to amend his bill (SB1966) which is currently stalled in the Assembly Transportation Committee.

He said his bill will be heard by the committee only if it "can be put in a form acceptable to the delegation."

Mills' proposed bill would:

Extend the sales tax for a limited period in order to issue tax anticipation notes to cover the impending operating deficit.

Direct the legislative analyst to monitor management of the BART system during the period while this temporary sales tax is imposed.

Direct the legislative analyst to undertake a study to develop long-range financing alternatives for BART.

"While the subject of what kind of tax is the most equitable may be a subject for discussion," Mills said, "the simple fact is that extending the present one-half per cent sales tax is mechanically the easiest method."

In addition, he said, the time of the tax is critical.

The bill proposes to extend the one-half cent sales tax through fiscal year 1976-77, at which time the tax would be reduced to one-quarter per cent for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

20-Mile Parkway Study Authorized

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The City Council yesterday authorized a $50,000 environmental impact report as the first step towards building a 20-mile parkway along Mullholland Drive from the Hollywood Freeway to Topanga Canyon Boulevard.

The controversial $20 million project was first approved by the Council in March, 1973, and would include two-lane road, bikeways, equestrian and hiking trails and scenic development.

Most Major Papers Urge Resignation

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Most major newspapers across the nation are calling for President Nixon's resignation or a speeding up of the impeachment process for the good of the country following disclosure of Nixon's own involvement in the Watergate coverup.

But the New York Times today came out in support of the President's present position that he not resign.

The Times said it saw "considerable merit in the President's attitude ... that he intends to 'allow the Constitution to be the overriding factor.'"

"To accept this statement as a guilty plea and suggest that resignation would now close the book on Watergate would leave too many loose ends, too many questions unresolved," the Times said.

"It would do nothing to inhibit subsequent fostering of the myth of a President hounded out of office by his political enemies. Doubts could be created whether the President would actually have been convicted in an impeachment trial, whether his departure from office was really justified by the facts."

The Los Angeles Times, calling for his resignation, said in any event he will be impeached and convicted.

"He should resign immediately," the Times said. "There is no question that he will be impeached. His admissions on Monday assure his conviction in the Senate. To resign is to achieve the purpose of impeachment while sparing the nation more weeks of his inevitably uncertain leadership."

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, Omaha World-Herald and the Dallas Times Herald also said the President should step down.

The Post-Gazette said "The President should step aside and let Vice President Ford attempt to reunite the nation and get it moving in constructive directions."

"All of the President's maneuvering could not salvage anything from the wreckage of the Watergate adventure," the World-Herald said. "At this late date he could salvage something for his country —an end to a disruptive, disquieting and divisive period of history —and for himself —the redemption of bowing gracefully before necessity —by resigning."

The Times Herald said, "The public trust is gone. He should remove himself and let Vice President Ford begin to bind the nation's wounds."

Other editorial comment:

Detroit Free Press: "There should be little doubt left any more that he has ... committed offenses for which he should be impeached and removed from office."

Chicago Sun-Times: "More than ever are we thankful that the process of impeachment is under way and that the Constitution will be allowed to work its own will."

Chicago Tribune: "Every day that Mr. Nixon remains in office is a day's delay in meeting the many urgent problems that face the country."

Syracuse (N.Y.) Herald-Journal: "Resignation would be his most heroic act. The nation's preoccupation with Watergate must end."

The Oregonian, Portland, Ore.: "President Nixon's admission ... destroys not only the remaining vestiges of his credibility as chief executive, it also makes it almost impossible for his lawyers, whom he also deceived, or for any remaining Nixon loyalists in Congress, to provide for the President a credible defense in a trial in the Senate."

Trenton (N.J.) Evening Times: "The good of the country now demands that Richard M. Nixon step down from the presidency."

Boston Herald American: "... Richard M. Nixon has been his own worst enemey in the Watergate debacle. He would not be in his precarious position today if he had told the American public the truth long ago, instead of trying to outsmart his critics.

"We will not presume to judge this man whose noble dream was a peaceful world, but whose feet have been mired in the mud of supposedly practical politics. That is the duty of the other politicians in Congress. Let them judge honestly, in conscience, and with a maximum of compassion."

Boston Globe: "The President of the United States has made what amounts to a plea of guilty. But it is still his choice as to how he will leave his high office. There has to be an orderly transition. It is time now for Mr. Nixon and the Congress to come to some accommodation respecting the welfare of both the nation and the President who has led it — or misled it."

Berkshire Eagle, Pittsfield, Mass.: "The latest and biggest bombshell in the Watergate scandal seems virtually certain to blow to bits what is left of the Nixon presidency. The White House bunker is selfdestructing, and the one big thing Mr. Nixon can still do for the country is to quit his office, the sooner the better."

Brockton (Mass.) Enterprise and Times: "President Nixon by his own words has with a ringing finality sealed the lid on his own credibility. He has stripped the public of any rationale by which one could justify future face."

Providence (R.I.) Journal: "...If Mr. Nixon continues to hang on to his office then the constitutional process of impeachment and trial will have to go on to its final and bitter end. If so, Mr. Nixon's latest statement can only help speed up that denouement, and that is at least one small thing for which we all can be grateful."

New York Daily News: "Three courses are open to the President. He can resign. He can step aside ... he can fight impeachment through the House and Senate.... Everybody else, almost, is telling the President what he should or should not do next. We believe the next move is Mr. Nixon's and Mr. Nixon's alone."

KEEPING IN TRAINING FOR THE DUCK SEASON

The dog then swims (right) with the stick to the end of the seawall and short distance away, emerges and delivers the stick to Fentress.

Jacobsen Admits Milk Case Bribe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jake Jacobsen, a former lawyer for the nation's largest milk producers'' cooperative, pleaded guilty today to a charge that he gave former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally a $10,000 bribe. In entering the plea, Jacobsen agreed to testify against Connally.

Both Jacobsen and Connally were indicted by a federal grand jury July 29 on charges growing out of Connally's role in a 1971 decision by President Nixon to increase federal price support for raw milk after the milk producers pledged $2 million to Nixon's re-election campaign.

Jacobsen, 54, of Austin, Tex., pleaded guilty to one count of making a bribe. Chief U.S. District Court Judge George L. Hart Jr. then released him to the custody of his attorney.

Jacobsen faces a maximum penality of two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

In exchange for the guilty plea on the bribery charge, Deputy Special Prosecutor Henry Ruth dropped other charges against Jacobsen, including an indictment filed in U.S. District Court in San Angelo, Tex.

In a letter to Jacobsen's lawyer May 21, Ruth spelled out terms for accepting the single guilty plea and dropping the other charges in return for Jacobsen's testimony against Connally.

Connolly, a long-time Texas associate of Jacobsen, will be arraigned Friday. He is charged with a total of five counts of accepting bribes, conspiracy and lying to the grand jury. If convicted, Connally would face a maximum penalty of 19 years imprisonment and a $50,000 fine.

Jacobsen pleaded guilty to giving Connally what Hart called "an illegal gratuity" of $10,000 in cash between May 14, 1971, and Sept.27, in 1971.

The payment was made, the indictment said, "for and because of official acts performed by him to wit, his recommendations in his official capacity concerning an increase in the federal milk price support level."

Connally has maintained he is innocent of any wrong-doing.

The silver-haired Jacobsen, a White House legislative counsel during the Johnson administration, wore a dark suit and sat somberly in the courtroom during most of this morning's 10-minute proceeding. He stood before the judge, following abbreviated reading of the charge by the judge, and answered in a firm voice:

"I plead guilty, your honor."

Jacobsen's sentence will be imposed later.

The separate federal indictment against Jacobsen in Tecas, dropped in return for his guilty plea and agreement to testify, charged him and an associate, Ray Cowan, with misuse of an $825,000 loan from the First Savings and Loan Association of San Angelo.

Both Jacobsen and Cowan formerly were executives of the institution. It has never been disclosed what federal prosecutors believe was done with the money.

A Watergate grand jury accused Jacobsen of paying Connally "for official acts performed by him, to wit, his recommendations in his official capacity concerning an increase in the federal milk price support level ... announced on March 21, 1971."

The indictment said that after the price support decision, Jacobsen gave Connally one cash payment of $5,000 on May 14, 1971, and another of the same amount on Sept. 24, 1971. It charged the cash came from the Associated Milk Producers, Inc. (AMPI).

Connally and Jacobsen, the grand jury said, "unlawfully, willfully and knowingly did combine, conspire, confederate and agree together" in the cover-up.

The grand jury charged that under the terms of the conspiracy Connally would testify that he had refused to accept the $10,000 because he was a Democrat in a Republican administration.

(UPI Telephoto)

BETWEEN TWO TOWERS

'Fearless' Walk in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — A daring young Frenchman startled thousands of Manhattan office workers today with a wildcat high wire act 1,350 feet in the air between the towers of the world's second tallest building.

Wearing a V-necked polo shirt and black pants and carrying a balancing pole, Philippe Petit, 25, managed to stay out of the clutches of the police for about 75 minutes as he dazzled the crowd with a dancing act on the precariously swaying 140-foot wire.

Petit, well known as a pantomimist and amateur acrobat in the city's artistic circles, once reportedly staged a similiar stunt between the towers of Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris.

The highwire act was first spotted about 7:30 a.m. Petit made at least seven or eight trips — even stopping to sit and lie down — between the twin 110-story towers of the new World Trade Center on a wire apparently shot across by a harpoon device. Police finally pulled him off the wire and took him into custody.

The crowd cheered as Petit was hustled from an elevator at street level by police.

Port Authority Sgt. Charles Daniels, said Petit was on the wire for an hour and 15 minutes.

"But I saw him do his dancing routine for 40 minutes," Daniels, of East Orange, N.J., said. "He was laughing and smiling to himself — he had complete confidence in his ability — so that he started jumping. He even leaned down on one knee and turned around.

"He lay down on the high wire and started rolling around lackadaisically.

"He was absolutely fearless and had supreme confidence in his ability.... "He was bouncing up and down — his feet were actually leaving the wire. He would just lie there as though he wanted to take a nap."

At the stationhouse, the five-foot-four Petit said he couldn't explain why he did it.

"I don't know. I can't explain. There is no why," he said.

Then, playfully balancing a police officer's hat on the end of his nose, while he and an alleged accomplice, Frenchman Jean Franion Heckle, waited to be booked on criminal trespass and disorderly conduct charges, he added:

"I just look around for a place to put my wire; a place to walk across. I just dream of that and one day the dream comes true."

He said the feat "was a very difficult one because it is so high. There was some wind. You are afraid to be afraid. You hang on to your pole which is your life."

A Port Authority spokesman said Petit and accomplices, disguised as hard hat construction workers putting finishing touches on the huge Trade Center, apparently reconnoitered the building for three days before the stunt. They sneaked their equipment to the top yesterday

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors yesterday declared their intent to assume control over both the county's housing authority and redevelopment agency. (Other Marin supervisors stories, page 24.)

Supervisors, however, delayed any action at least two months so that legal and political ramifications can be studied.

The matter will return to the board in late September or early October when it reviews a consultant's study on the economic impact of the county general plan.

In that study, Consultant Angus N. McDonald recommended the housing authority be dissolved and its functions and personnel placed under the department of public works.

The proposed county takeover of the independent agencies, both served by one staff, is an offshoot of a controversy over the continued employment of Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd.

A four-member majority of the housing authority board has supported moves for Shepherd's ouster in recent months, while a majority of the redevelopment agency board supports him.

Supervisors avoided that issue yesterday, with only Chairman Michael Wornum urging the two agencies to resolve the question before the reorganization is considered again by supervisors.

"If Shepherd stays, that's fine; if Shepherd is asked to leave, that's fine. Just get it solved," Wornum said.

The matter first came before supervisors two weeks ago when the three-member minority on the housing board urged supervisors to consider merging the housing authority and redevelopment agency boards. The result would have been a single commission favorable toward Shepherd.

Other members of both boards appeared at yesterday's meeting to oppose the proposal saying the two functions are different, even though served by a joint staff.

Spokesmen from the Marin City Council, Marin City Tenants Council and Marin City Community Services District also opposed any merger.

The Central and Southern Marin chapters of the League of Women Voters called for an immediate takeover by supervisors while reorganization of the agencies is studied.

They listed seven possible re-

Battle Flares Between Baptiste, Bella Aaron

A long-simmering dispute between Marin County Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste and Criminal Justice Planning Director Bella H. Aaron erupted last night as he called for her removal from a regional planning board.

When the smoke cleared, Mrs. Aaron left the meeting room announcing she planned to resign her county job, having lost her seat on the regional board.

At issue during the emotional confrontation was Mrs. Aaron's "public member" seat on the North Bay Criminal Justice Planning Council, a four-county group charged with overseeing federal law-and-order grants.

Mrs. Aaron, whose county salary comes in part from those grants, was charged last month with a conflict-of-interest by the regional director, Raymond Grady.

(Mrs. Aaron had earlier accused Grady of misallocating about $850,000 which went to various projects in Sonoma County. The regional board upheld Grady.)

To remove the conflict, county officials suggested shifting funding so that her salary would be paid completely by the county.

The proposal was endorsed by state officials but supervisors Baptiste and Gary T. Giacomini refused to approve the shift, requiring at least four favorable votes.

They questioned whether the added cost of $5,000 was worth it to keep Mrs. Aaron on the regional board.

Baptiste said Mrs. Aaron had "lost credibility with the region" and should be replaced on the six-member Marin contingent to the council.

He noted that he had differed with her in the past over such things as shifting the honor farm out of the sheriff's department, the role of the corrections commission and the recent San Rafael drug squad proposal.

Mrs. Aaron, caught by surprise, told the board "you're being most, most unfair. Everything I've done was in the best

A Nixon Decision To Quit Reported

Denial Of Story By Aides

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Providence, R.I., newspaper said today President Nixon had definitely decided to resign. White House spokesmen insisted the situation had not changed since yesterday when Nixon was quoted as saying he would not be "hounded out of office."

"I can't confirm that," Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren said in response to a Providence, R.I., Journal-Bulletin story quoting a source close to the President as saying that Nixon has decided to resign and that the decision was irrevocable. (See other impeachment stories page 9 and 43.)

"There is no reason for me this afternoon to add anything to what has been said regarding a resignation," Warren said.

Another White House aide, communications chief Ken W. Clawson, said that the President is standing by his statement yesterday that he intends to stay on the job.

The Providence story was written by Douglas C. Wilson of its Washington staff. Another Journal-Bulletin reporter, Jack White, won the Pulitzer Prize last year for his story on Nixon's taxes.

The newspaper quoted the source —described as "an undaunted devotee of the President" —as saying:

"The President has come to the conclusion that the national interest may best be served by his resignation, irrespective of the mammoth injustice committed against him that prompted this painful decision on his part."

Warren, under a barrage of questions on whether Nixon would resign, repeatedly told reporters, "The position of the White House has been stated."

Warren told reporters yesterday that Nixon told his cabinet that he intended to stay on the job and to allow the constitutional process, meaning impachment and a possible Senate trial, to run its course.

Warren said that Republican senators who believe Nixon is out of touch with the public "are wrong" in all respects.

When asked whether Nixon would see a Republican delegation which may seek an appointment to demand his resignation, Warren insisted that the question was not before Nixon at this time and would only say "we would meet that when it occurs."

"I know of no meeting with congressional leaders and no direct request," Warren said.

Warren seemed more reticent to answer questions but he repeated several times "I can tell

FOUR-MILLIONTH PASSENGER

Kay Apgar of Mill Valley appears bewildered this morning as she is overwhelmed by reporters, television cameramen and officials from the Golden Gate Bridge District as she waits to board the ferry Golden Gate in Sausalito. A regular ferry commuter, she was singled out as the four-millionth passenger to use the 575-passenger ferry since it began service between San Francisco and Sausalito four years ago. Miss Apgar, who described her reaction as "total shock," was given gifts and personally congratulated by district Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring and director Lawrence Mazzola.

Immunity For Nixon Not Likely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is in no mood to grant President Nixon immunity from criminal prosecution if he resigns.

"The law should apply equally," said House Republican leader John Rhodes in expressing what appeared to be the majority sentiment among House members.

Even those who earlier urged immunity as an inducement to Nixon to resign, such as Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., backed off, maintaining their silence as almost everyone in Congress assumed that Nixon either would step down or be removed from office in a Senate trial.

The Constitution expressly states that Nixon would be subject to criminal prosecution if he is removed from office.

The only punishment allowed in an impeachment trial is removal and disqualification from holding any other federal position of honor and trust.

But the Constitution also

GOP Senators Ask President To Resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several Republican senators — acting on their own initiative — have sent President Nixon a message urging him to resign, Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said today.

Sen. Norris H. Cotton, R-N.H., also said the advice had been conveyed to Nixon but both he and Brooke stressed that the action was not undertaken on behalf of all Republican senators.

Brooke, who last Nov. 3 first called on Nixon to resign, predicted the Preident would step down. "I think he is very seriously considering it now — more seriously than at any time before."

Republican senators met for more than two hours this morning but discussed Nixon's situation for only 20 or 25 minutes. They took no united actions and reached no decisions, members said. They planned to meet again later in the day.

The pressure for President Nixon to leave office that began to build Monday when Nixon admitted he had tried to head off a FBI investigation of the Watergate cover-up continued today with some of his previously strongest support deserting him.

Rep. John Rhodes, House GOP leader, said yesterday he would vote for impeachment and Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said today Nixon could no longer be presumed innocent in a Senate trial and if held the trial would determine only Nixon's "degree of accountability."

In his first direct statement since Nixon disclosed Monday that he had sought to limit the FBI investigation of the Watergate burglary, Scott noted that he had said often in the past that Nixon was entitled to be presumed innocent in any Senate trial.

"His own statement has removed the presumption," Scott said. "But he has left us with the question of the degree of accountability."

Scott's comments were the latest indication of the crumbling of Nixon support among

Greek Force Is In Retreat

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Turkish forces blasted a region of northern Cyprus with a fierce artillery barrage today, driving Greek Cypriot defenders into hasty retreat in a major violation of the island's shaky, eight-day truce.

In Nicosia, a government spokesman announced President Glafkos Clerides would reshuffle his government for "political reasons," seeking broad popular support for his two-week-old regime.

Military representatives of Greece, Turkey and Britainmet for the sixth time today in a bid to end fighting on the island by mapping cease-fire lines and U.N.-patrolled buffer zones.

A spokesman for the Canadian U.N. contingent said snipers in Nicosia shot and mortally wounded a Canadian U.N. soldier in Nicosia last night, the second member of the U.N. force to die since the Turkish invasion July 20.

UPI Correspondent Michael Keats said fighting on the island's northern coast broke out early this morning just minutes after a U.N. observer helicopter flew over the embattled region and headed back to the capital of Nicosia.

Heavy artillery shells exploded in the fields around three villages overrun by Turkish troops yesterday in what a U.N. spokesman called the heaviest fighting on the island since the July 30 Geneva cease-fire agreement.

The defenders, members of the 10,000-man Greek Cypriot national guard, rushed from their positions onto a coastal road and marched in single file away from the battle area.

The road was littered with the smoking ruins of Greek Cypriot trucks and armored personnel carriers that had been hit by Turkish shell fire. Cypriot gunners hooked their weapons to trucks and fled to the rear.

The Cypriot national guard led the July 15 coup that ousted President Makarios and installed former gunman Nikos Sampson as president. Sampson quit July 22 and Clerides took over the same day.

On the eastern wing of the island, U.N. reinforcements went to the port of Famagusta after Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides said local Turks were intent on gaining control of the city's harbor.

The crisis on Cyprus, where ethnic Greeks outnumber ethnic Turks 4-to-1, erupted July 15 when Greek Cypriots deposed President Makarios. The Turks invaded the island July 20 and came close to the brink of war with Greece.

An estimated 30,000 Turkish troops on the island, backed by tanks and artillery, hold an 18-mile land corridor from Kyrenia to Nicosia. They are opposed by the 10,000-man Cypriot national guard and Cypriot guerrillas.

Greece, Turkey and Britain, which guaranteed the former British colony independence in 1960, agreed in Geneva last week to a standstill cease-fire and and U.N.-manned buffer zones between the warring armies.

The negotiations moved to Nicosia, where military officers of the three sides met for the fifth time yesterday in a bid to draw up truce lines despite persistent violations of the cease-fire.

Col. Jerry Hunter, British delegate and chief of the talks, said the three nations "consider they may have made some progress" at the meeting yesterday.

The delegates had been scheduled to sign a preliminary agreement on the buffer zones yesterday, but Greece called off the ceremony after fighting broke out on the northern coast.

In Athens, a Foreign Ministry source said Greece would be represented at the second round of the Geneva conference tomorrow "in order to show its goodwill." Greece had threatened previously to boycott the talks.

The Greek source said, however, the government had reservations and would walk out of the discussions if Turkey continued to violate the July 30 cease-fire agreement.

Turkish Cypriot Defense Minister Osman Orek said he felt the Geneva conference would not resume as scheduled because it was "not practical to start political talks with half the Turkish Cypriot population held as potential hostages."

BATTLE CASUALTY — This house in the Greek Cypriot village of Larnaca-Lapithou was damaged by Turkish artillery and mortar fire yesterday during the longest outbreak of fighting since the cease fire.

Israeli Planes Strike Twice Inside Lebanon

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Israeli warplanes struck into southern Lebanon twice in 13 hours today, hitting Arab guerrilla bases in the region known as "Fatahland" just north of the Israeli frontier, the military command in Tel Aviv announced.

The planes first struck southern Lebanon shortly after 1 a.m., the Israeli command said, in the general area where three guerrillas kidnaped four Israeli Druse villagers last night. The Druse were working on Israel's security fence along the northern frontier which is designed to prevent such attacks.

The command said the second raids began at 2:10 p.m. and lasted for several minutes.

The command said in a communique that one of the kidnaped villagers managed to escape from the guerrillas during the night. He stayed in hiding until daybreak and then slipped back into Israel.

The air strikes were the first in two weeks against the area the Israelis call Fatahland because of the concentration of Al Fatal Palestinian guerrilla bases. The command said all Israeli planes returned safely from both strikes.

An Israeli armored patrol crossed into southern Lebanon soon after the abduction, but failed to free the kidnaped villagers —residents of a settlement on the Golan Heights.

The Tel Aviv command said the Israeli troops seized six Arab villagers allegedly connected with the abduction and clashed with Lebanese forces near Al Majidive, one mile north of the frontier.

The patrol crossed back into Israel with the Lebanese villagers —possibly to exchange them in the future for the kidnaped Jewish settlers.

The Defense Ministry in Beirut said Lebanese artillery fired on the patrol for 45 minutes, forcing the Israelis to withdraw.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin told the Knesset (parliament) Israel would consider secret contacts with Jordanian officials in an effort to reach a lasting peace settlement.

Rabin said Israel would not reject "opportunities to conduct dialogue without publicity, should the opposite side so desire for reasons of its own, in order to prepare the conditions for open negotiations."

He promised, however, to give voters a final say on any accord for the return of Jordan's West Bank region, captured by Israel in the 1967 Middle East War.

Israeli rightists have said former Prime Minister Golda Meir met secretly with Jordanian King Hussein last month to discuss a possible West Bank agreement.

In the Arab world, relations between Egypt and Libya took another turn for the worse today, with the Tripoli government demanding the return of a squadron of Mirage warplanes loaned to Cairo during the 1973 Middle East War.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat sent a 10-page letter to Col. Moammar Khadafy, the Libyan ruler, accusing Tripoli of an "attempt to pressure Egypt and create problems for her."

Sadat accused Libyan spies of subversion in Egypt, but said his government was willing to return the warplanes if Khadafy sends an envoy to discuss the matter.

Ties between the two nations have deteriorated steadily since Egypt improved relations with the United States following last October's 17-day war and signed a Sinai Desert troop separation pact with Israel.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Meany Supports Resignation

CHICAGO (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany said Monday's release of new Watergate tapes reinforces his view that President Nixon should resign.

Meany

Meany said that if Nixon is not out of the White House by the November elections, the Republicans face a political disaster in which they will loose 60 congressional seats.

"As it stands now, it is going to be a disaster for the Republican party, and I mean a real disaster," he said.

"I'll make a prediction. If he's still in there and this is still going on, they'll lose 60 seats in the House."

Meany also said he believes that public employees — including police and firemen — will strike over contract disputes in the future.

Meany's statement came yesterday after the labor organization's executive council chartered a new public employees department.

Bombing Arrests

BOLOGNA, Italy (UPI) — Police arrested three alleged members of the extremist neofascist Black Order today as suspects in a bombing that killed 12 persons aboard an express train packed with vacationers.

Officials said two more suspects were sought in the Sunday bombing of the train — the Rome to Munich express.

In a search of their homes police found the manuscript of a typewritten manifesto left in a telephone booth Monday in which a Black Order cell claimed credit for the bombing.

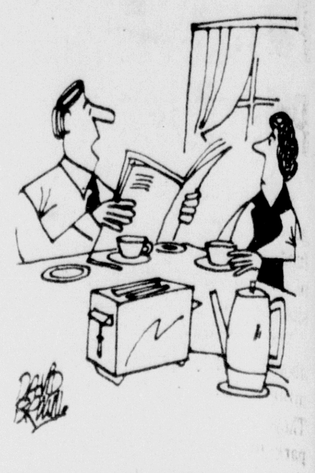
Police said the suspects also were linked to an attempt during the night to bomb the Bologna offices of the Commission of Public Security.

Disaster Cause?

MIAMI (UPI) — Firemen, who rescued 15 survivors and recovered seven bodies from the collapsed offices of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration say they found notes from employees complaining of roof leaks before the disaster.

The parking deck atop the three-story-high building collapsed Monday morning, when 57 cars were parked there.

Fire chief Don Hickman, who directed the 24-hour rescue effort, said roof leaks could have caused the concrete to absorb water, increasing the weight of the roof and possibly contributing to the disaster.



"Prices are finally leveling off — just beyond our reach!"

Cuts Viet Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has slashed military aid to Vietnam by $300 million and cut the size of the U.S. mission there by 10 per cent in passing a $83.4 billion defense appropriation for 1975.

The action came last night on one of the last major pieces of legislation to be passed before the House can begin impeachment proceedings.

The 350 to 43 vote sending the bill to the Senate came after some conservatives turned back an effort to cut the total by $2.5 billion more.

That proposal, by Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., who had the backing of both liberals and fiscal conservatives, lost on a vote of 216 to 178.

Split Forecast

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — A new Ethiopian draft constitution stripping Emperor Haile Selassie of the monarch's age-old absolute powers may split the country's armed forces, diplomats said today.

Communists Capture Thuong Duc

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops seized a key district capital near Da Nang today in the first major Communist victory of a three-week-old drive against the outskirts of the strategic port city.

Field reports said the Communists seized Thuong Duc, a town 25 miles southwest of Da Nang, in hand-to-hand fighting with crack government ranger defending the war-torn district capital.

The Saigon command reported losing radio contact with the town's defenders soon after Communists backed by tanks and artillery broke through Thuong Duc's barbed wire defense perimeter at midmorning.

"We think because of the size of the attacking force, the rangers may have moved away from the town and that is why we cannot contact them," a command spokesman said.

Field reports said the Communists broke through the final, concertina wire defenses and swarmed into the government lines, apparently overwhelming all resistance in less than an hour.

South Vietnam has warned the Communists the fall of a major town in the Da Nang fighting would destroy the Jan. 28, 1973, cease-fire agreement.

The reports said the town's ranger defenders — former mercenaries for American forces in South Vietnam — abandoned the one-time U.S. Green Beret outpost guarding the district capital.

The 14,000 residents of Thuong Duc, the equivalent of a county seat in the United States, fled the war-torn town in the early days of the Da Nang offensive. Many failed to reach government lines and fell into Communist hands.

Thuong Duc was the second district capital seized by Communists since the 1973 cease-fire. North Vietnamese troops captured Kien Duc, 125 miles north of Saigon, last November, but government forces retook the town four days later.

The next target in the Communist march toward Da Nang was expected to be the district capital of Duc Duc, eight miles southeast of Thuong Duc.

The fall of Duc Duc, defended by a 2,500-man regiment of government army troops, would be a serious blow to the morale of the South Vietnamese armed forces.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces began their offensive July 17 against the southwestern approaches to Da Nang, 370 miles north of Saigon and South Vietnam's second largest city.

Waves of government warplanes bombed Communist positions around Thuong Duc and other besieged towns in the region. Pilots reported killing 85 Communists and knocking out two big 130mm artillery guns with 47 air strikes.

The Saigon command reported 54 Communists killed yesterday in fighting at Thuong Duc and three other embattled county capitals southwest of Da Nang. Four government soldiers were reported slain and 17 wounded.

Many Injured In Canada Bus Crash

CHILLIWACK, B.C. (UPI) — A Greyhound bus carrying 48 persons plunged off the Trans-Canada Highway near here yesterday, killing the driver and injuring most of the passengers.

A Royal Canadian Mounted Police spokesman said the bus was en route from Penticton, B.C., to Vancouver when it went out of control and plunged down an embankment, coming to rest in a creek. Many of the passengers climbed through windows to escape.

The Next Step

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A disengagement of forces agreement between Jordan and Israel is the next necessary step toward peace in the Middle East, according to Jordan's premier and foreign minister Zaid al-Rifai.

Novato Sets Park Bond Priorities

Novato City Council last night gave priority in state park bond fund expenditure to acquisition of a nine-acre unused school site in Domingo Canyon.

The choice was urged by about 25 residents of the Domingo Canyon neighborhood. They spoke of the need for a park in the area, the beauty of the site and improvements made by the community.

Councilmen agreed the first effort should be to lease the site from the Novato Unified School District and if that isn't achieved, the site should be purchased.

Parks and Recreation Director Lester S. Russell reported the city's share of state park bond funds is $97,464.

The parks and recreation commission had recommended priority be given to the Domingo Canyon site along Marin Oaks Drive but it also favored development of a portion of the site.

Councilmen said park funds should be used for acquisition rather than development.

Second place went to acquisition of land at Scottsdale Pond west of Highway 101 near Redwood Boulevard, a choice that wasn't recommended by the commission.

The vote was 3-1 with Councilman Gail Wilhelm, who viewed Scottsdale Pond as potential open sapce, dissenting. Mayor David Price Jones, on vacation, was absent.

Third place went to acquisition of a nine-acre unused school parcel at Novato High School by lease and fourth to expansion and improvement of the city's bicycle and pedestrian path system.

Mrs. Wilhelm sought unsuccessfully to place acquisition of Slade Park, which serves Poplar Terrace, an area cut off from the main part of town by the Highway 101 bypass.

Fellow coulcilmen said Slade Park, about one acre, probably could be acquired with city funds rather than state park funds and the council authorized the staff to start negotiations for purchase of the land. The park was developed by the neighborhood several years ago, but has fallen into disrepair.

Councilmen agreed to notify the school board of its interest in the unused school sites.

The Novato City Council also:

CABLE TV — Set Sept. 10 for a public hearing on an application by Liberty TV Cable Inc. to raise its monthly rates from $4.50 to $6 for the first set.

DOG LICENSE FEES — Agreed it wouldn't support an increase in dog license fees, a proposed county-wide move, unless it received justification for the increase, not yet specified.

FINANCE ASSISTANT — Accepted the job specifications for the post of senior finance assistant at a salary range of $1,064 to $1,293 to become effective Aug. 17.

BIN COPY SORTER — Approved specifications for a 30-bin copy sorter to be used with duplicating equipment and set bid opening at 10 a.m. Aug. 19.

MOTOR BOAT — Authorized purchase of a 12-foot boat and outboard motor for use in the parks and recreation department's sailing program at Bahia Lagoon at a cost of $320.

CITY BIRTHDAY — Agreed with a recommendation from Margaret A. Coady, city historian, that a committee be appointed to plan the city's 15th anniversary next January.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

Musician Beats Telephone Case

INGLEWOOD (UPI) — Rock musician Ike Turner was cleared yesterday of charges of defrauding the Pacific Telephone Co. by using a "blue box" to make unlimited free long distance calls.

The boxes generate sound tones that manipulate the company's lines and computers, enabling users to make direct dial calls and bypass the billing process.

$13 Million Budget Adopted In Novato

A $13,304,429 final budget for fiscal 1974-75 was adopted last night by the Novato Unified School board before an audience of 18 persons.

The budget is $160,916 more than the $13,143,513 publication budget.

Supt. Games G. Bunker said that the assessments on utilities were more than expected so the district will get that much more in tax revenue. He said that the money would be placed in the contingencies fund.

The district has a 25 per cent increase in assessed valuation from $114,092,757 last year to $142,710,112 this year, Bunker said.

Annette Moor of 21 San Carlos Way, Novato, asked if there was any money in the budget for trustees salaries. Board President Jan Murray explained that last fall the board had voted 6-1 against salaries.

Judy Cook of the Pleasant Valley Parent-Teacher Assn. asked if the money was still in the budget to pave the play area at Pleasant Valley School and was assured that it was.

These were the only comments from the audience.

The Novato United School District board also:

CONTRACTS — Awarded a $25,632 contract to Kunst Brothers Inc. of San Rafael to paint Hill Junior High School; a $6,325 contract to Higgins Lumber Co. of San Francisco and a $4,294 contract to MacBeath Hardwood Co. of San Francisco to supply lumber to the woodworking classes.

SCHOOL DAY — Set the regular school day at the same length as last year, then set the morning starting times as 8:15 for high schools, 9 for junior high schools, 8:30 for early elementary and 9:30 for late elementary. On Nov. 4, the times will change to 9:30 for Hill and San Jose junior high schools, 9 for the early elementary and 10 a.m. for late elementary. The high schools and Sinaloa Junior High School remain the same.

EASEMENTS — Approved buying for $10 each from the county two pedestrian easements to school sites in San Marin.

TESTS — Approved the schedule of 12 state mandated tests for the school year.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to a closed meeting to instruct the board representative on administrative salary negotiations and to its regular meeting at 8 p.m., Aug. 27 at the Novato High School lecture hall.

Housing Is Up In W. Germany

BONN (UPI) — Private dwellings in West Germany increased by 3.1 per cent during 1973 to reach a total of about 22,640,000, the Federal Office of Statistics reported.

This represents the largest increase in several years. It compares to an increase of 2.9 per cent in 1972 and 2.5 per cent in 1971.

says: "The party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law."

Any prosecution of Nixon after he leaves office presumably would be decided by his successor, Vice President Gerald R. Ford, by Attorney General William Saxbe and possibly by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

The prevailing congressional sentiment at this point appears to be that Nixon should not be subjected to a jail sentence in addition to the humiliation of removal or resignation, but nevertheless that Congress should keep its hands off that question.

This sentiment is based on a feeling that the country should get the whole Watergate matter behind it, and a feeling that removal from office is the most severe punishment reasonable in Nixon's case.

Many feel further prosecution would amount to persecution.

"Even the Russians let Khrushchev retire to his villa," one Southern Republican said.

Many congressmen question whether the Constitution gives Congress the power to grant immunity to a president, and whether any immunity would also extend to state and civil prosecution.

One possible route around this would be a "sense of the Congress" resolution, carrying no force of law but expressing the will of Congress to the new president that Nixon had been punished enough.

Even this route has gained few sympathizers.

The White House says emphatically that Nixon has asked for no immunity, and this is confirmed by Speaker Carl Albert and other congressional leaders.

If Nixon should ask for immunity as a price for resigning, the mood of Congress could change.

So far only one halfway serious move has developed in Congress toward a possible immunity resolution.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., is sounding out House members, mainly Republicans, about the possibility of a sense of the Congress resolution against prosecution. He apparently is getting little encouragement.

But he said, "There is a great feeling in the House that the President should not be prosecuted. Seeing him dragged through every court in the country would be distasteful."

Republicans led the list in the House of those opposing immunity.

"It might come back to haunt you," said Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill. "It derogates from the principle the Supreme Court very recently affirmed, equity before the law."

Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., a member of the House Judiciary Committee and a former Nixon supporter, said he is opposed to prosecution, but "I would be opposed to an immunity bill too."

Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., said immunity legislation would be unnecessary because, "I don't think they would prosecute him for anything if he resigned."

Anti-immunity sentiment appears to be stronger in the House than in the Senate.

Both Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Republican assistant leader Robert P. Griffin said they would consider the possibility of an immunity resolution.

But, asked if there were any "serious expectations" of congressional immunity, Mansfield firmly replied, "No."

Rockefeller Is Supported For Vice President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, credited with persuading President Nixon to choose Gerald R. Ford vice president, is now urging the selection of Nelson A. Rockefeller if Ford succeeds Nixon.

Quoted in today's Washington Post, Laird said, "Ford and Rockefeller will form a winning combination for the Republican party."

Other party leaders are also urging Ford to nominate the former New York governor, the Post reported.

One Republican source the Post did not identify said one reason Rockefeller, a three-time aspirant for the GOP presidential nomination, would be a good vice president is that he would be 72 years old and too old to run for president in 1980, assuming Ford becomes chief executive soon and wins re-election in 1976.

GOP Senators Ask President To Resign

his strongest defenders. A number of leading Republicans in the Senate have asked that he resign.

Scott and other GOP leaders arranged to meet this afternoon to discuss the possibility of sending a delegation to the White House to relay their feelings to the President. A morning caucus sidestepped the question and concentrated instead on naming members to a new congressional budget committee.

Scott did not say what he meant by "degree of accountability" but presumably it would be the question whether Nixon's acts warranted his removal from office.

Scott's Democratic counterpart, Mike Mansfield, said today the Senate should go ahead with an impeachment trial, provided the House recommends it, even if Nixon resigned.

"It's gone so far now that I think we'd better carry it through to a conclusion," Mansfield said. Mansfield said it was a personal statement and did not necessarily represent the views of the Democratic leadership.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., a former Republican national chairman, said today that "with the exception of a very few senators, he's (Nixon) on his own for the time being" although minds could be changed if "something happens that deserves support."

"Many of us feel let down," Dole said.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford met with Nixon's chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig, for an hour today to exchange views. A Ford spokesman denied Ford was planning for possible succession to the presidency.

Cotton said it was his impression that "two or three" senators had written Nixon to convey their feelings that resignation would be in the national interest. The two or three are in addition to Senate GOP whip Robert Griffin who announced two days ago that he was urging Nixon to give up.

Brooke said he hopes Nixon will step down before the House begins impeachment debate Aug. 19 "because he would not go down in history as a second President to be impeached."

"I think the time is now — the time is right," said Brooke.

Brooke said he felt Nixon "now knows the tenor of the Senate; he knows how strongly senators feel. He knows many senators who would rather not have a long and tortuous impeachment trial.

"I can see nothing the President can gain — nothing — unless he honestly believes he would not be convicted. The country has everything to lose and nothing to gain."

Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr., R-N.J., formerly one of Nixon's most vocal defenders, said today he sees Senate conviction of the President as a certainty.

"I can see no sensible reason to hang in, so to speak, in an area where you have absolutely no possiblility of winning," Sandman said. "Conviction in the Senate, in my judgment, now is inevitable."

Sens. Barry M. Goldwater and John Tower — two of Nixon's staunchest conservative supporters in the Senate — said at yesterday's meeting that they favored Nixon's resignation, according to three Senate sources, two of whom attended.

Goldwater denied the report and Tower could not be reached for comment.

Tower, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, said his assessment of the meeting — open to all 43 Senate Republicans — was that "the majority sentiment of Republican senators is that he should retire from office.

"The mood is of great concern that the President does not comprehend the hazard he faces in coming to trial in the Senate," the Texan said. "It's pretty obvious there is growing sentiment for resignation among Republicans."

Midwest Rain Termed Too Little, Too Late

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Gentle rains touched portions of the nation's drought-blistered midlands yesterday, but most farmers and experts agreed that it was too little and too late to help the withered crops.

"What we got wasn't anything," one Kansas farmer said. "But then with the way things are now, it could rain 40 days and 40 nights and it probably wouldn't help."

Darrell Johns, a Nebraska farmer, has finally figured out a way to avoid the anguish he feels every time he walks in his scorched fields.

"Just don't go out," he said with disgust.

By now, the corn should be standing green and tall — well above the head of an average adult. But today it stands chest high and yellowing in Johns' field, the dried stalks rattling in the wind.

The leaves were curled into spikes or just withered.

"I haven't been out in all of it," Johns said of his 250-acre corn crop. "Some of it is green, but there aren't any ears. I doubt if any of it is worthwhile."

Across the road from Johns' farm, Kent Antes is having the same trouble. Antes notes that all the crops in the Syracuse, Neb., area are "pretty gruesome sights."

The Agriculture Department Tuesday began approving emergency credit for farmers whose crops and ranches have been severely damaged by the drought.

The loans authorized for Dewey and Siebach counties of South Dakota are the first to be offered as a result of the current drought, which has resulted in more than $9 billion in damage to crops and livestock.

Both Nebraska and Oklahoma have sought disaster declarations for their states to help farmers and ranchers get emergency help.

George Cressman, director of the National Weather Service, said the drought could be part of a cycle, but noted there was disagreement on the cycle theory.

Cressman said during a visit to the Omaha, Neb., weather bureau that, while he hadn't visited Nebraska's parched cornfields, he did stop at some farms in Kansas and found the corn there "gone ... I mean it's burned up."

FUSS

interest of Marin County, not Bella Aaron."

She added, at one point crying, that her removal stemmed from the dispute with the regional director over funding.

"To listen to Baptiste, it is as if I was the criminal and not those caught with their hands in the cookie jar . . . who Judge (Charles Read) Best and I exposed," she said. "You can have my job now and for the future. You're affecting my credibility."

Giacomini said he shared Baptiste's position, asking Mrs. Aaron "is it worth $5,000 to keep you on a board you've alienated."

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Michael Wornum disagreed, but noted it would take four votes to keep her on the board. Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere was absent.

One Lone Picket At Phone Office

A lone picket showed up today at the offices of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., worrying some passersby into asking if the once threatened strike against the company, thought settled, was going to take place after all.

The picketing was promptly disowned by president of Local 9404 of the Communications Worker of America, Bernard V. Chiaravalle. He said workers dissatisfied with the agreement hammered out by company and union negotiators should wire union headquarters in Washington.

Hiring Policy Under Attack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The League of United Latin American Citizens is charging the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District with discriminatory hiring practices.

At a news conference yesterday, league president Joe Velez said that of the district's 750 employes, only 28 have Spanish surnames.

In contrast, he said the district employs 57 blacks.

League spokesmen said they will ask an investigation by the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The district receives federal funds.

NIXON

you the President is aware of the expressions being reported."

The shock waves from the President's release of the June 23, 1972, transcripts are still hitting the White House and have cost Nixon his staunchest Republican supporters, including House leader John J. Rhodes and the 10 congressmen on the House Judiciary Committee who defended him against impeachment.

Some, like the ranking committee Republican Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, have issued bitter statements, accusing the President of deceiving them.

Rhodes dropped his support yesterday and announced he will vote to impeach the President for obstruction of justice but said it was up to Nixon himself whether to resign.

The President remained in relative isolation. He met with Rabbi Baruch Korff, organizer of a National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the Presidency, for 35 minutes yesterday.

Nixon, according to aides, has not seen any of the congressional leaders privately since his return from California 10 days ago.

Some of Nixon's senior advisers also have recommended that he resign in the face of the growing fire storm.

White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig and St. Clair are said to be among those who have urged Nixon to quit. But in response, Nixon has said that he will not be "hounded out of office."

The President's own record indicates that he prefers to stick it out and try to overcome the most devastating crisis of his presidency.

Aides say that he still believes that he has a chance to hold the 34 votes in the Senate needed for acquittal.

But indications are that the overwhelming vote for impeachment in the House, which now seems inevitable, may cut deeply into his support in the Senate.

Haig has tried to hold together the White House staff and to appeal for loyalty to the President in difficult times. But many of the White House staffers are severely shaken.

Some feel betrayed by the President's latest admissions and others feel that the government has come to a standstill.

The daily news briefings at the White House are drawing their biggest crowds in many months. Washington has become a rumor mill, with Warren denying two and three times a day reports that Nixon will go on the air.

'73 Parking Ordinance Said Valid

A 1973 San Rafael parking ordinance — earlier thought dead — is alive and well, according to San Rafael City Atty. Fred C. Robbins.

Robbins' opinion, based on an analysis of state code and case law, was issued to city councilmen in a July 15 memo drafted in the wake of reports the measure boosting residential parking requirements had expired after four months under renewal requirements of the state Planning and Zoning code.

Robbins — who had previously thought expiration had occurred — has since discovered that a charter city like San Rafael need not follow state zoning rules and regulations unless it expressly adopts the procedures, and San Rafael has not.

"Our urgency parking ordinance is a valid and subsisting ordinance," the city attorney told councilmen.

organizations for the housing authority.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said he favored creation of a single "advisory commission" with final authority over housing and redevelopment matters to rest with supervisors.

Other supervisors differed on the need for one or two advisory commissions but agreed with placing the final authority with the board of supervisors.

"This is a major policy decision," Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste said. "A question of whether the board is going to come to grips with housing countywide.

"It means Marin City's problems will come to our door . . . but it's about time they do," he added. "Those problems are countywide."

Giacomini agreed, but urged no action until further study.

and rigged it without being questioned.

They shot the wire between the twin towers, second only in height to the Sears Building in Chicago, and rigged four guy-wires to steady it.

A friend, Fred Kent, said Petit once walked a wire atop Notre Dame Cathedral and had scaled the Sydney Harbor bridge in Australia.

"But the World Trade Center is the highest he's ever been," Kent said. "He planned it for weeks and weeks. Ever since February he's had it on his mind."

Kent said Petit had never received any formal training as a tightrope walker but is a natural acrobat and performer who immediately mastered the riding of a unicycle. He has given free performances on city streets of everything from pantomime to magic acts.

"Philippe's very independent and a free person," he said.

Another Incumbent Dumped In Primary

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Michigan Democrats and Missouri Republicans set up political rematches for November in yesterday's primary elections, but in Idaho, a three-term Republican congressman lost a bid for renomination.

Rep. Orval Hansen was upset in Idaho's second congressional district by George Hansen, who vacated the same seat in 1968 to run for Senate.

The others were Rep. Lawrence Williams, R-Pa., Rep. Frank Stubblefield, D-Ky., Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., and Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio.

Sander Levin, the former Michigan Democratic chairman who came within 50,000 votes of beating Republican Gov. William Milliken four years ago, bested two oppponents, including former Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, in the gubernatorial primary.

Milliken was unopposed for the GOP nomination.

Former Rep. Thomas Curtis, who gave Sen. Thomas Eagleton a hard run six years ago, renewed the challenge by winning the GOP nomination over two others in Missouri.

Eagleton, the first Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1972, won renomination in a field of three with no trouble.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, easily won renomination and will face lawyer Bob Smith in November in a sharp liberal-conservative conflict.

There was no opposition for incumbent Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus or his challenger, Republican Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy.

Roy beat a former state treasurer. Dole had no opposition. State Senate President Robert Bennett narrowly beat three opponents in the GOP race to oppose Democratic Atty. Gen. Vern Miller for governor.

Democrat Martha Keyes, in an upset, won nomination for Kansas' second District seat, being vacated by Roy.

Voters in Inkster, Mich., a Detroit suburb, approved an advisory question calling for the impeachment of President Nixon by a 4-1 margin.

In Kentucky, the state court of appeals yesterday upheld a lower court ruling that Sen. Marlow Cook, a Republican, is legally on the November ballot.

Norris Suggests Reagan Should Remain In State

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William Norris, the Democratic candidate for attorney general, said yesterday that his Republican opponent, Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger, should prevent a situation in which Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, convicted of perjury, becomes acting governor.

Norris called on Younger to urge Gov. Reagan not to leave the state next week, as planned.

If Reagan leaves, Reinecke automatically becomes the acting governor, but Younger has warned that Reinecke's legal standing clouds his official capacity, and any actions he takes might be challenged, involving the state in lawsuits.

Norris maintained that Reinecke "automatically forfeited the right to remain in the post of lieutenant governor" when the federal court jury in Washington, D.C. convicted him.

Reinecke's stand is that he does not become ineligible for office until sentence is passed, and he is legally in office because appeals are pending.

"You have conceded that any action Mr. Reinecke undertakes could ...produce a chaotic situation affecting the state of California and its citizens," Norris said in a telegram to Younger.

"I call upon you to exercise moral responsibility to insure that the state does not come under the rule of a convicted perjurer. I urge you therefore to request Gov. Reagan, in the public interest, to abandon any plans to leave California until the controversy over Mr. Reinecke's tenure is resolved," Norris said.

Fiesta Will Feature New Events

A 19th Century costume contest for adults and youngsters and special races for children and teen-agers will be new features of the annual Old Adobe Days Fiesta Aug. 18 at the Gen. Mariano Vallejo Adobe near Petaluma.

Frank J. Barker and Connie Eliassen, cochairmen for the competitions, said garb for the 1860 and 1900 era will be judged in five categories: best Spanish, Russian, Indian, Western and best overall, with trophies and ribbons for the winners. Judges will include Petaluma Mayor Helen S. Putnam, newspaperman Bill Soberanes, Al Stack, the county's dairy queen and Miss Sonoma-Marin of 1974.

Contests in watermelon eating, milk drinking, sack racing, three-legged racing and water-balloon tossing will be held in the grove opposite the adobe. Competition will be divided in age classes for under 7 years, 7 to 11, 12 to 16 and over 16, Barker said.

Airport Bombing Still A Mystery

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles International Airport was blasted yesterday by the most destructive bomb ever to hit a U.S. air terminal — hurling bodies, baggage, spears of glass and chunks of concrete through a passenger waiting area.

It was still a mystery today who planted the bomb, and why.

Two skycaps died, blown apart with such force that the first investigators on the scene thought there were four or five dead, and 36 others were injured, mostly passengers waiting to board flights for Hawaii and the Orient.

Seventeen were hospitalized, one in critical condition and two in serious condition.

Michael Strong of the police airport detail said he was about 100 yards away when "a tremendous blast shook the area and it was a scene of utter devastation. People were down on the floor crying for help. Bodies were blown all over the lobby."

"All I could see was blood. There was blood everywhere," said skycap Gary Cartwright.

Police and federal agents tried to determine the origin of the blast. Investigators said the force indicated an explosive charge equal to about eight pounds of dynamite.

Airport General Manager Clifton Moore said it was the most destructive bomb ever detonated at an American air terminal.

About 300 persons were in the area when the bomb went off in a section of the overseas terminal about 20 feet from the Pan American World Airways check-in counter.

Investigators believed the bomb was left in one of the coin-operated public lockers there —perhaps by someone who intended eventually to carry it aboard a plane —but a witness said he saw the explosion come from a cardboard box on the floor next to the gift shop.

John Van Den Heever, 26, told reporters he was standing 25 feet from the box and saw it erupt.

His girlfriend, Ruth Converse, 17, was among the injured. She was holding a friend, Angela Thompson, 11, on her lap and the younger girl was blown to the floor.

The blast tore out sections of the concrete wall behind the lockers, hurled some of the lockers through the lobby, ripped into the ceiling, shredded baggage and blew out the glass front of the terminal.

"Right afterward, the whole terminal was silent. Then a few minutes later, people started screaming and looking for their friends," said passenger Barbara McLock.

The dead were identified as Harper Glass, 64, of Inglewood, and Leonard Hsu, 46, of Lomita, Calif.

Glass, who was carrying luggage for a small traveling circus on its way to Honolulu, and Hsu were right in front of the explosion "and blown apart," a Fire Department paramedic said.

The Rev. Patrick Shaughnessy, pastor of the Evangelical Northwest Missionary Church in Phoenix, on his way to a month-long preaching tour in Korea, was critically injured. Both his legs were badly mangled.

William Sullivan, head of the Los Angeles FBI office, said whoever left the bomb there "may have wanted to take it on a plane. At this point in the terminal, you are not required to go through security yet, and he probably placed it here because he couldn't go out to the airplane with it."

(In Washington, Rep. John Murphy, D.-N.Y., noted that "the perpetrators of this heinous act will be subject to the death penalty" under the terms of a federal law signed only eight hours earlier by President Nixon.

(Murphy authored the law, providing a mandatory death sentence for those found guilty of murder during commission of a airplane hijacking.)

Alioto Believes Problems Ignored

NEW YORK (UPI) — The problems of the nation's urban centers are being ignored because Congress and the Nixon administration are preoccupied with the Watergate crisis, Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco said yesterday.

Alioto, chairman of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, also told a group of news executives that Watergate is having a similar effect on urban problems such as housing, mass transit and aid for the elderly.

Battle Brewing Over Yosemite

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A hot battle is brewing between conservationists and the new Yosemite National Park concessionnaire over plans to upgrade some park facilities and intensify use of the granite wonderland for conventions.

A year ago, MCA Inc., the big movie and television company, bought 96.5 per cent of the common stock of Yosemite Park and Curry Co. for $13.2 million. The deal included four hotels, four camping areas, food services, garages, a ski area and back-country servicing outfit. Last year Yosemite drew 2.3 million visitors.

Among the first important changes proposed by MCA, which will be the subject of public hearings this fall, is replacement of 150 of the 395 rustic tent-cabins at Curry Village with lodge-type cabins with individual baths.

The tent-cabins rent for $6.50 a night. The modern, winterized cabins would rent for $18 a night.

MCA also would like to install a tramway between the valley floor and spectacular Glacier Point, a plan opposed by the National Park Service.

"MCA is obviously trying to turn Yosemite into a great tourist attraction — they're trying to turn it into a convention site and regular kind of commercial establishment," said Larry Moss, associate conservation director of the 145,000-member Sierra Club.

Jay S. Stein, MCA's vice president of recreation services, responded: "It's preposterous; it's beneath dignity even to comment on it. I couldn't be more insulted. It's preposterous to think that anyone would want to turn Yosemite into a tourist attraction."

The discussion comprises the ongoing problem of the National Park Service: How man should best relate to America's outstanding natural wonders, enjoy them and at the same time protect them.

The 759,000-acre park, straddling the Sierra Nevada 150 miles east of San Francisco, was described as one of the outstanding wonders of the world more than a century ago. Said one naturalist:

"Here, superlative granite cliffs and domes shed ribbon-like waterfalls into glacier-carved valleys of heroic proportions; ancient sequoia groves dot extensive virgin conifer forests; serene high mountain lakes and meadows nestle below alpine crags and glaciers and the Yosemite experience is fundamentally an esthetic one."

More than 90 per cent of the park is back country, timberline and rock crag fastnesses visited only by the backpacker traveling on foot or on a mule.

Any changes MCA might want to make on its properties would have to be approved by the park service and conform to a new Yosemite master plan now being drafted and in which MCA is participating.

The Sierra Club, along with Friends of the Earth, became agitated over MCA plans for Yosemite after distribution of a brochure whose front page advertised Yosemite as "Nature's Eloquent Answer to Convention City, The Perfect Site for Sales Meetings-Seminars-Conventions."

The words appear beneath a picture of the broad meadow in Yosemite Valley. Nine rows of chairs headed by a lectern sit on the grass. The backdrop is one of the towering granite rocks for which the park is famed.

Stein said that the photograph is an old one and disowned it and the text, saying: "It's a mistake. The choice of language is very unfortunate. We do not want to turn Yosemite into a convention center."

The brochure boasts of banquet facilities, services and equipment available.

Moss, who said the club would go to court if necessary, said, "We'll oppose their proposed upgrading of facilities, as they call it, which is of course an effort to supply a higher priced facility in the valley compared to the lower cost facility which is here at the present time."

He accused MCA of "a lack of understanding of the park itself, the purposes of the park and what a concessioner's function is in a national park. I don't think they understand yet what they've gotten into. They're used to operating in a sector where they make an entertainment product and go out and sell it to the people. And they say Yosemite is an entertaining product. If they continue to persist in their plans they're going to run into public grief."

Stein viewed Moss's accusations with disbelief.

"He never bothered to ask us directly whether any of these things is true," said Stein. "I don't know if I'm supposed to deny anything. We have advocated that some of these tents should be converted. We think it's a good idea."

Freight Train Explosion Kills Two In Washington

WENATCHEE, Wash. (UPI) — An explosion on a freight train yesterday destroyed scores of boxcars and damaged at least four buildings and half a dozen homes. Two persons were killed and 71 others were injured.

The two men killed were a yard foreman for the Burlington Northern, David M. Jones, 28, of Wenatchee, and an unidentified transient riding on the train.

The blast, which occurred shortly after noon, occurred in a fertilizer tanker. It ripped apart boxcars and sent tons of shrapnel over an area as far as a mile and a half away, where a threefoot section of track was found in the yard of a startled South Wenatchee resident.

Half a dozen buildings in the Burlington Northern yards, including a two-story brick roundhouse, were riddled with holes.

Miraculously, none of the homes' occupants was seriously injured, even though ceilings collapsed and 40-pound pieces of shattered box cars whistled through their homes.

MIXED UP WITH MELONS?

Talk to five different produce men, and they'll give you five different ways to select melons! Each method works for them, but the shopper becomes bewildered.

I called Dick Mount, well-known executive in the produce industry, to get the final word on melon selection. Besides some humorous comments, he gave me helpful hints to pass on.

When buying all melons, look for large, regular-shaped melons for the best buys. (Odd-shaped melons have more seeds, less flesh.) Except for watermelons, shake melon to make sure the seeds don't rattle. (If they do, the melon is overripe. Sponginess is another indication of a too-ripe melon.)

Special buying tips for mixed melons: Cantaloupes. Check the netting. It should be raised and with high "feathering" (will rub off slightly on your finger). The color beneath the netting should be golden. Persians have similar qualities, but the base is a deeper orange, indicating a rich interior color. Crenshaws, the finest of all the mixed melons, have a full-yellow base color. Honeydews should have a deep cream-yellow. To obtain the best flavor, select a large size melon that has a stem end which yields to gentle pressure. Ripe honeydew flesh is still slightly greenish.

Be sure to allow all the mixed melons to ripen at room temperature before refrigerating. And do not overchill. This will reduce the full flavor of the melons.

Selecting watermelon? Be a good guesser. Beestings, a yellow side, and thumping are some of the tricks of the trade. Dick suggested using a sharp knife! (Better yet, buy a cut melon.)

You can purchase melons with confidence at Alpha Beta. They are all guaranteed. Look for the melons with "ripe" stickers or ask the "man in the green apron" in the produce department if you're still mixed up with melons.

Concern Is Mounting Over Missile

By RICHARD BURT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LONDON — Concern is mounting in naval circles over the testing and possible deployment of a new Soviet submarine-launched missile which could pose a major threat to U.S. aircraft carriers and might also complicate arms-control negotiations.

According to officials here and in Washington, the new weapon, the SS-N-13, possesses a range of 400 miles and may be a ballistic missile because it travels to its target at four times the speed of sound.

These characteristics and a report that the missile is capable of midflight course corrections suggest that it has been designed for use against naval vessels rather than targets within the U.S. or Europe.

The Soviet Union presently deploys a variety of cruise missiles for use against naval targets such as carriers which travel in a manner similar to low-flying aircraft. Because cruise missiles take as much as a half hour to reach their targets, naval officers are relatively confident of their ability to detect and defend against these weapons.

The SS-N-13, however, is said to be capable of reaching its target just minutes after launching. Because of its speed and ballistic trajectory, some analysts suggest that the only means of defending carriers and other vessels from attack would be to deploy "mini" anti-ballistic missiles (ABM) on board the vessels.

It also has been suggested that the Soviet navy might intend the SS-N-13 for use against the U.S. Polaris Poseidon ballistic missile submarine force.

Although the new missile would not make it any easier for Soviet forces to find U.S. submarines, it might be possible to use the new missile against a Polaris boat once it had betrayed its location by firing. The high-speed SS-N-13 could possibly destroy the Polaris before all 16 of its missiles were launched.

Reports indicate that the SS-N-13 will be ready for deployment by the end of the year but where the missile is placed could become a matter of some controversy. It is believed that the Soviets earlier planned to replace some older submarine-launched ballistic missiles (SLBM) with SS-N-13s on a group of 22 diesel submarines known as the G-class.

There has been some dispute, however, over whether new missiles placed on G-class subs would be counted in the Soviet SLBM total of 950 agreed to in 1972.

In June, Sen. Henry M. Jackson D-Wash., claimed that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has signed a "secret agreement" which allowed the Soviet Union to place new missiles on the G-class boats without them counting against the SALT limit.

However, Kissinger has since said that while the older missiles presently deployed are not included in the SALT calculations, new missiles placed on these submarines would be included in the Soviet SLBM ceiling.

Thus, it appears that the stage for conflict has been set at SALT over the SS-N-13. Because of its range and likely role as an anti-carrier weapon, Soviet negotiators probably will argue that SS-N-13s are not startegic weapons and should not be subject to SALT controls.

But if the missiles are placed on G-class submarines, U.S. negotiators will be able to claim that under the terms of Kissinger's interpretation they must be counted in the SALT limits.

OAKLAND (UPI) — Striking workers on the Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District buses were still on strike today after they rejected a settlement offer for the second time.

The vote was 793-725 to turn down the latest offer of the district. It was a second vote on the same proposal. The first vote was 554-349 for rejection.

The drivers for AC have been on strike since July 1 for higher wages.

QUEST FOR PROFICIENCY

By MARY LEYDECKER

When a visitor enters the crowded classroom in a converted school in Ignacio, no one looks up.

Instead, the some 50 students continue so absorbed with their work that the visitor feels invisible.

This is only one unusual feature of the "office occupations proficiency program," an intensive five-day-a-week class offered mornings by the Indian Valley Colleges at a temporary location in a former elementary school.

Not only do the students appear to be bent on cramming as much as possible into their hours there, but their reasons for doing so are so varied as their ages, sex and backgrounds.

"We have people with only 10th grade educations and people with master's degrees," said teacher Janet Barr.

There are also students who are still in their teens and others who are retired colonels.

Some are going through divorces, some are working toward their first civilian jobs, some are brushing up old skills and some are "just tired of sitting home."

A high school student and a former elementary teacher work together on an accounting problem.

Mrs. Barr explained that the teen-age girl is taking the course during her summer vacation instead of during the school year, while the older woman is preparing skills for an office job because of the teacher surplus.

"They all read the ads," Miss Barr said, explaining that her students realize many job opportunities for those with office skills are advertised daily in classified sections.

So when her class, offered in two sections this summer for the first time, opened for the second session last week, a line of prospective students was waiting at the door.

When about 75 people showed up, Miss Barr said, some were transferred to other classes because the makeshift classroom wouldn't hold all of them.

As Miss Barr circulates through the room, the students work at their own pace on typing (both at beginning and elementary levels), accounting, office machines, shorthand and other office skills.

Side by side sit a mother and daughter — Joanne and Bambi Anderson of Novato.

Bambi, a high school student, said "I need it," when asked why she was taking typing. She then explained that she feels the skill will be helpful when she goes to college and also in job hunting.

Her mother, who said she has had no further education since she graduated from high school in 1953, hopes to "work out of my home" when she gains typing skills. She still has a 3-year-old child, she said, and is not ready to take a job outside her home.

The Andersons are beginners, but nearby sits a woman who types 90 words per minute. "She just needed to find self confidence," Miss Barr said, after not working for many years.

As Miss Barr glanced around the classroom, she spoke of other students. "I do a lot of counseling," she added with a smile.

Then a woman student looked up and said, "Help, Janet," and the teacher peered at the work the woman was doing.

"This is a hard page," she agreed, as she gave instructions.

Soon the 12:30 p.m. quitting time came, but some students stayed on — not willing yet to give up their quest for proficiency.

Adventists Are Subject Of Research

Seventh-day Adventists in Marin are currently the subject of a study conducted by the Loma Linda University School of Health to determine why Adventists are apparently less susceptible to cancer and heart disease than the average American.

The $800,000 study, funded by the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., is being conducted throughout California.

Ida Resanovich, research team leader for southern and central Marin, is presently distributing questionnaires intended to identify components in the Adventist lifestyle which might increase resistance to certain diseases.

Adventists are noted for their abstinence from tobacco and alcoholic beverages. They also abstain from eating meat or spicy foods and from drinking tea or coffee, Mrs. Resanovich said.

Budget Is Adopted For Hub Schools

A $2,541,847 budget for 1974-75 was adopted by the San Anselmo School District board last night.

The spending program, up from this year's $2,517,357 program, is expected to require a tax rate of $3.34 per $100 of assessed valuation, down 10 cents from this year's rate.

The adopted budget is up from the $2,470,329 program proposed by Supt. Frank R. Elliott in February.

The board last night appointed Templeton Gailbraith as principal of Yolansdale School in addition to his principalship of Sleepy Hollow School. Asst. Supt. Walter C. Dolan was appointed principal of Isabel Cook School.

The board approved an increase in district mileage allowance from 12 cents to 15 cents per mile.

The board next meets Sept. 7.

Timing Saved Rhodes House Spot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John J. Rhodes came to be House Republican leader as a result of a scandal in the Nixon administration. This week he almost quit that position because of another scandal.

The decision he announced yesterday, to support an article of impeachment against President Nixon, had been made late last week, an aide said. He had even scheduled a news conference for Monday morning to announce it.

Until Sunday, however, he had also been prepared to announce that he would step down temporarily as GOP leader because his stance for impeachment would be at variance with too many of the GOP colleagues he was supposed to lead.

When he held his postponed news conference on yesterday, Rhodes no longer had to offer to step down.

Within the 24 hours after Nixon had admitted withholding damaging impeachment evidence, the groundswell of defections from Nixon's camp had grown so large that to do anything but favor impeachment would put Rhodes at odds with his party.

An aide said that Alexander Haig, Nixon's chief of staff, called Rhodes at home on Sunday to tell him that he should know before holding his news conference that the White House would be making some new information available within 24 hours.

Conveniently for Rhodes, he was suffering at the time from a slight fever and sore throat. So he postponed the announcement and stayed home Monday.

Though the timing had saved Rhodes from a decision he might have regretted deeply, he found no joy in his final announcement yesterday before live television cameras down the hall from the House Judiciary Committee room.

"For me, this is a sad day," Rhodes began, maintaining complete control of his emotions throughout the ordeal.

"I have considered the evidence to the best of my ability. When the roll is called in the House of Representatives, I will vote 'aye' on impeachment Article One."

Others in the House agonized over their decision, but Rhodes' decision may have been harder than most.

The 57-year-old congressman, a Kansas native elected from Mesa, Ariz., 22 years ago, had built a reputation as a conservative, a party loyalist and a staunch administration supporter.

He was a compromise choice last December when his predecessor, Gerald R. Ford, was confirmed as vice president to replace Spiro T. Agnew, who had resigned in disgrace, pleading no contest to a tax evasion charge.

Rhodes' anguish began about two weeks ago, his aide said.

The Judiciary Committee was about to begin its debate and already had released mountains of evidence. Rhodes studied the evidence and watched as much of the debates as he could.

Last week he talked first with the 10 GOP stalwarts on the committee who voted against all proposed articles. Later in the week he met with the seven who favored at least one article. All explained their position.

Some came away from those meetings with the indication that Rhodes was leaning for impeachment. He did promise them he would step down as leader temporarily if he chose to vote for impeachment.

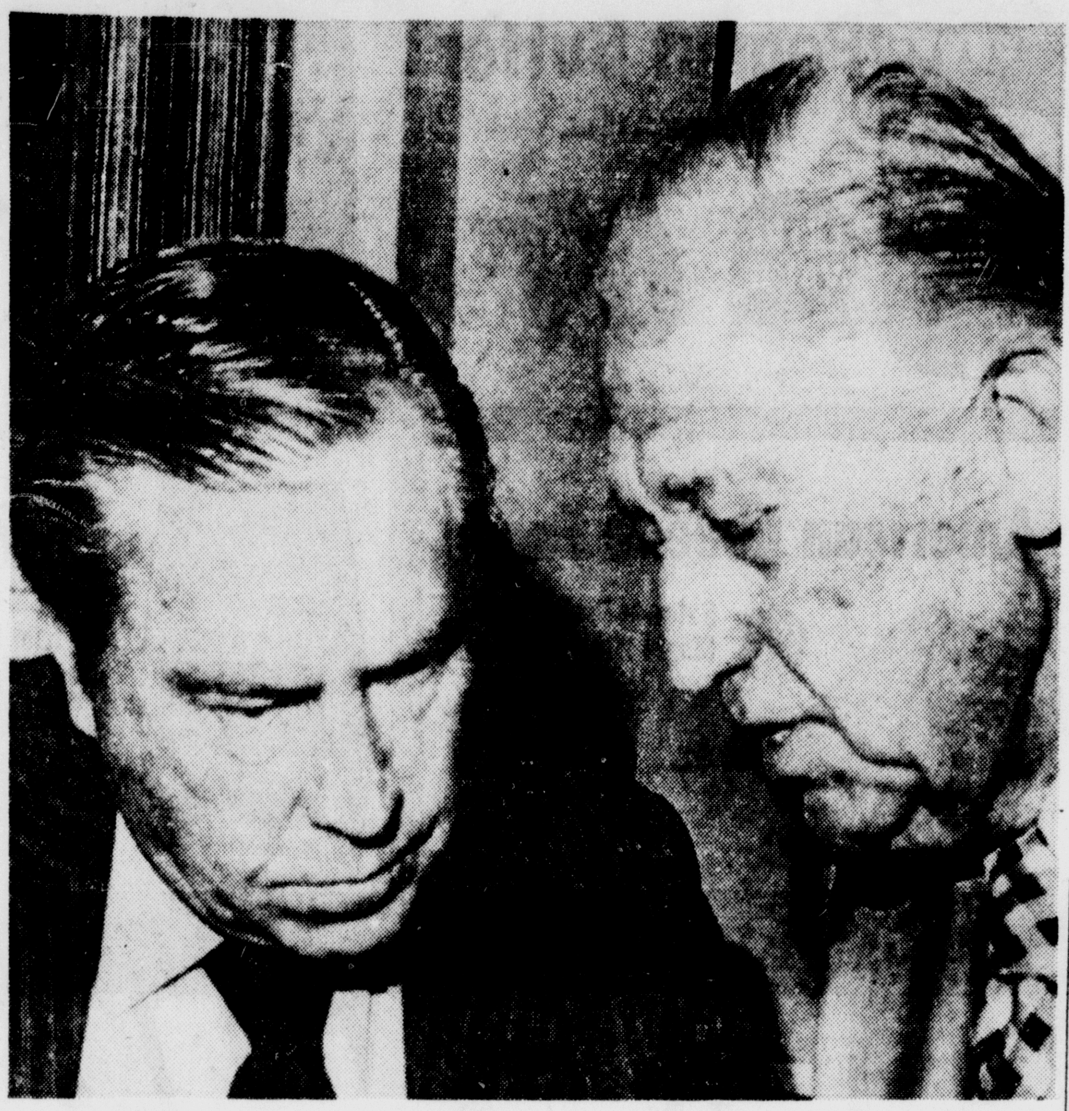
His conscience had already told him early in the week that he should favor impeachment, but he knew, an aide said, that his position as leader gave his decisions and words added impact.

He anguished some more and decided about Friday that he would take the step he dreaded.

But Rhodes won't lead any impeachment push.

He said in his news conference, "I have no intention of imposing my interpretation of the evidence on any other member of Congress.

"For a party leader to attempt to dictate a matter of individual conscience would be entirely ill-advised."



DECISION TIME — House GOP leaders John Rhodes (left) and Leslie Arends confered yesterday following a meeting of the House leadership at which it was agreed that President Nixon should resign. Nixon later told his cabinet he does not intend to resign and Rhodes said he would vote for Nixon's impeachment.

Big School Budget In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Board of Education adopted a record $139,388,814 budget yesterday for the 1974-75 fiscal year.

The budget would raise the property tax rate by six cents, to $4.08 per $100 of assessed property valuation.

Networks Take Stand On Coverage

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS and NBC officials said yesterday they would not cover the House impeachment proceedings live if congressional leaders put excessive restraints on coverage.

ABC said it would see what rules are made before deciding.

"I am not prepared to give anyone a blank check," said Richard Salant, president of CBS news, "and I am prepared to withdraw CBS from live coverage if the journalistic restraints on the networks are excessive."

Richard Wald, president of NBC news, also said he would withdraw coverage if the restraints were excessive. But Wald said he was confident reasonable rules would evolve.

ABC's senior vice president for news, William Sheehan said it was too early to "hypothesize on a set of rules."

World Reactions Are Varied To President Nixon's Troubles

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Argentine tabloid Cronica published a front-page cartoon showing President Nixon sitting at his desk with a stack of tape recordings in his hands. A man stands nearby and whispers:

"Before you hand over those recordings, you wouldn't have an extra one with dirty jokes, would you?"

Some poked fun at Nixon. Others defended him. And still others attacked. But much of the world just wanted to get the impeachment ordeal over with as soon as possible.

In Paris, businessman Pierre Guermont leaned over the table of a small restaurant and asked, "Why are you impeaching him? His foreign policy has brought peace in Vietnam and the Middle East, friendship with Peking and Moscow."

But in London, Tom Dalyell, chairman of the ruling Labor party's Foreign Affairs Committee, lamented, "The business of the Western world has been clogged up by the situation in the White House."

"Most of our colleagues have assumed for many months President Nixon was up to his neck in Watergate from an early stage," Dalyell said. He hoped "the executioners will act quickly and decisively."

Author Thierry Maulnier, a member of the prestigious French Academy, wrote in a recent article, "America will discover afterwards it has sacrificed one of the greatest presidents in history."

In Buenos Aires, Nora Elbert, a 21-year-old secretary couldn't disagree more. "I'm against his policies," she said "He's a demagogue. I hope he disappears from the scene in the United States."

In Brazil, the influential newspaper O Estado in Sao Paulo called for the resignation of Nixon.

In Toyko, the Asahi newspaper said Nixon's apparent aim in disclosing his knowledge of Watergate "was to win back the support of the American people."

"However, it is not only too late for that, but the danger that it will push Mr. Nixon into a new dilemma is very great," an Asahi editorial said. "Autumn is going to be a weighty season, not only for Mr. Nixon but for the American people."

Paul Masson Emerald Dry Reisling, 5th
Paul Masson Rhine Castle, 5th

White wines have been the traditional favorites with fish and fowl. Depending on your palate, either of these two Paul Masson Premium white wines would complement the Manor House Fryers or Medallion Game Hens that are featured this week.

Paul Masson Emerald Dry is almost gold in color. It is sprightly and delectably dry. Paul Masson Rhine Castle is a light wine of delicate natural sweetness. Either of these fine wines should be chilled about three hours before serving.

Cotati Council Adopts Budget

The Cotati City Council last night unanimously adopted a spending budget more than three times that for last year, but held the tax rate unchanged.

The new budget, calls for spending $1,489,282. Last year's budget was $456,048, according to city clerk Donna Olson. The tax rate will remain $1.25 per $100 assessed valuation, the council voted.

The clerk explained that the council seeks voter approval of an $825,000 bond issue on the Nov. 5 election ballot, to finance more than half the spending plan. The money is intended for use in renovating the city water system. If voters disapprove the bonding, the city will have to postpone the project and finance the approximately $660,000 remainder of the budget through taxes and other revenues.

As approved, the budget provides an 11 per cent raise for police and 5.5 per cent raise for other city employees.

The budget was adopted with little discussion, Mrs. Olson said.

The Cotati City Council also:

DISTRICT — Adopted five resolutions establishing the Benson Lane Sewer Assessment District and called for bid openings Sept. 13 for the project.

PARK — Voted that no environmental impact report is needed before the acquisition of a park site on Myrtle Avenue.

ZONING — Amended the city zoning ordinance to allow conditional uses such as outdoor restaurants, greenhouse and garden supply stores in the C-2 commercial districts.

Reed Board Plans Reorganization Study

The possibility of closing a school or changing grade levels taught at several schools will be discussed Sept. 3 by the Reed School District board.

The board last night asked Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello to return to that meeting with two or three options for reorganizing district schools in light of continued declining enrollment.

Last year's enrollment was 1,861, Giovanniello said. He estimated next fall's enrollment at 1,810.

The decline means less revenue for the district since the state limits schooi district spending to a certain amount per pupil.

Giovanniello said he told that board he already had 12 options for possible reorganization but would sift through them to find the most desirable. One idea suggested has been to sell Reed School to the City of Tiburon as a civic center and move Reed students to other schools.

Giovanniello said he will send a survey to parents this fall asking their opinions of district programs and explaining what declining enrollment means.

Also last night the board adopted a 1974-75 budget of $3,519,787, about $65,500 less than last year's spending of $3,454,255.

Giovanniello estimated that the tax rate to support the new budget would be $3.27 per $100 assessed valuation, about 40 cents less than last year's rate.

Education Board Votes To Keep Same Tax Rate

The Marin County Board of Education last night agreed to a 1974-75 budget which will keep the property tax rate the same as the past year, according to Joseph Amato, business manager.

The board instructed Amato to reduce the proposed budget of $6,262,045 to a figure that will keep the tax rate at 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, he said. He estimated that figure at $6,196,850, making the reduction by reducing reserves.

He said the final total will not be known until all the county auditor's figures are available.

(Although the tax rate will remain the same, most taxpayers will pay higher taxes because of increased assessed valuations.)

The county schools office operates schools for handicapped and retarded children, juvenile hall and San Quentin schools and regional occupational training programs as well as offering various services to school districts.

Flournoy Backs Housing Bond Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican gubernatorial nominee Houston I. Flournoy has asked Gov. Ronald Reagan to sign legislation designed to provide home financing for low and moderate income Californians.

In a letter to Reagan yesterday, Flournoy said he supported the measure (SB1634), which if signed by the governor would place a proposed $500 million housing bond issue on the November ballot and a companion measure (SB1633) which would establish a state housing authority.

Both bills gained final legislative approval Monday in the Senate.

Choice Of Capitol Architect Delayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Joint Rules Committee yesterday delayed for one month a decision on its choice of architects to conduct a study of what to do with the century-old state Capitol.

The postponement until September means that the decision will be made when the Legislature is not in session.

A Credit Card Boost For Women

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Women would be guaranteed the right to have their credit cards issued in their maiden name under a bill which has advanced to the Assembly floor.

The bill by Sen. Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park, cleared the Judiciary Committee yesterday on an 8-0 vote.

The legislation, which strengthens laws guaranteeing women credit, states that if a card issuer has determined it will give credit to a married woman it has to make the card out in her maiden name, if she so desires.

Spending Up For Schools In Kentfield

The Kentfield School District board last night adopted a budget of $2,315,225, which will require the district's legal maximum tax rate to be levied for the first time, according to the superintendent, Eugene C. Peters.

The spending program is up $435,316 from the past year's budget, and the tax rate is estimated at $3.18 per $100 of assessed valuation, up 21 cents from the past year.

Peters said that the Kentfield district, unlike many others in the county, has experienced only a very slight decline in school enrollment.

Last night the board approved raises from the administrative staff ranging from 6.6 per cent to 13 per cent for Peters and one principal.

The Kentfield School District board also:

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of first grade teacher Anita Fonte Mannila, who had been on leave for the past year.

CONTRACTS — Hired Paul Ricciardi to teach first grade at Adaline Kent School at a salary of $14,480; Jacqueline Millunzi, physical education at Kent middle school, $13,600, and Michael Eisan, mathematics-science, Kent middle school, $14,480.

BUSES — Accepted a new bid of $17.50 a day from Transportation Engineering and Consultants Service for busing seventh and eighth grade pupils.

REQUEST — Turned down a request from Mr. and Mrs. William Cavalier Jr. to allow their daughter Caitlin to attend the Ross School.

MEETINGS — Cancelled the regular meeting of Sept. 3 and set the next meeting for Sept. 10. The board also will hold a workshop session with Adaline E. Kent School teachers on Sept. 17 and meet with the citizens' advisory council on Sept. 26.

A person standing 550 feet above sea level can see about 31 miles.

375 Highway Deaths In July

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Highway Patrol reported today 375 persons were killed in California traffic crashes last month, 92 fewer than in July of 1973.

The patrol said July was the seventh consecutive month in which fewer persons were killed in traffic accidents than during the corresponding month a year ago.

The January-July death toll statewide stood at 2,094, or 693 fewer than last year.

Meeting Cancelled

A meeting of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency board scheduled for last night was canceled, an agency spokesman said today. The date of the board's next meeting has not yet been set.

Reagan Will Not Ask Resignation

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said yesterday that he has "no right" to ask Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke to resign from office if there is a chance Reinecke's perjury conviction will be overturned.

But Reinecke will resign if presentencing efforts to have his perjury conviction overturned are rejected, Reagan said.

Reagan said he and Reinecke discussed the lieutenant governor's plight at a meeting Monday.

"He assured me that he has not intention of holding office if the post-trial motions fail," the Republican governor told his weekly news conference.

"He had an air of optimism with regard to one or more of those, which could conceiveably lead to a reversal of the verdict," he added. "I have no right to ask him to step down — which is an irretrievable decision, it isn't temporary . . . if this possibility remains."

But Reagan also said he is not backing down from his statement Friday that the number two man in state government should resign from the $35,000-a-year job.

"I said that on the basis of the attorney general's concerns . . . yes, resignation seem to be in order," Reagan said. "I did make that qqualification . . . that I wanted to understand his situation . . . to talk with him and find out what his problems were."

Reinecke had come out of the meeting with Reagan Monday and said that Reagan's statement had been misunderstood.

Reinecke is scheduled to be sentenced Aug. 30 for perjury before the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee in 1972.

A Washington, D.C., federal jury convicted Reinecke of lying about when he told then — U.S. Atty. John Mitchell about a $400,000 International Telephone and Telegraph Co. pledge to underwrite the 1972 GOP convention. The jury concluded the lieutenant governor lied when said he did not tell Mitchell of the pledge until after an antitrust suit against ITT was settled.

A spokesman for Reinecke, Ray Worsley, said there has been no change in the lieutenant governor's position that he will resign before being sentenced.

"It's a matter of semantics or a couple of hours difference," he said, between sentencing and the final disposition of the post-trial motions.

California Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger ruled Thursday that Reinecke could stay in office until final judgment is entered or when he is sentenced. But Younger also sent a letter to Reinecke saying all of his official actions between now and being sentenced could be challenged in costly court actions.

Tomato-Spinach Bake Is A Good Snack Or Main Dish

It's a versatile recipe. The whole baked, firm ripe, tomatoes with cheesy-spinach topping is a main dish, however, using fewer tomatoes, the recipe can be used as a flavorful meat accompaniment.

COPENHAGEN TOMATO-SPINACH BAKE

Spinach:
- 2 pounds fresh spinach
- Dash or two salt and pepper
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 2 Tbsps. butter or margarine
- ½ pound Esrom or Samsoe cheese, cut into cubes

Tomatoes:
- 8 large, firm tomatoes
- Garlic salt, pepper
- Butter or margarine

Spinach: Cut off roots and discard old leaves. Wash several times in lukewarm water; lifting spinach out of water each time.

The washing may be done early in day and spinach leaves put in a plastic bag with drops of water clinging to leaves; then refrigerate.

To cook, use only the water clinging to leaves in a utensil with tight fitting lid. When steam appears, reduce heat and cook 3 to 5 minutes — no more. Toss with a fork occasionally.

Season with a dash or two of salt, if desired. Add pepper, lemon juice and butter. Before topping tomatoes, add cheese cubes.

Tomatoes: Wash and drain. Cut out stem ends and enough tomato on bottom to allow each to sit upright. Cut about a half-inch or little more off top of tomatoes and save in plastic bag for a sauce or salad.

Score cut top surfaces, making ½-inch squares. Sprinkle with garlic salt and pepper and dots of butter.

Place tomatoes top side up in a large greased baking pan (about 9 x 9 x 2-inch) and bake in 375 degree oven 20 minutes or until hot. Remove from oven.

Toss spinach and cheese cubes together. Top tomatoes with spinach mixture. Cover loosely with a sheet of foil and return to oven until cheese melts and vegetables are piping hot. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

USED AS EITHER a main course or as an accompaniment to meat, these Copenhagen Tomato-Spinach Bakes combine fresh spinach, tomatoes and natural cheese for a refreshing summer pacesetter.

Fruit Curry For Change Of Pace

For a change of pace, serve South African Fruit Curry, a delectable blend of lamb, green apples, oranges and curry powder.

- 1½ pounds lean lamb cubes, cut into ½-inch pieces
- 3 tbsp. flour
- ¼ cup peanut oil
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- 3 tbsp. curry powder
- 1½ tsp. salt
- 2½ cups water
- 1 tbsp lemon juice
- 1 tbsp wine vinegar
- 2 cups diced pared green apples
- ¾ cup raisins
- ½ cup halved peanuts
- 2 tbsps. grated orange peel
- 1 banana, thinly sliced
- 3 cups hot cooked rice

Coat lamb with flour. Heat oil in a Dutch oven. Brown lamb; remove from pan and set aside. Saute onion until tender. Reduce heat to low; add curry powder and salt. Blend well.

Add lamb and any juices that have formed, water, lemon juice and vinegar. Stir to combine. Bring to a boil, then simmer, partially covered, for 50 minutes, or until meat is tender. Stir in apples and raisins. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Stir in Peanuts.

Garnish with grated orange peel and banana slices. Serve with rice. Makes six servings.

Yam Casserole

Canned yams make a delightful casserole when they are teamed with sliced bananas, melted butter and corn syrup.

Botulism Is A Danger In Home Canned Food

The only sure way to kill botulism spores when canning foods at home is to use a pressure cooker and to follow directions exactly, warns California's health director.

"And if there is any doubt about the safety of home-canned food someone has given you, make sure it is boiled vigorously for at least 15 minutes before eaten or even tasted," said Dr. J. M. Stubblebine.

The health official said greater public interest in home gardens and canning because of higher food prices prompted him to remind the public of poisoning hazards from bacteria in the soil.

Dr. Stubblebine stressed the need for extreme caution in preparing low-acid foods for future use because, with botulism, "there is often no second chance." Nearly one quarter of the botulism cases in the United States since 1960 have been fatal, and most were traced to home-canned foods, especially vegetables.

Dr. Stubblebine said botulism is food poisoning from a toxin produced by a group of bacteria called Clostridium botulinum. In nature, it is found in two forms: a dormant spore and a living or vegetable cell. When growth conditions are unfavorable — too hot, too cold, no food, no moisture, etc. — the bacteria become dormant, which is the spore stage. Toxin is not produced in this stage.

The botulinum spore germinates when conditions become favorable. One of the most important conditions for growth is absence of air or oxygen. As the spore grows, it produces a toxin so deadly that botulism-poisoned food can cause death when it is only tasted, not swalled, Dr. Stubblebine said. The most important thing about botulism, he said, is that a person cannot tell, for sure, that a food is poisonous by smelling or tasting it.

"The only way to kill botulism spores when canning foods," Dr. Stubblebine said, "is to use extremely high temperatures for a considerable length of time."

"The only practical way to do this without long, unreliable periods of boiling is with a pressure cooker. The cooker must be operated according to directions and must have a gauge that is accurate."

He said the boiling water bath method of canning is not safe for canning meats, poultry, fish or vegetables. However, since botulism spores do not ordinarily grow in acid surroundings, the boiling water bath may be used for canning high-acid foods such as tomatoes, fruit, rhubarb and pickles.

Even though botulism will usually not grow in high-acid foods, three have been occasional cases of poisoning from home canned high-acid foods. Dr. Stubblebine said this occurred because the food began to spoil, mold used up the acid in the food and the botulism spores germinated, producing toxin. If food is abnormal in odor or appearance, throw it away, he said.

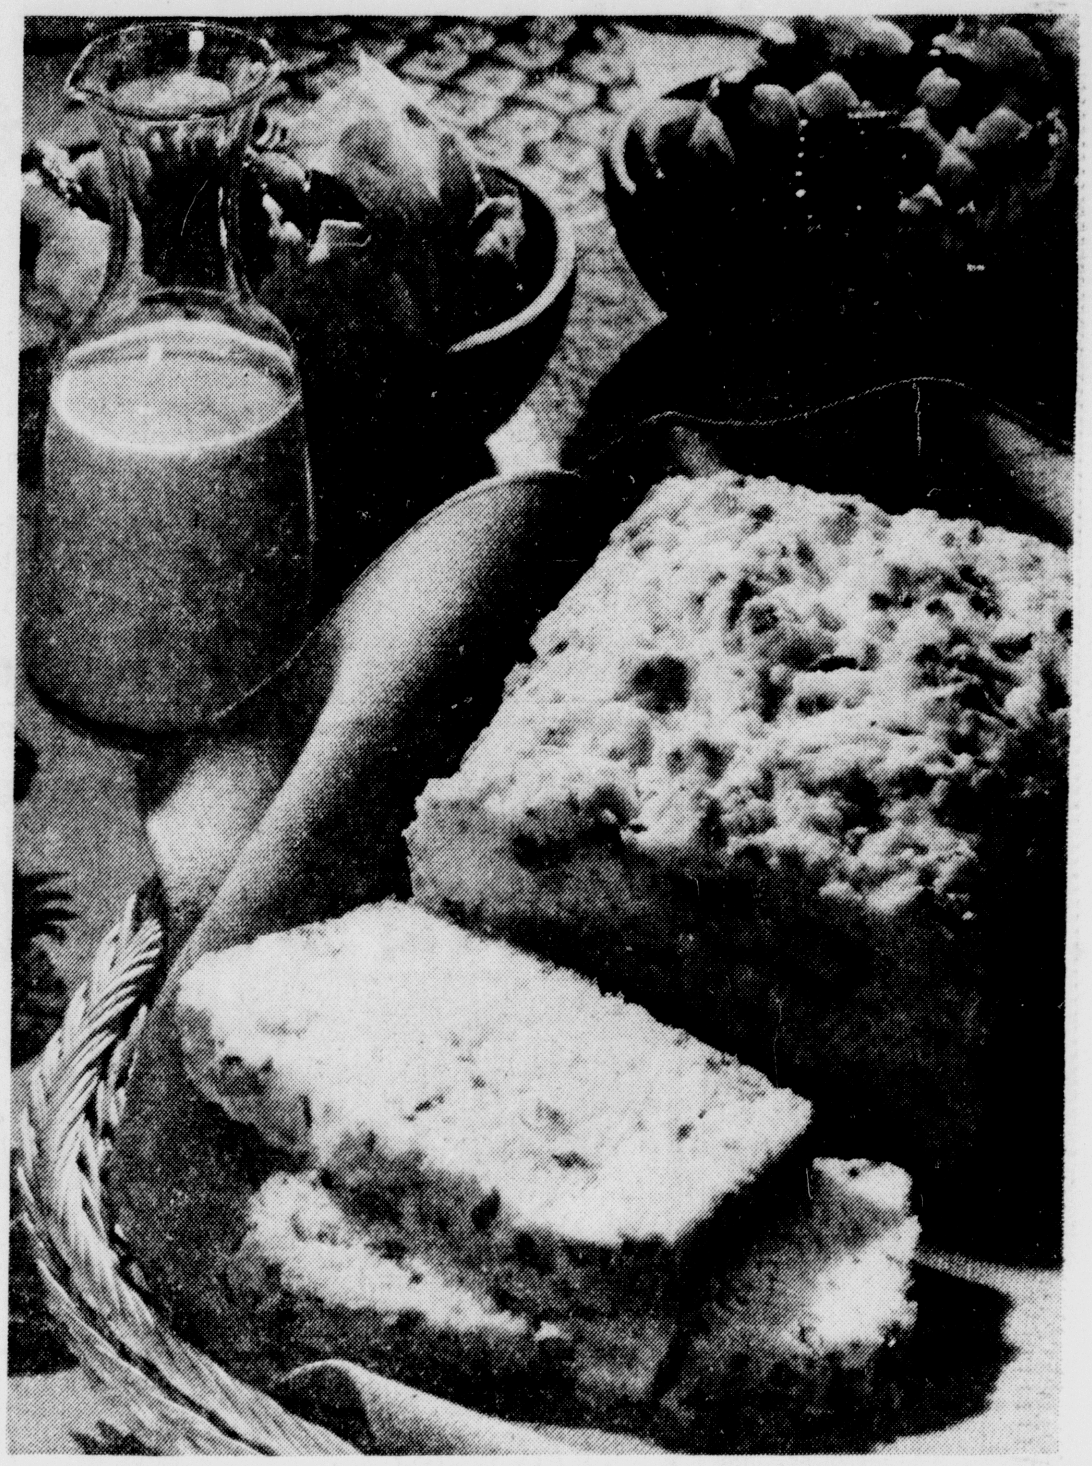
A Sparkle In Fruit Cocktail

Plums and nectarines can be teamed in a sparkling fruit cocktail.

PLUM AND NECTARINE COCTAIL

- 2 or 3 fresh nectarines, sliced
- 1 cup fresh plums, diced
- ¼ cup orange juice
- ¼ cup lime juice
- 2 tbsps. grated orange rind
- 2 tbsps sugar
- Slivered almonds, toasted

Dice half the nectarine slices. Combine with plums, orange and lime juices, orange rind and sugar. Chill two hours, turning twice. With remaining nectarine slices, line sides of four dessert bowls. Spoon chilled fruit mixture into centers; sprinkle with almonds. Makes four servings.



IT'S A WINNING combination of cheese, green olives and crushed pineapple — all together in one great cheese bread that will be the hands-down winner at any meal, picnic or party.

A Pineapple-Olive Cheese Loaf Is A Summer Treat

If you like cheese, love pineapple and want something truly refreshing, pineapple-olive cheese bread will have to be your choice for a summer taste-treat.

This delicious, crunchy-textured fruit-cheese loaf features an interesting combination of flavors plus the tropical touch of Hawaiian pineapple.

It's a classic bread with a simple and economical recipe. And to top it off, it has the versatility to accompany soup or salad, liven up a lunchbox or star at the patio party or seaside picnic.

PINEAPPLE OLIVE CHEESE BREAD

- 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 1 egg
- 3 tablespoons milk
- ⅓ cup oil
- 1 cup grated cheddar cheese
- ⅓ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives
- 1 (8¼ ounce) can crushed pineapple
- 1 teaspoon melted butter

Resift flour with sugar, baking powder, salt and soda into mixing bowl. Beat egg lightly with milk. Add oil, cheese, olives, and undrained pineapple. Stir into dry mixture, blending just until all of flour is moistened. Turn into greased 9 x 5 x 2¾ inch loaf pan. Bake below oven center in moderately-slow oven (325 degrees F.) 60 minutes, until loaf is browned and tests done. Brush top with melted butter. Let stand in pan 10 minutes, then turn out onto wire rack to cool. Makes 1 loaf.

Home Grown Tomatoes Are Best

The best flavor usually comes from home grown tomatoes produced on nearby farms, reports the U.S. Department of Agriculture. This type of tomato is allowed to ripen completely before being picked.

If your tomatoes need further ripening, keep them in a warm place. Unless they are fully ripened, do not store tomatoes in a refrigerator, the cold temperatures might keep them from ripening later on.

Look for tomatoes that are well formed, smooth, well ripened and reasonably free from blemishes. If fully ripe, the fruit will have an overall rich red color and a slight softness.

Avoid overripe and bruised tomatoes (they're both soft and watery) and tomatoes with green or yellow areas near the stem scar (they're sunburned). Also avoid tomatoes with growth cracks or those with soft, water-soaked spots, depressed areas or surface mold.

THANKS TO Johnny Appleseed, cooks can enjoy a long list of apple recipes, even more delicious when freshly picked in the back yard or gathered from the local fruit stand. Here, apples are blended with maple syrup, walnuts and cinnamon.

Make These Two Tasty Desserts For Johnny Appleseed's Birthday

Next month will mark the 200th anniversary of Johnny Appleseed's birth, a very real person (Jonathan Chapman) who planted apple trees in pioneer frontier country.

Now that apples are in season, celebrate by using them in two delicious desserts.

APPLE MAPLE WALNUT DESERT

- 2 cups (20 oz. each) pie sliced apples
- ½-¾ cup maple-blended syrup
- 2 tbsp. melted butter
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Spread apple slices evenly in shallow 1½ qt. baking dish. Pour enough maple syrup into dish to barely cover apples. Pour melted butter evenly over surface. Sprinkle evenly with cinnamon. Scatter walnuts over top. Bake at 350° for about 30 minutes. Serve warm with plain cream. Makes eight servings.

SPARKLING APPLE GELATIN DESSERT

Prepare 2 pkg. strawberry or raspberry flavor gelatin as directed on package, using apple juice as half the liquid. Pour into shallow pan to a depth of about ½-inch. Chill until set. Cut into ½-inch cubes. Reserve 8 cubes. Fill 8 dessert dishes half full of cubes. Fill to top with chilled canned applesauce. Garnish each serving with a gelatin cube. Makes eight servings.

Blueberries, Natural Ease

Blueberries are one of nature's own convenience foods. There is no peeling, pitting or coring. Enjoy blueberries all year around by home-freezing a supply at the height of the season when the berries are available at the lowest prices.

Remove cellophane tops from pint containers and overwrap each with a plastic wrap, making sure that air vents at bottoms of containers are covered with wrap. The berries should not be washed before freezing.

Hot Dogs Have A New Taste

A Pennsylvania company is trying to sell consumers in Albany, N.Y. what it calls "the best thing that's happened to hot dogs since mustard" — chicken hot dogs.

The Christian Science Monitor reports consumers who have tried the chicken hot dogs since stores began stocking them in late June say they look and taste just like any other hot dog. Or nearly so.

Pimento Rounds Are Good Snack

A taste-tempting hors d'oeuvre.

STUFFED PIMENTO ROUNDS

- 1 (3-ounce) package cream cheese, softened
- 1 ounce salami, finely chopped (¼ cup)
- 2 tsps. finely chopped olives
- 1 tbsp. finely chopped pecans
- ⅛ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 7-ounce jar pimentos, drained, cut in very large pieces.
- Crackers

Combine first five ingredients. Spread on inside of pimento pieces. Roll up; chill. To serve, cut into slices and place on crackers. Makes about 40 rounds.

Vegetables Made Good Meals, Too

You don't have to eat meat for a nutritious, well-balanced meal, say vegetarian societies.

- 2 cups pinto beans
- 2 carrots, diced

Boil mixture until beans are soft, adding mushrooms last. Season to taste.

VEGETARIAN CHILI

- 1 large onion, diced
- 4 cups stewed tomatoes
- 2 cups tomato sauce
- 4 cups kidney beans, cooked
- 2 medium green peppers, diced
- chili powder
- vegetable base

Saute onion and pepper in oil and add all other ingredients. Cook for 15 minutes. Serve over brown rice and sprinkle with raw diced onion.

WALNUT ALMOND LOAF

- 1 cup walnuts, ground

Why Not 'Put Up' Some Old Fashioned Preserves

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press

Now that "putting up" food is back in fashion, you might like to try your hand at making an old-fashioned preserve.

Our grandmothers knew how good a combination citrus fruit and fresh peaches is and they used the fruits as partners in a delicious conserve along with raisins, walnuts and cherries.

It's good with hot biscuits when chicken or ham or boneless pork shoulder butt appears as the main dish at a company meal. It's also a pleasant sweet accompaniment for toast at an eggs-and-bacon brunch. Because the recipe makes 10 half-pint jars, you may want to plan on giving some of the conserve as gifts when the holidays come around. Be sure that you store the preserve in a cool, dark, dry place.

One of the pleasant features of making the Orange Peach Conserve is that it doesn't need to be processed; ladling the hot mixture into sterilized jars and sealing is a perfectly safe method because the conserve has adequate acid and sugar content.

ORANGE PEACH CONSERVE

- 3 oranges
- 1 lemon
- 3 pounds peaches, peeled and diced (5 cups)
- 1½ cups golden or dark raisins
- 8 cups sugar
- 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
- ½ cup drained halved maraschino cherries

Wash and dry the oranges and lemon. Quarter each; remove seeds. Put through food chopper using coarse blade.

Into a large kettle turn the chopped citrus fruit, the peaches and raisins; add the sugar. Over moderate heat, stirring occasionally until sugar dissolves, bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer until mixture sheets from a spoon or registers 221 degrees on a candy thermometer — about one hour. Stir in walnuts and cherries. Ladle into hot sterilized jars and seal.

Makes 10 half-pints.

A Homemade Tartar Sauce

Like tartar sauce on fish? You can make your own easily by adding the following ingredients to one cup of dairy sour cream or yogurt:

Two tablespoons each of chili sauce, chopped onion, chopped green pickle, chopped dill pickle, chopped parsley, one tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon dry mustard and salt and pepper to taste.

Tart Apples Featured In Sauce

Featuring tart cooking apples, this applesauce is made with about one-third the normal amount of sugar. The secret — we've combined sugar with either a liquid or granulated sugar replacement. Though lower in calories, the flavor quality is outstanding.

You'll find home canning is really quite easy and a good way to help stretch your food dollar. And, your family will love eating these home prepared foods year round.

CANNED APPLESAUCE

- 10 large cooking apples, (10 cups sliced)
- 2½ cups water
- ¼ -⅓ cup sugar
- 2 tsps. liquid sweetener or ⅓ cup sugar replacement

Wash apples; core, peel and slice. If fruit is to stand several minutes before cooking, drop into mild salt solution (1 tablespoon to 2 quarts of water) to prevent discoloration. Drain. In large saucepan combine apples and water; cook until soft about 15-20 minutes. Press through sieve. Return to saucepan; add sugar and Sweet•10 and bring to a boil.

Pack into clean pint jars to within one-half inch of top. Cap according to label directions for jar tops. Process in boiling water bath for 25 minutes. Remove jars from canner. Do not turn bands as that breaks seal. Cool 12-24 hours or until cold. When cold, remove bands and check seal. Makes three to four pints.

Dinner Salad Made With Cantaloup

The cantaloup, a type of muskmelon, should be selected for maturity and ripeness, advises USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

A fully mature melon has thick, coarse and corky veining or netting over the skin. The stem should be gone, leaving a smooth shallow basin or "full slip" (indicating that the stem came off fully and smoothly when the fruit was picked).

Ripe melons have a yellowish cast to their rinds, will yield slightly to thumb pressure on the blossom end and have a pleasant characteristic fragrance. The general class of muskmelons was so named because of the aroma of the ripe fruit. "Musk" is from the Persian, meaning a kind of perfume, and "melon" is derived from the Latin word for "apple-shaped melon."

CANTALOUP-TUNA DINNER SALAD

- ½ head of lettuce, broken into pieces
- 1½ cups diced cantaloup (½ small)
- 1 cup diced orange
- 1 7-oz. can tuna, drained and broken in pieces
- ½ cup slices green onions
- ¾ cup diced American cheese
- ¼ cup sliced black olives
- ½ cup chopped celery
- Dressing

Wash lettuce and break into bite-size pieces. Toss with remaining ingredients and chill well. Just before serving, toss with dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Dressing: Combine ¼ cup mayonnaise and the juice of ½ lemon. Pour over salad and toss.

Onions Are Star Of Glaze

Mellow, mouth-watering onions are the star of this honey-butterglaze.

GLAZED ONIONS

- 6 onions
- 2 tbsps butter
- ¾ cup honey
- ½ tsp. paprika
- ½ tsp salt
- ⅛ tsp pepper
- 3 tbsps. water

Halve onions and put cut side up in large covered casserole. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over onions. Cover and bake in 350° oven for 1½ hours, basting occasionally with sauce. Makes six servings.

ADMITTING NURSE'S WOES

At Times There Just Isn't A Bed

By JOAN LISETOR

Florence L. Donaldson of Corte Madera is the nurse in charge of the admitting department at Marin General Hospital and supervises the admission of between 1,200 and 1,500 patients each month.

Mrs. Donaldson joined the staff 22 years ago, the week before the hospital was opened to the public.

"I try to impress on my staff that we must be understanding and helpful, even though patients and family members may understandably be under great stress when we first meet them," she said. "We are often the first impression they get of Marin General, and we want it to be a good one."

"The public is always right" is her motto, she said, although diplomacy is sometimes called for when she gives the patients admitting forms to sign. Attorneys have a tendency to pick the forms to pieces, she said, and then there are the relatives, who think they know it all.

Her department is involved in everything that goes on in the hospital from the basement up, she said.

"MANY TIMES over the years we just have not had a bed available for a patient who had a reservation for a bed for a scheduled elective procedure," she said, "and we have to try to do the best we can to accommodate these people and their doctors. We can't always convince the doctors that the hospital is full, and they send patients. Five or six times we have had to cancel the entire day's admissions."

When no beds are available, she advises doctors to try another hospital. Other times she shifts patients, but with such specialized sections as intensive care, obstetrics, pediatrics, heart unit and isolation, the juggling is often tricky.

"A few times patients have had to be put in the hall, and I threaten Ray Bolinger (administrator of the hospital) when the place gets full I'll park patients in his office," Mrs. Donaldson said.

In making room assignments the admitting office attempts to pair persons of similar ages, she said. This is not always what the patient wants, she said, recalling a recent 70-year-old woman who was adamant in not wanting someone her age in the room with her.

Mrs. Donaldson has faced some grim times at Marin General and recalls the polio epidemic of 1954, when there were patients in the pediatric department and on the fourth floor in iron lungs.

MRS. DONALDSON is a native of Colchester, Ill., a small town south of Chicago. She studied nursing in the Chicago area before coming to Marin County, where she first worked at the former sanitarium, Arequipa, in Fairfax. She has also worked in Southern California and at Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco.

During the 22 years she has been at Marin General the admitting department staff has grown from two to 11 persons.

To make the admitting process as easy and brief as possible, the hospital has introduced a permanent numbering system that is kept indefinitely, and there is also a current file of the last three-year period to aid in readmission of patients, Mrs. Donaldson explained.

"The admitting department also makes addressograph plates for all incoming patients and also for the lab, physical therapy and administration," she said. "We also supervise the transportation corps, which escorts all incoming patients to their assigned rooms and also escorts patients to the lab, EEG (electroencepholograph), X-ray and nuclear medicine facilities, she said.

"But our primary responsibility is to obtain all the vital information about the patient, insurance coverage and other pertinent facts, as quickly and as gently as we can."

Contact with the public and the fact that no two days are ever the same are what make her job enjoyable, Mrs. Donaldson said, "even though you wouldn't think I enjoy it to hear me yell the way I do sometimes."

Cancer Fund Raiser Is A Big Success

By MOLLY MARIN

Balmy weather, good music and an open-air bar contributed to the success of Sunday's fund-raising dinner get-together for the Marin Unit of the American Cancer Society at Deer Park Villa, Fairfax.

Many in the crowd of about 190 diners rose in delight to dance to the 40s music of a group of volunteer musicians (they were really pros, who donated their talents, as did other entertainers and a long list of committeemen.) Sausalito celebrity Sally Stanford and disc jockey Frank Dill did the honors for a number of door prizes; Madam Tanya told fortunes in a corner, and students of the Russian School of Ballet danced in colorful costume.

Among those attending were Dr. Norman Carrigg, president of the Marin unit, president-elect Bonnie Garety and husband Roger, dinner chairman Robert Vidaurri, May and Roy Troutman (busily collecting tickets), volunteers Carletta Ehat, Karlyn Horton, Jim Baroni, Ellen Vertuno, Marion Ponseti and many other whose time and talents have helped the local unit meet its $85,000 goal this year.

FAMILY MEMBERS honored Mrs. Lucretia Hanson on her 93rd birthday last Friday with an evening party at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson in San Anselmo. Mrs. Hanson's other children are Mrs. Lucretia Hanson Little of Mill Valley, Mrs. Amy Howell of San Francisco, Mrs. Flora Randolph of Sonoma and Dr. Karl Hanson of San Francisco.

Mrs. Hanson has lived in Mill Valley since 1919. She was a reporter and columnist for the Mill Valley record for 33 years, retiring at the age of 80. She is now living at the Mill Valley Rest Home.

SAN FRANCISCO YACHT Club's guest list for its upcoming Challenge Cup Race weekend, reads like a Who's Who in San Diego yachting, according to Mrs. Robert Potter whose husband is race chairman.

Sixty San Diego Yacht Club officers, committeemen and the crew of Kingfish, challenger for SFYC's 1895 silver trophy, will be welcomed to the Belvedere yacht club with a dinner dance for 200 on Friday.

The elegant evening will be sharply contrasted on Sunday by a "great wallowing affair" at SFYC dock after the race, when the winning skipper traditionally is dunked, followed by his crew and sometimes their dates and heedless bystanders.

When the winners are wrung out, there will be speeches, music and a champagne party.

Sailing notables among the guests are boat designer and San Diego Yacht Club commodore Arthur DeFever, Kingfish's skipper Malin Bernham and his crew — John Rumsey, a veteran ocean racer reared in Belvedere; Carl Eichenlaub, a boat builder and competitor; Lowell North, Olympic gold medalist; and John Driscoll whose father is at the helm of California's Intrepid in the America's Cup trials.

Their SFYC competitors are co-skippers Frank Wosser and Shelly Miller, both of Belvedere and their crew — Peter Salz, a newcomer to Corinthian Island; Thomas Elliott of Tiburon, Tad Lacey of San Francisco and Win Ward, Don Jessberg, Steve Green and Jimmie Davies, all of Belvedere.

KELLY ANNE JACINTH was honored at surprise bridal shower Sunday afternoon, prior to her departure for New York City and her wedding there to Albert S. Hall Jr. Kelley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jacinth Jr. of San Rafael and granddaughter of the senior Jacinths of Honolulu. She is the sister of Nanci Shaw of Rohnert Park, Gary Motcher of Glen Ellen, Judi Brocco of Santa Rosa and Rocky Jacinth of San Rafael.

Kelly, who attended Terra Linda High School, will continue school after her marriage. Her husband is a member of the U.S. Coast Guard.

DR. AND MRS. VICTOR LOOSANOFF of Greenbrae will be hosts for a garden party Saturday at their home, honoring three students of Dr. Loosanoff at the Pacific Marine Station run by the University of the Pacific at Dillon's Beach.

The students are receiving master's degrees in marine biology. One of the three, Gregory Anderson of Sebastopol, will continue study toward his PhD. with Dr. Loosanoff at the Marin facility. The other two honorees, Terry West and Russell Schmidt, will do advanced work at Duke University and UCLA respectively.

Attending the garden party will be several other of Dr. Loosanoff's students.

DOROTHY EASOM is back in Marin this week after attending the wedding of her daughter Verna Maxwell Easom and Kevin Ralph Clader in Missoula, Mont. July 13.

Mrs. Easom reports that Verna was born and reared in San Rafael, attending Marin Country Day School, San Rafael High, College of Marin and the University of Montana in Missoula.

Her bridegroom was graduated from the Montana university in January and is employed by the Missoula Police Department as a law enforcement officer.

Verna's uncle, Bruce Easom of Ft. Lauderdale, gave the bride away. Susan Howell of San Rafael was maid of honor, and the bridegroom's brother, Chris Clader of San Rafael, was an usher.

The young couple, who met five years ago in Marin, will live in Missoula where Kevin ultimately hopes to pursue a career in forestry, according to Mrs. Easom.

Mrs. Harry Easom of San Rafael is Verna's grandmother.

THE THOMAS CORN family are back in Belvedere after a Caribbean cruise. The trip was planned for the five children — a week cruising on a 74-foot yawl in British West Indies, a few days at Disney World in Florida, a visit to Corn's parents in Macon, Ga. and then on to visit his brother's home on Sea Island, Ga.

The highlight was the "gin-clear" Caribbean where they snorkeled and shell collected and the older boys and their parents helped sail the yacht.

The yawl put in at Norman Island, the setting of Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island. They climbed to the top of Spy Glass Hill and explored the cave where the treasure was buried.

A RECENT STORY on these pages about river trips brought to light the names of a number of Marinites who have rafted the Stanislaus River this summer. They include Nancy McCarthy and Shareen Akroosh of Stinson Beach, Evelyn Hughes and Elizabeth Rall of Mill Valley. Cindy Dickson and James Dickson and Diane Agnew of Stinson Beach were rafting the Grand Canyon on the Colorado River late last month.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Woman Loses Her Husband And Then Doubles Her Troubles

DEAR HELEN:

My husband is crazy about his three children but he had no room for me. The problem: he's a very civic-minded person and, between community affairs and sports events, I was shut out completely.

Three months ago (after a showdown), he left, saying he needed more time for his work, without aggravation. But he manages to see his children every day.

Now I've met an older businessman who is crazy about me and wants me to get a divorce so we can marry. But suddenly my husband shows great interest in me again.

From being sad and lonely, I am now wanted by two men. The wealthy (older) man would give me anything I wanted. My soft-skulled husband still loves sports and community work. I'm afraid I'd go back to being just the mother of his children who doesn't count.

Could a man change? Or is it best to choose the man who puts me first? — UNDECIDED

DEAR UN:

Yes, a man can change — but don't count on it!

Have you considered, perhaps, that you could change too? If you became more interested in community work, then you might share your husband's pleasure in it and, in turn, he might give up a few sports events for your pursuits (or pursuit of you).

Since you enjoy being wanted by two men, why not wait a few months longer for your decision? But keep in mind: the person who always puts you first can be a great burden — unless you love him. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

In your "Things I Can Do Without" column you mentioned the traffic cop who, after giving you a ticket, says, "Have a nice day."

Here's a sure way not to get a ticket, if you're a woman: Burst into tears. Even a policeman can't stand to see a female crying wildly. His first thought is to get away from there fast. So open the floodgates and he'll give you only a warning and leave. — EXPERIENCED

DEAR EX:

Don't bet more than you can afford to lose on it! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend of mine had to put her child out for adoption. Realizing the little girl might someday be very curious, she wrote her a letter which the social worker said would be given to the adoptive parents to pass on to her.

It started: Dear Child of Ours: Yes, ours — your natural parents and your adoptive parents. We all love you and want you to have a healthy, happy, busy life. But the real purpose of this letter is to tell you about your "natural family."

Then she described herself, the child's father, their parents, said there were no "inherited diseases," told some personal anecdotes, explained why she felt it best to give her baby up though she loved her very much.

It was a long letter, full of concern and love, but, of course, it gave no clue about identities.

I think adopted children would not feel "lost" if they knew more about their roots and what better way than via letters from the women who bore them? I wonder why more girls don't think of this when they give up their babies? — T.F.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

David Misakian Wed To Meredith Guthrie

Meredith Guthrie of Sausalito and David Misakian of San Rafael were wed July 28 in a ceremony at St. Anselm's Church in San Anselmo. A reception followed at the Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Music at the wedding included a song written especially for the couple by Michael Wilson, a singer and guitarist from Inglewood.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt H. Guthrie of Salinas and David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Misakian of San Rafael.

Meredith chose her sister Elisabeth Nolan of Berkeley and Susan Wilson of Ingelwood as her matrons of honor. Bridesmaids were Mary Church of Salinas, Judi Geyer of Fairfax, Kathy Atkins of Sausalito and Linda Christensen of Mill Valley.

The bridegroom's brother Fred Misakian of Alameda was best man and ushers were Gary Topance and Frank Silvestri of San Rafael, Fred Dal-Bro of San Jose, John Sauter of Terra Linda and Jim Peccorini of Novato.

Meredith was graduated from Notre Dame High School in Salinas and California State University, Fresno, with a major in child development. She is currently a student at California State University, San Francisko, where she is studying for her teaching credential.

She is the sister of Merritt Guthrie of Salinas and Michael Guthrie of San Francisco.

David was graduated from California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, and is employed at Douglas Lithograph and Print Company, South San Francisco.

The newlyweds will live in Larkspur after a camping trip in Canada, Washington, Oregon and Northern California.

Mary Terrell Is Red Cross Top Volunteer

Mary Terrell of Tiburon was named Volunteer of the Year by the Marin County Chapter of the American National Red Cross for her work as Coordinator of First Aid Instructors.

Mrs. Terrell was responsible for filing the names of volunteers as they became qualified to instruct one of the three first aid courses. She also searched her files and checked for those most qualified when a call came in for an instructor.

"She really is an eager beaver. If it's a multi-media course and she cannot find an instructor, Mary will do it herself. But we discourage that because she is too busy on her own job," said Cathy Weldon, administrative assistant.

The Red Cross offers a multimedia one-day course, a standard first aid and personal safety 30-hour course, and an advanced and emergency care course.

PARENT AND CHILD

Schools Losing Relevancy

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Did you know that in some large cities in the United States and Europe more than half the teen-agers who are supposed to be in school are absent on any given school day? This raises a serious question as to how relevant school is to a large part of the student population.

In Baltimore, New York, St. Louis, Detroit, London, Bonn, and many other places, thousands of school-age youngsters do not attend all their assigned classes. Many may go to school, but once at school they talk in the halls or on nearby grounds and attend at most one or two classes a day.

Some students claim that they are not dropouts but pushouts. They claim that teachers have hassled them to such an extent that they have found their time in the classroom humiliating and embarrassing. The teacher gives failing grades in homework and classwork. The student generally avoids that class whenever possible. Eventually, the student drops out.

And as any teen-ager who dropped out of school can tell you, most employers do not ask whether a boy or girl has completed high school before hiring him for unskilled and semi-skilled jobs.

A dropout may have an edge because he or she may have already held a job and have a reference. A high school graduate may benefit because the personnel manager may prefer schooling to experience in hiring. But personnel managers are not a bit agreed on this.

Of course, a high school degree is a prerequisite for undergraduate study in most technical institutions, as well as two and four-year colleges.

But there are innumerable employment opportunities in the Western technological job market which depend more on learned skills than on a diploma. They include hairdressing, barbering, tool and die manufacturing, most assembly-line work, data processing, stockroom management, custodial services, refuse removal, dishwashing, cooking, automobile servicing and repair, to name just a few.

Youngsters 14 or 15 years old who expect to work in such service occupations find secondary schools almost devoid of any specific help for them. They really do not want or need algebra or classification biology or a semester reading and re-reading "Julius Caesar."

But they do want and probably would stay in school if the course offerings touched much more closely on their present and future life-styles.

For example, such students would thrive under a cooperative education program with a business or industry whereby they could spend part of their time studying and part of their time in on-the-job training. Either a split day or one semester in school, the next on the job.

They would benefit enormously from a practical mathematics course in income taxes, simplified bookkeeping, the cost of mortgages and loans, savings and investment schemes, unit pricing, and simplified budgeting.

They would benefit from classes in criticism of contemporary art, music, film, books, and dance.

They would appreciate opportunities to learn the basic skills in a number of lifetime sports such as cycling, swimming, tennis, golf, etc.

They would be strengthened by courses in care and maintenance of small tools, household equipment, garden equipment, and rudimentary automobile maintenance.

The democratic process would be enlivened beyond measure if every secondary-school student had to participate in the political campaign of his choice — writing and reporting on his experience, and learning at the grass-roots level how communities, towns, cities, states, and nations are governed.

In ways such as these, schools could become a more vital part of growing up for more youngsters.

TANA of Ignacio are spending this week aboard their 40-foot Owen power cruiser at Webber Point Yacht Club on the Delta. Fontana's brother, Robert, from San Diego will be their guest.

Members of Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon, the Fontanas keep their boat at Webber Point most of the year, but in September they exchange berths with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Griffiths, who keep their boat at CYC.

DAVINA AND ALBERT KOSH of San Rafael celebrated a 40th wedding anniversary this week with a family dinner out. Joining them were their sons Jack Eisen and Albert Jr. and Albert's wife Darby. The junior Koshes live in Petaluma. Jack, a writer on urban transportation for the Washington Post and former I-J staff member, came from the capital for the occasion. He will return at the end of this week.

DICK CARDOZA of Tiburon is taking some ribbing because his wife Donna is a rising star in sailing. Corinthian Yacht Club's bulletin says, "Donna did the skippering, delegating Dick to galley wench."

Mrs. Cardoza whizzed their Quente, a ranger 26 to victory in tis division in the club's first Tri-Club Regatta. Then she won the Women's Division at the club's July 20 Sport Day.

She also takes the helm in the club's Friday night series which ends this weekend.

"Dick gives me all the credit, but he's really training me so I can take over the tiller in the YRA races," says Mrs. Cardoza.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Woman Loses Her Husband And Then Doubles Her Troubles

DEAR HELEN:

My husband is crazy about his three children but he had no room for me. The problem: he's a very civic-minded person and, between community affairs and sports events, I was shut out completely.

Three months ago (after a showdown), he left, saying he needed more time for his work, without aggravation. But he manages to see his children every day.

Now I've met an older businessman who is crazy about me and wants me to get a divorce so we can marry. But suddenly my husband shows great interest in me again.

From being sad and lonely, I am now wanted by two men. The wealthy (older) man would give me anything I wanted. My soft-skulled husband still loves sports and community work. I'm afraid I'd go back to being just the mother of his children who doesn't count.

Could a man change? Or is it best to choose the man who puts me first? — UNDECIDED

DEAR UN:

Yes, a man can change — but don't count on it!

Have you considered, perhaps, that you could change too? If you became more interested in community work, then you might share your husband's pleasure in it and, in turn, he might give up a few sports events for your pursuits (or pursuit of you).

Since you enjoy being wanted by two men, why not wait a few months longer for your decision? But keep in mind: the person who always puts you first can be a great burden — unless you love him. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

In your "Things I Can Do Without" column you mentioned the traffic cop who, after giving you a ticket, says, "Have a nice day."

Here's a sure way not to get a ticket, if you're a woman: Burst into tears. Even a policeman can't stand to see a female crying wildly. His first thought is to get away from there fast. So open the floodgates and he'll give you only a warning and leave. — EXPERIENCED

DEAR EX:

Don't bet more than you can afford to lose on it! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend of mine had to put her child out for adoption. Realizing the little girl might someday be very curious, she wrote her a letter which the social worker said would be given to the adoptive parents to pass on to her.

It started: Dear Child of Ours: Yes, ours — your natural parents and your adoptive parents. We all love you and want you to have a healthy, happy, busy life. But the real purpose of this letter is to tell you about your "natural family."

Then she described herself, the child's father, their parents, said there were no "inherited diseases," told some personal anecdotes, explained why she felt it best to give her baby up though she loved her very much.

It was a long letter, full of concern and love, but, of course, it gave no clue about identities.

I think adopted children would not feel "lost" if they knew more about their roots and what better way than via letters from the women who bore them? I wonder why more girls don't think of this when they give up their babies? — T.F.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Mary Terrell Is Red Cross Top Volunteer

Mary Terrell of Tiburon was named Volunteer of the Year by the Marin County Chapter of the American National Red Cross for her work as Coordinator of First Aid Instructors.

Mrs. Terrell was responsible for filing the names of volunteers as they became qualified to instruct one of the three first aid courses. She also searched her files and checked for those most qualified when a call came in for an instructor.

"She really is an eager beaver. If it's a multi-media course and she cannot find an instructor, Mary will do it herself. But we discourage that because she is too busy on her own job," said Cathy Weldon, administrative assistant.

The Red Cross offers a multi-media one-day course, a standard first aid and personal safety 30-hour course, and an advanced and emergency care course.

PARENT AND CHILD

Schools Losing Relevancy

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Did you know that in some large cities in the United States and Europe more than half the teen-agers who are supposed to be in school are absent on any given school day? This raises a serious question as to how relevant school is to a large part of the student population.

In Baltimore, New York, St. Louis, Detroit, London, Bonn, and many other places, thousands of school-age youngsters do not attend all their assigned classes. Many may go to school, but once at school they talk in the halls or on nearby grounds and attend at most one or two classes a day.

Some students claim that they are not dropouts but pushouts. They claim that teachers have hassled them to such an extent that they have found their time in the classroom humiliating and embarrassing. The teacher gives failing grades in homework and classwork. The student generally avoids that class whenever possible. Eventually, the student drops out.

And as any teen-ager who dropped out of school can tell you, most employers do not ask whether a boy or girl has completed high school before hiring him for unskilled and semiskilled jobs.

A dropout may have an edge because he or she may have already held a job and have a reference. A high school graduate may benefit because the personnel manager may prefer schooling to experience in hiring. But personnel managers are not a bit agreed on this.

Of course, a high school degree is a prerequisite for undergraduate study in most technical institutions, as well as two and four-year colleges.

But there are innumerable employment opportunities in the Western technological job market which depend more on learned skills than on a diploma. They include hairdressing, barbering, tool and die manufacturing, most assembly-line work, data processing, stockroom management, custodial services, refuse removal, dishwashing, cooking, automobile servicing and repair, to name just a few.

Youngsters 14 or 15 years old who expect to work in such service occupations find secondary schools almost devoid of any specific help for them. They really do not want or need algebra or classification biology or a semester reading and rereading "Julius Caesar."

But they do want and probably would stay in school if the course offerings touched much more closely on their present and future life-styles.

For example, such students would thrive under a cooperative education program with a business or industry whereby they could spend part of their time studying and part of their time in on-the-job training. Either a split day or one semester in school, the next on the job.

They would benefit enormously from a practical mathematics course in income taxes, simplified bookkeeping, the cost of mortgages and loans, savings and investment schemes, unit pricing, and simplified budgeting.

They would benefit from classes in criticism of contemporary art, music, film, books, and dance.

They would appreciate opportunities to learn the basic skills in a number of lifetime sports such as cycling, swimming, tennis, golf, etc.

They would be strengthened by courses in care and maintenance of small tools, household equipment, garden equipment, and rudimentary automobile maintenance.

The democratic process would be enlivened beyond measure if every secondary-school student had to participate in the political campaign of his choice — writing and reporting on his experience, and learning at the grass-roots level how communities, towns, cities, states, and nations are governed.

In ways such as these, schools could become a more vital part of growing up for more youngsters.

TANA of Ignacio are spending this week aboard their 40-foot Owen power cruiser at Webber Point Yacht Club on the Delta. Fontana's brother, Robert, from San Diego will be their guest.

Members of Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon, the Fontanas keep their boat at Webber Point most of the year, but in September they exchange berths with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Griffiths, who keep their boat at CYC.

DAVINA AND ALBERT KOSH of San Rafael celebrated a 40th wedding anniversary this week with a family dinner out. Joining them were their sons Jack Eisen and Albert Jr. and Albert's wife Darby. The junior Koshes live in Petaluma. Jack, a writer on urban transportation for the Washington Post and former I-J staff member, came from the capital for the occasion. He will return at the end of this week.

DICK CARDOZA of Tiburon is taking some ribbing because his wife Donna is a rising star in sailing. Corinthian Yacht Club's bulletin says, "Donna did the skippering, delegating Dick to galley wench."

Mrs. Cardoza whizzed their Quente, a ranger 26 to victory in tis division in the club's first Tri-Club Regatta. Then she won the Women's Division at the club's July 20 Sport Day.

She also takes the helm in the club's Friday night series which ends this weekend.

"Dick gives me all the credit, but he's really training me so I can take over the tiller in the YRA races," says Mrs. Cardoza.

Jill Chesley Married To Eugene Casaretto

St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda was the scene of the ceremony July 27 which united Jill Louise Chesley of San Rafael and Eugene J. Casaretto of San Carlos in marriage.

A reception followed in the Marinwood Community Center.

Jill and Eugene will make their home in San Carlos while attending University of San Francisco, from which both will graduate in 1975.

Jill, the daughter of Dura L. Chesley of San Rafael, chose Valerie Riner of Chico as her honor attendant, with Kathleen Guiney of San Diego and Kathleen Kittle of Colusa as bridesmaids.

Charlie Jaz of San Mateo was best man. Ronald Kilcoyne of San Francisco and Mark Casaretto, the bridegroom's brother, were ushers.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Casaretto of San Carlos.

Jill has two brothers, Dennis of Larkspur and Jerry Chesley of Santa Rosa. Her grandmother is Mrs. Lois Sherbet on Monte Rio.

She was graduated from Terra Linda High School; Eugene from Serra High School in Burlingame. Both are employed in San Francisco, Jill with the California State Parole office and Eugene with St. Vincent De Paul thrift shop.

INVERNESS FESTIVAL

They Like Spreading The Music

By MARC LITTMAN

The recently concluded 1974 Inverness Music Festival has quickly receded into the past as the public shifts its attention to the county's other, plentiful summer musical events.

The 89 instrumentalists and 40 singers, many of them local residents, who participated in the month-long July festival, have moved on to other engagements, other combinations of talent.

St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness, sole performance hall of the festival's first nine years, has resumed its churchly routine.

Theaters, schools and churches throughout the county linked for four successive July weekends as participants in the festival's offering of classical to contemporary music, have similarly returned to their separate affairs.

And though music director Hugo Rinaldi and festival president Carole Berg have since been absorbed in other musically related tasks — Rinaldi is music director of the San Rafael school system and Mrs. Berg is also president of the Marin Symphony — they do so with the satisfaction of having successfully achieved the festival's goals.

Principally those were to involve Marin residents of all backgrounds and ages, particularly the young, in a warm and wide-ranging musical experience.

"We wanted to provide more than just music," Rinaldi said. "We wanted to move the festival around the county so that people could relate and become a part of it," he added.

"And it worked," Mrs. Berg concluded.

The idea of expanding the festival this year from the small, intimate hall in St. Columba's Church that seated only 150 persons to eight other locations in seven Marin communities drew impetus from the energy crisis. But its genesis was the desire of festival organizers to bring the festival to those who normally wouldn't be able to attend.

CAROLE BERG
Inverness Festival president

HUGO RINALDI
Reflects on festival

Toward this end, Rinaldi staged 15 rehearsals of his specially organized, 35-member, festival chamber orchestra in various convalescent homes, much to the delight of the elderly and nonambulatory patients.

Besides St. Columba's Church, one or another of the 18 festival performances, which ranged from an all-Ives concert to Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera, "The Consul," was held at San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow, the Veterans Memorial Building in San Rafael, St. Sebastian's Church in Kentfield, the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo, the Del Mar School in Tiburon, the United Methodist Church in Mill Valley, College of Marin in Kentfield and the Francis Blair home in Point Reyes Station.

Including the chamber orchestra rehearsals, from 6,500 to 7,000 persons witnessed the performances, Mrs. Berg estimated.

Though final receipts are still being tabulated, she estimated that aided by an $8,000 grant from the California Arts Committee and $6,500 from the county government, the festival — which grossed about $17,000 from other sources — would probably break even.

"The cost of just renting Veterans auditorium was enormous," Rinaldi pointed out. It came to $1,200 for five events, just for the hall itself. He said that the amount paid to electricians there in overtime alone, $800, for the two performances of "The Consul," was more than the full orchestra combined received.

Although importing some guest talent, notably cellist Laszlo Varga and harpist Marcella DeCray, the festival's emphasis this year was on local talent, particularly youth.

Rinaldi matched student musicians and conductors with their professional counterparts including Varga, and vocalists Gwen Curatilo, Marian Marsh and Donna Peterson of Marin, pianist Paul Hersh of Mill Valley and guitarist George Sakellarious of San Rafael.

Eighteen scholarships of $100 each were also awarded to top high school student musicians in Marin.

But Mrs. Berg stressed that one of the main intentions of the festival organizers was to offer a musical experience that persons of all ages and backgrounds could share and enjoy, even nonmusicians such as herself.

Even County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney contributed his spare time to play the consul in Menotti's opera, she said.

Rinaldi pointed with pride to the chamber orchestra that was composed in part by families with two generations participating. Violinist Daniel Smiley for instance performed in the orchestra along with his mother.

But the Inverness Festival organizers experienced frustration along with success.

"We made mistakes, Mrs. Berg said, adding, "We're still learning."

Besides the expense of renting Veterans' Auditorium, she suggested that perhaps too many performances were scheduled and that it might be wise in the future to schedule the festival a little earlier to give Marin residents a break before the onset of the Forest Meadows Center of the Arts music festival which began last week.

Rinaldi reflected that small, intimate halls are more conducive to chamber orchestra music than the expansive Veterans' Auditorium.

"It was a psychologically demoralizing experience both to the audience and the musicians when only 400 out of 2,000 seats in the auditorium were filled," Mrs. Berg explained.

Rinaldi also suggested scheduling of a chorus next year and continuance of the chamber orchestra, which performed for the first time this year with a fully staged opera.

Further he toyed with the thought of a local composer-in-residence for the festival.

Both agreed that spreading the festival throughout the county, a radical departure this year from past festivals, had proved worthwhile and should be continued next year.

But the two organizers cautioned that these were only suggestions and that the festival board will have to adopt plans for the future when it meets later this month.

Asked whether she would work with festival organizers next year, Mrs. Berg, who has been associated with the festival since 1969, left it to Rinaldi to speak for both of them.

"Music's a way of life. It's a love, an avocation and a profession."

Petaluma Sewer Fee Reduction Requested

A compromise of the City of Petaluma sewer use charge for rural residents probably can be worked out, Petaluma city councilmen have agreed.

The council on Monday postponed to Aug. 19 action on a draft ordinance that would have cost residents outside city limits $137 a year to use the city's sewers.

According to David A. Breninger, assistant city manager, Donald M. Van Dyke, spokesman for the sewer user group known as Petalumans Unincorporated, stressed that outside sewer users are being asked to pay as much as six times the use fee charged in-city residents, and said the fee is about three items the actual cost of handling the unincorporated area sewage.

Van Dyke asked that the annual fee be lowered to $53 per household, Breninger reported.

The county of Sonoma requires any household within 300 feet of a public sewer main to hook into it, regardless of septic tank utility, Breninger explained. The city has sewer mains extending into the Sunnyslope area south of the city, where most of the protesting homeowners live.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

BOND ISSUE — Formally put a $2.2 million park bond issue on the general election ballot Nov. 5.

TRANSPORT — Learned that the Metropolitan Transportation Commission has approved a $189,829 grant to the city for use either in buying transit rights-of-way for the transport systems such as a bus fleet. The city's only transport service now is Golden Gate Bridge District buses and Greyhound buses passing through.

PARKS — Set priorities for using the city's $122,000 share from the state park bond election in June. First priority will be purchase of the McNear Peninsula property on the Petaluma River; otherwise the money will be used to buy hillside open space. The council disapproved of a city parks and recreation commission proposal giving second priority to improvements of Lucchesi Park.

VANDALISM — Informally approved steps recommended by a council-citizens' committee to halt vandalism at Lucchesi Park. The plan includes new shrubbery barriers, more police patrols and possible removal of restrooms.

The spokesman, who said the Cabot family requested that no information be released concerning the 55-year-old actor's state of health, said yesterday only that Cabot had recovered sufficiently to be discharged.

Cabot was best known as the butler in the television comedy series "Family Affair."

Lawyer Says Sirhan Didn't Murder Kennedy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A New York attorney says evidence shows that convicted assassin Sirhan Sirhan did not kill Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The evidence "conclusively shows" that Sirhan, now serving life at San Quentin, fired his .25-caliber gun while in front of Kennedy, but the fatal bullet struck the Senator in the back of the head, said Henry B. Rothblatt.

"I am recommending that a panel of the top forensic scientists of the nation be set up to completely review the circumstances and issue a report—in all fairness to Sirhan as well as the American people," he said.

Rothblatt spoke yesterday at the convention of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America.

Balloonist Dies With His Dream

OCEAN GATE, N.J. (UPI) — Robert Berger hoped to be the first man to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a balloon. Yesterday he rose 6,000 feet in a homemade craft but fell to his death when the balloon burst.

Witnesses said the 12-story-high, helium-filled balloon broke apart as it fell into Barnegat Bay near the New Jersey shore.

Berger's body was found trapped in the gondola. He apparently did not have time to use his parachute, which was also found in the craft.

Berger, 47, a Philadelphia electrician who was married and the father of four children, had never flown in a homemade balloon before.

He spent two years and $25,000 building the craft. Berger intended to float across the ocean and land in Paris in 36 to 48 hours.

Record Scratching Case Is Dismissed

WHEN IT'S COCKTAIL TIME

Allan Weldon, 3C, of 278 Manor Drive, Mill Valley, fights a roof fire with a garden hose in one hand and in the other, a cocktail. The 5:19 p.m. fire at his home was caused by sparks from the fireplace and Weldon did not let it interrupt Monday's cocktail hour as he helped Fireman Daniel Miles (on the roof) put out the fire.

Sausalito Council Rejects Bob's Boatyard Demolition

The Sausalito, City Council last night again declined to grant developers of the Schoonmaker project a permit to tear down Bob's Boatyard, sought for preservation by conservationist forces.

Councilmen voted 3-1, Sally Stanford opposed, to ask planning commissioners for an opinion on whether the proposed demolition is part of a larger development project, thus requiring an environmental impact report.

The city is scheduled to be in court on the matter Aug. 19 in a lawsuit by the developers who are seeking to force the council to permit razing the yard.

A parade of citizens last night opposed the Schoonmaker plans, saying that to tear down the yard would do irreparable damage to the local fishing industry. The facility is the only one in Sausalito with capacity to handle fishing vessels and houseboats running 400 tons or more.

Resident Robert Clark urged the council to buy the yard from the developers and operate it as a municipal port facility.

Schoonmaker spokesman Steve Siskind blamed the city for foot dragging in approving development plans for forcing him to close the yard.

Siskind said that if he receives an indication from the council that development plans would be approved within 90 days, he would reopen the yard and subsidize its operation until a new boatyard could be built as part of O'Meara Chandler Corporation's proposal for development of the Schoonmaker property in the Marinship area of the city waterfront.

Speaking in favor of the demolition were Sam Zakessian, owner of Sausalito Marine, a boatyard that specializes in yacht repair, and Ralph (Swede) Pedersen. Both said the yard is inefficient, incapable of performing quality repair work and an eyesore on the waterfront.

The Sausalito City Council also:

DEVELOPMENT — Passed on first reading a zoning amendment prohibiting simultaneous filing of more than one development application for the same parcel of land, Sally Stanford opposed.

HOUSE — Overruled a community appearances advisory board decision and approved design plans by William Hynes for a single-family home at 3 Marion Avenue on the South Ridgelands.

VARIANCE — On a split vote, upheld a planning commission decision to grant a variance from parking requirements to William Charles for a proposed retail sales and office establishment at the former Glen Five and Ten at 670 Bridgeway.

CASA MADRONA — Postponed until next Tuesday a decision on a committee recommendation that the mudslide-threatened Casa Madrona Hotel be vacated by Sept. 15.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned until Tuesday in council chambers.

Sausalito Councilman Stalls Bond Election

Sausalito City Councilman Sally Stanford withheld her support for a proposed $1.5 million open space bond election last night, an action that could keep the measure off the ballot in November.

Miss Stanford refused to approve spending $6,000 for bond counselor's fees although City Atty. Leland H. Jordan warned that delay could cause the city to miss the deadline for meeting requirements to get the issue before voters in the November general election.

Approval requires the unanimous vote of all four councilmen.

She resisted pleas from Councilman Robin Sweeny, who argued that the council is obligated to allow the people to decide the issue at the polls, regardless of any individual councilman's stand on open space.

Miss Stanford explained that she decided to oppose the measure after her three colleagues earlier had voted for tougher requirements in filing applications for development proposals.

Continued persuasion from Mrs. Sweeny softened her position somewhat and the matter was scheduled to be taken up again next Tuesday after Miss Stanford agreed to "think it over" in the interim.

Petaluman Killed In One-Car Crash

A Petaluma youth was fatally injured last night in a one-car accident near Cotati, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Rudolph L. Reckny Jr., 21, of 809 Paula Lane, died in Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital shortly after the 10:55 p.m. accident on Highway 101. He was a passenger in a car driven by James Douglas Staydon, 18, of 701 Carline Court, Petaluma, the patrol said.

Investigators reported Staydon's car, southbound on the freeway about one-half mile north of the Gravenstein Highway offramp, apparently drifted off the road and hit a redwood tree.

Funeral arrangements for Reckny were pending today at Parent Funeral Home, Petaluma.

Survival Inc. Supported In Sausalito

The Sausalito City Council last night granted Survival Inc. $500 to establish the city's first recycling center.

In approving the grant unanimously, the council also offered the 3-year-old recycling firm the use of a former city corporation yard on Bee Street for a collection depot.

The depot will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each weekend for the pickup of glass, aluminum, tin, newspapers, paper bags and cardboard.

The operation is expected to begin shortly after Labor Day, according to a spokesman for Survival Inc.

New Record Set For Monopoly

DALLAS (UPI) — Two 17 year-old boys yesterday claimed the world record for the continuous playing of Monopoly —90 hours.

Tommy Thomas and Robert James started playing Monopoly at 6 p.m. last Friday and ended at noon yesterday. They said the old record was 86 hours, set in Birmingham, England.

The youths agreed to stop playing at noon and promptly fell asleep on the floor.

BIT OF SHERLOCK HOLMES

Dog Catcher Likes Job

By FRED STREBEIGH

"What do you do when your work gets you down and things are getting boring?" asked special investigator Donald J. Simpson of the Marin County Humane Society. "Play a little bit of the old Sherlock Holmes, right?" he said as he wheeled his animal ambulance around in pursuit of a fleeing mutt.

"He knows this truck," Simpson deduced as the Wily prey, a "golden Lab mix," took evasive action. "That indicates to me not only that he's been out a lot, but that he's been caught out."

"See that great leather I.D. tag like they put on suitcases. He was probably picked up once and taken to the pound for no identification, so his folks decided it was better to have him taken home next time."

Simpson, 32, a resident of Petaluma, said that after his four years on the beat he has learned "to think the way a dog thinks", but this time his canine quarry — using the terrain to best advantage — escaped by bolting downstreet and vaulting a 5.5-foot pineboard fence into the safety of his home yard.

"I could still mail them a citation," Simpson said, but the absent dog-owners were saved the $15 fine when he surveyed the fence and decided it was sufficient to restrain "any ordinary dog."

"To like this job you have to like animals," Simpson said, directly contradicting the stereotype of the cursing, net-wielding dogcatcher.

In a four hour patrol through San Rafael and adjoining territories this week, Simpson made it clear that he likes both, although, he said, "nobody likes being called dogcatcher."

Humane society officers are not mere dogcatchers, spending only about 40 per cent of their time rounding up pets, according to superintendent Robert L. Dollahite. More time is spend helping injured animals, including deer and wounded bobcats, tracking down packs of vicious dogs in west Marin, and checking on reports of rabies in bats, skunks, and other animals.

And when the nine officers are patrolling as dogcatchers, Simpson said, the problem is not to discipline dogs, but to discipline people. He feels the $15 slap on the nose is justified because many owners don't realize what damage their pets can do.

"For example," he said, "where there's a female in season we'll find 15 to 20 dogs around the house — from as much as two miles away — and they're tearing the door down. And they definitely can tear the door down.

DOG MEETS CATCHER — Humane Society officer Donald J. Simpson nabs Peppy, a friendly terrier found frisking unlicensed, unleashed, and unattended on the road in front of his San Rafael home. "He's a nice puppy," Simpson said as he delivered Peppy and a $15 dollar citation home to Carol Jordan at 349 Mountain View Avenue, "but you have to cite the nice ones too."

MARIN
CONTROL

TWO MILES TOO MANY — Officer Simpson discusses the broader points of San Rafael's leash law with Barbara L. Polk and her coon hound Hodges. Hodges, a frequent offender, was first sighted strolling down Mission Street, two miles from his home on Gold Hill Grade.

"The dogs just go a little nutty. And you can't blame the dogs, so you have to blame the owner for not having the dog under control at that time."

On this particular tour of duty, which Simpson said was "very quiet", only three strays were picked up.

Two of them offered more affection than resistance as Simpson delivered them back, with citations, to their chagrined but resigned owners.

The third, an old coon hound strolling down Mission Street in San Rafael, recognized Simpson's truck and lit off down and out through the apartments at the bottom of a dead end street.

"That SOB.", Simpson said. "I've caught him two times before."

"You see, I've got a definite advantage with this dog, because I know where he lives, and he knows I'm chasing him, and I know he'll head home," Simpson said.

With complete faith in his deductive gift, Simpson turned from the scene and drove two miles to 55 Gold Hill Grade where he told a flabbergasted Barbara L. Polk that her errant hound was headed home.

"And I told you last time that I'd have to cite you if he got out again," he told her, just as Hodges, her 10-year-old Black and Tan Coon hound loped into the driveway with tongue and ears flapping.

Leaving the scene, Simpson insisted it was all elementary. "When you've been at this business a while," he said, "dogs are pretty predictable."

Marin Transit Board Refuses To Support Big Bus Service Subsidy

The Marin County Transit District board shied away yesterday from a proposal that it subsidize a special bus service to West Marin at nearly $10 per passenger.

The service, which was started July 4 by the Golden Gate Bridge District, carries weekend tourists to and from various West Marin recreational areas. It will end Labor Day.

The new service was never referred to the county for review even though Marin's estimated share of the cost totals $8,500 for 900 passengers.

In flatly rejecting the amount, transit district directors said they would pay no more than $2,700, based on the $3-per-rider subsidy paid for other West Marin runs.

Chairman Michael Wornum, while joining in the unanimous vote, earlier spoke in support of the higher amount saying the recreational travel service is something "that should be tried."

"We've been encouraging it for years," he said.

Other directors differed, however, and their position was summed up by director Jack G. Nixon who said that "regardless of the desirability of recreational transit to West Marin, it's sheer foolishness to talk of $10 per trip. It's ridiculous."

"Where else can you go on vacation for two-bits and get the taxpayers to pay the rest?" chimed in Director Robert A. Roumiguiere.

The board's stand means the bridge district will have to pick up the added cost.

The Marin County Transit District board also:

BUS LANE — Urged the state to designate exclusive bus lanes on Highway 101 between Greenbrae and Richardson Bay Bridge. The stretch is being widened to four lanes each way and directors urged that buses have exclusive use of one lane during commute hours.

CONTRACT — Supported a staff suggestion that a contract be drafted between the transit district and Golden Gate Bridge District outlining the bus services provided the county by the bridge district. No contract has existed between the two even though the county purchases local bus service from the bridge district.

GRAND JURY — Urged further study into a proposal from the county grand jury that busing of school children be incorporated into the county transit system.

Burton Speaks Out On Ferry Terminal

Rep. John L. Burton, D-Sixth District, has urged directors of the Golden Gate Bridge District to pay heed to citizen objections before proceeding with plans for a temporary downtown ferry terminal in Sausalito.

"I am in support of mass transportation and support the concept of using ferries as an alternative to vehicular traffic," Burton said in a letter received this week by the bridge district and Sausalito city officials. "However, it seems to me these concerns expressed by the community are quite valid. I would hope you would address yourselves to the concerns of the Sausalito residents and other people in Marin before proceeding with this temporary terminal and the expenditure of $200,000."

The congressman said his letter was prompted by complaints from constituents.

Bridge directors have voted to go ahead with the project over objections by the Sausalito City Council and many citizens.

Opponents fear the district's new 750-passenger boats, which the temporary facility is intended to serve, will bring an even greater influx of tourists to the city. The present ferry, the Golden Gate, has a capacity of 575.

They also are protesting the construction of the terminal without an environmental assessment of the project's impact on the community.

Tiburon Sanitary Budget Cut

The Tiburon Sanitary District board has adopted a 1974-75 budget of $208,200, which will make possible a drop in the tax rate of about 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation, according to board president James Murray.

The budget is almost $75,000 less than last year's. The tax rate for 1973-74 was 79 cents, but Murray estimated that this year's rate will be 64 cents.

The biggest decrease in the budget stemmed from a board decision not to buy a new sewage treatment system from the Bio-Kinetics firm of San Rafael. In 1973-74 the district spent the $81,000 originally budgeted for this project on upgrading lines and pumps after it decided not to go ahead with the Bio-Kinetics proposal, Murray noted.

Other budget categories for this year with last year's figures in parentheses:

Salaries, $71,300 ($67,000); plant utilities, $8,650 ($8,650); pump utilities, $2,100 ($2,100); plant repairs $15,500 ($15,500); audit $3,000 ($2,800); pension, $7,500 ($12,500); insurance, $3,675 ($3,675); repairs of pumps and lines, $74,700 ($54,000); legal, $3,100 ($2,900); board attendance $2,400 ($2,400); miscellaneous 0 ($300); travel, 0 ($1,500); Southern Marin Subregional Sewerage Agency fees, $5,400 ($5,000); office expenses, $1,000 ($1,000); autos and truck, $1,500 ($3,000); telephone, $1,000 ($1,625); dues, $500 ($300); postage, $200 ($200); meetings, $300 ($300); monitoring of lines, $5,000 ($10,000); consulting, 0 ($6,000).

Firemen Have Narrow Escape

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Five firemen narrowly escaped injury yesterday by jumping inside the cab of their fire truck and rolling up the windows when flames from a grass and brush fire swept over their truck.

The fire, which investigators said may have been started by two boys, charred more than 125 acres of brushland in the Diamond Bar area south of the Pomona Freeway.

Another blaze in the Hollywood Hills blackened 20 acres near the Franklin Canyon Resevoir, while 75 acres of land burned in the Westlake area and five acres burned in Elysian Park north of the Police Academy.

County Retreats From Pool Plan

Approval of an agreement to share in construction of a 50-meter swimming pool at Indian Valley Colleges hit a new snag yesterday as county supervisors demanded greater public use. (Other supervisors stories, page 1.)

The proposed contract between the college district and county listed county use during summer months and said year-round use should be negotiated later.

Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini and Robert A. Roumiguiere objected strongly, saying the hours of public use should be negotiated now, before the contract is signed.

Under it, the county will put $273,000 toward the pool — the difference between building a regular-sized pool and an Olympic-sized pool.

Also questioned yesterday was a requirement that the county help finance maintenance and operating costs. Both Giacomini and Roumiguiere said that had never been agreed to by the county.

The discussion was sparked by Betty Machado, a trustee of the Novato Unified School District, who urged the county to stay out of the deal. She said a similar "community pool" at Novato High School has become virtually a school pool, with limited public hours.

The discussion opened up past arguments between Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste and Roumiguiere over where to locate the 50-meter pool. Roumiguiere favors McInnis Park.

Giacomini, noting the contract called for public use during the summer only, said "we're not getting anything, the public could use it during the summer anyway."

At his urging, the contract was referred back so public use provisions on a year-round basis can be added.

Board Won't Budge On Retirement Issue

Marin County supervisors yesterday refused to budge from the county's latest offer to the probation and social workers union in the three-year dispute over a county retirement plan.

Under the latest offer, members of Local 535, Service Employees International Union, will be offered a choice of two retirement plans depending on their willingness to pay back premiums.

The issue stems from a 1971 decision by county supervisors to provide an "enriched retirement system" to county employees.

In acting, however, they failed to negotiate the new system with employee groups and Local 535 sued, winning a decision that the county must negotiate the matter.

Other employees began paying higher premiums — for higher benefits — immediately, but the higher premiums paid by probation and social workers were refunded.

Attorney Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., a former Marin Municipal Court judge, represented the union yesterday before supervisors, saying the county offer was not acceptable.

He said the union members should be placed in the "enriched retirement system" but not be required to pay back premiums to 1971.

The county erred and the county should pay those premiums, he said.

Supervisors disagreed, saying to do so would cost taxpayers up to $127,000 and would not be equitable to 1,100 other employees who have paid higher premiums during the last three years.

Goldstein offered a compromise that the county and union members split the cost, if any, but his offer was rejected.

The union will next ask the county retirement board to consider the matter.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

FUNDS — Approved a shift of $20,000 budgeted for road improvements to cover the cost of a soils study of the Oak Manor slide near Fairfax. The study will proceed once homeowners agree not to hold the county liable for future damages that might occur as a result of the soils work.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed former Supervisor Vera Schultz to the county auditorium, cultural and fair advisory board; Ruth Lederman and Sue Olive to the human rights commission; and Ed Ryken to the North Bay Senior Planning Council Advisory Board.

TRIP — Authorized supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. to travel to Washington D. C. to testify at congressional hearings on acquiring additional lands for the Point Reyes National Seashore and Golden Gate National Recreation Area. The hearings are set for Aug. 20.

ROAD — Designated North San Pedro Road as the county's top choice for a share of federal road funds to be shared among Marin's 11 cities and the county. Cost of the North San Pedro project is about $1 million.

LEGISLATION — Voted 3-to-2, supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. dissenting, to support state legislation creating a Bay Area planning agency. It would merge the water quality control board, air pollution control board, Bay Conservation and Development Commission and Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

Pixie Trail Bike Path Top Project

The Homestead Valley Community Association last night decided that a bike trail up Pixie Trail towards Mount Tamalpais would be one of the first projects which should be undertaken with any money coming to the area through the state park bond issue.

Other projects picked were a new tot lot at Homestead School and repairs for a swimming hole once used on a creek which runs through Three Groves, a recently acquired park in Homestead Valley on Montford Avenue.

Kalmbach Now Serving Term

LOMPOC (UPI) — Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's former personal lawyer, has begun serving his term for Watergate-related offenses at the minimum security federal prison.

He was assigned to work on construction of a sewage treatment plant.

Kalmbach, 52, once one of the most prominent lawyers in Southern California, was sentenced to six to 18 months by U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica in Washington, D.C. after pleading guilty to two counts of violating campaign practice laws in the 1970 elections.

Fairfax Tennis Club Is Approved

A $1 million tennis club project near Fairfax was approved unanimously yesterday by Marin County supervisors over the objections of a well-organized band of neighbors.

Approval of the Redwood Racquet Club project followed lengthy debate over its merits and demerits before an audience of protesting Monte Cristo area residents.

The decision brought groans and recriminations from some residents, one of whom told newsmen after the meeting: "Make sure you tell how we were ripped off."

The project, planned for the 20-acre Camp Lilienthal site on Bolinas Road, calls for eight tennis courts and related facilities.

Project backers, represented yesterday by San Rafael attorney Albert Bianchi, said the club would be a better use of the site than 20 homes as allowed under current zoning.

Architect Robert Arrigoni, brother of Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., charged that much of the protest was prompted by misleading information circulated by protesting neighbors.

The neighbors, however, represented by Novato attorney Joseph A. Forest, countered that noise and traffic generated by the club would be objectionable in the quiet residential area.

Forest also charged that the club was commercial in nature, a use not permitted in areas zoned for residential use.

Supervisors were not persuaded, however.

"I don't think this use will be detrimental to the area," Supervisor Arrigoni said, adding homes would cause greater damage to the picturesque property.

(Arrigoni earlier questioned whether he had a conflict-of-interest because of his brother's involvement and was told by the county counsel's office that he didn't.)

Other supervisors agreed. Chairman Michael Wornum added that the use "will be less of a nuisance than the boy scouts who used to use the site."

The land is being sold to W. Shell Fuller, a San Francisco real estate broker, for $200,000 by the boy scouts.

Arrigoni Pension In Another Bill

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — Special legislation to benefit Marin County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. — by qualifying him for a 40 per cent boost in retirement pension — has been amended into a bill awaiting final passage.

Present law prohibits Arrigoni from getting retirement benefits from his four years on the Fairfax city council because it was an unpaid position when he held it. The special legislation would abolish the restriction.

A spokesman for Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, who had the amendment introduced at Arrigoni's request, said the supervisor apparently was its sole beneficiary in the state.

The amendment was tacked onto AB 3275 by Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-San Bernardino, while the retirement bill was in a Senate committee just before the June recess. The measure needs only Assembly concurrence in the amendment to send it to the governor for his signature into law. It would be effective immediately upon his signature.

The legislation will permit Arrigoni to add the four years of extra retirement credit by paying the state retirement system both his share and the county's share for the four years.

(Officials in the county treasurer's office, which administers the retirement program, said no computations had been made to show how much Arrigoni will have to pay or how much he will get back in pension payments.)

If Arrigoni leaves office after his present term expires in two years, he will qualify when he is 55 for 10 years of retirement pension. This will include eight years as a supervisor and two in the armed forces.

The present pension system pays beneficiaries 16.67 per cent of their last annual salary if they have 10 years of credit, and 23.33 per cent if they have 14 years. The difference of 6.66 per cent is equal to $1,230 a year under the supervisor's current annual salary of $18,-480.

The actual amount paid Arrigoni will be more, since the system adds up to 3 per cent a year for cost of living increases after payments begin. The supervisor's salary which went up 10 per cent this year, also may rise again before he retires.

Arrigoni is 43 now, thus will start drawing his pension 10 years after he leaves office. His wife would get 60 per cent of the pension until her death if he died first.

The measure was requested privately by Arrigoni, and was not part of the county's official legislative program. The bill requires that the board of supervisors approve adding the four years of credit to Arrigoni's pension.

County Bus Cost Bill Is Dropped By Behr

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to save Marin County at least $250,000 a year in payments to the Golden Gate Bridge District for disputed bus costs has been dropped by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

The measure was introduced in April by Rep. John L. Burton, D-Sixth District, while he was an assemblyman. It was drafted by Marin County Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini.

Burton turned the bill over to Behr after his election to Congress in June. (The senator's decision was backed unanimously yesterday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.)

Behr said the legislation (AB 3595) "had served its purpose as a catalyst for this year's agreement" on a payment by the county to the bridge district. The compromise calls for payment of $85,000. The district had asked $351,000.

The dispute is over the cost of carrying intracounty passengers on intercounty buses operated by the bridge district. The county has argued for years that these passengers produce extra revenue on buses that would run anyway.

Behr said the Metropolitan Transportation Commission should arbitrate the dispute next fiscal year.

Boardwalks' Exemption From Controls Sought

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation exempting the Greenbrae and Larkspur boardwalks from Bay Conservation and Development Commission jurisdiction was introduced yesterday.

Owners of undeveloped property in the boardwalk area objected that the commission's limits on bay fill bar virtually any use of their parcels. The commission requested the legislation after it concluded it never intended to have control over the boardwalk areas.

Also introduced yesterday was an amendment deleting the requirement that the commission draw up an annual list of properties to be acquired for public use within three years. The listing has had no effect on public purchase of bay properties, the commission's staff said.

Both provisions were amended into SB 2155, a bill by Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, that is pending in the Senate.

Man Held On Probe Of Burglary

A Mill Valley man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglary and possession of stolen property after unusual ceramic pots reported stolen from a Sausalito house were found in the living room of his home.

Police said the pots containing house plants were of a unique and easily identifiable design and bore the initials of the burglary victim on the bottom.

Held in lieu of $10,000 bail was Steve Constantine Negoesco, 22, of 156 Florence Avenue. He was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Investigators said officers from Sausalito and Mill Valley went to Negoesco's home at 11:45 a.m. to question him about several recent burglaries.

Police reported that the young man tried to evade them by hiding in bushes behind the house. He was discovered and taken inside the residence, where the pots were found.

Bagley Bill Would Limit Donations

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A $50,000 limit on donations from single campaign contributors was proposed yesterday in a bill (AB 1122) introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The limit also would apply to businesses which are 25 per cent or more owned by the contributor.

Bagley, the Republican nominee for state controller, said the measure was necessary because the recently passed Proposition 9 "is silent on the subject" of a maximum gift.

He denounced his Democratic opponent for controller, Assemblyman Kenneth Cory of Garden Grove, for accepting primary campaign contributions totaling $508,000 from two Southern California businessmen. They were Louis Cella, owner of a chain of Orange County hospitals, and Mission Viejo developer Richard O'Neill.

China Is Deporting Many Young People

MOSCOW (UPI) — China has begun deporting young people from cities to swell the population along the Soviet and Mongolian borders and to reduce potential trouble, the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda said yesterday.

The newspaper said Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung and his supporters have found it undesirable to have in the cities large numbers of young people who have acquired a taste for "challenging established authorities."

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Any individual, firm or agency who plans to build or place a structure in, on, under, or over the navigable waters of the United States must first obtain a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Such Permits are also required for any dredging, filling, or dredge disposal in navigable waters. Regulations governing the administrative procedures on permits for activities in navigable or ocean waters were published in the Federal Register on April 3, 1974 as 33 CFR 209.120.

Navigable waters are any waters which are, have been, or can be used for commercial or navigation purposes. Federal permit authority extends over the entire surface of such a water body. Thus, any work in areas presently or formerly subject to tidal action (below the plane of mean higher high water, including unfilled areas behind dikes) or below the ordinary high water mark of rivers and streams may require a Corps permit.

The Federal Corps of Engineers permit is required in addition to any State or local permits. Private ownership of land under or beside the water has no effect on the requirement. If work is done in navigable waters as described above without a permit from the Corps, civil or criminal actions (including removal) can be instituted pursuant to 33 U. S. Code Secs. 406, 407, and 1319. Any questions regarding permits for work in navigable waters may be directed to the Regulatory Functions Branch, San Francisco District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco 94102, telephone: (415) 556-5178 or 556-5489.

Arrest Made In Pipe Bombing

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — Ricky A. Young, 22, a laborer, was arrested yesterday on charges he mailed a pipe bomb which exploded and killed a superior court judge.

U.S. postal inspectors said Young was picked up in Richland, Wash., and ordered by a federal magistrate to be held without bail.

Judge James Lawless was killed June 3 in his office. The bomb was mailed to the Benton County Courthouse, and a law clerk carried the package into the judge's office.

Lawless had sentenced Young to a year in jail in 1971 on a burglary conviction.

A Fishy Mystery

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Police inspector John Sole ordered Constable Philip Herring to investigate a theft yesterday. The missing property was a box of haddock.

Lindsay Fired By Station

By FRANK S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — The possible misuse of television by a politician is always a danger for the American political process.

WCBS-TV in New York recognized this possiblity of compromising its fairness in its election reporting this week when it fired ex-Mayor John V. Lindsay, a former presidential candidate, because he endorsed a candidate for governor.

Lindsay was hired to join the WCBS-TV election team for the September primary and November election. His comments might have been informative, especially from someone as colorful as Lindsay.

Certainly, the actual endorsement is not critical to the future of New York politics. He just doesn't have the political clout he once did.

But the question of the possible misuse of television by a charismatic politician such as Lindsay is disturbing, not just for this election, but for future elections on the national level. Lindsay will be a regular on ABC-TV's upcoming morning show "AM America." And it will give him an incredible and unprecedented forum to reach the American public.

WCBS made the right move after Lindsay disregarded the "no-politics" pledge of his staff to the station. ABC, however, someday may be put in a similar situation.

And before Lindsay makes his first broadcast, ABC might ask its new employe: Why should he be provided with a forum that no other politician will have?

For the ratings?

Certainly Lindsay would argue that he is out of politics and is looking for a new career in the medium that helped advance him.

But who's kidding who?

Lindsay made an unsuccessful bid for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination and anytime a politican gets hit by White House fever, he is smitten for life. And what does the Howard Samuel's endorsement mean? Support for Lindsay in a Senate race? Who knows, but his hat is still in the political ring.

WCBS should have been a little more perceptive before Lindsay was hired. But the station has its assurances. Lindsay's media man David Garth told the station the former mayor was out of politics and would make no endorsements.

"We had been assured that Lindsay would stay out of the political arena for the near future or at least until after the election," said Ed Joyce, WCBS-TV's news director, after he dropped Lindsay on Monday. "Lindsay was clearly defined as a non-partisan who could not endorse anybody."

Joyce said that Lindsay's endorsement, which was made in Paris Sunday, was a "surprise."

"When I heard about the endorsement yesterday, I said to myself ... this blows it!'" said Joyce.

Joyce admitted, despite Lindsay's avowed disinterest in politics, he was going to take a hard look at Lindsay before he made his first broadcast for the station. Lindsay would undergo tests in advance and a member of the WCBS-TV broadcast team would report back to Joyce on any partisanship.

"He would have gotten the hook if he showed any favoritism," said Joyce. "He would have been removed."

However, ABC said Lindsay's job on "AM America" will be unaffected by the endorsement.

The show's executive producer, Dennis Doty, said Lindsay had been hired to "provide a point of view, insight and style that is John Lindsay on everything from government, sports, society and the arts."

He said that since the show was scheduled to premiere after the November election, the endorsement had no effect on Lindsay's position.

However, if Lindsay makes an endorsement while in the employ of ABC, he would have to take a leave of absence.

"ABC policy does not permit news correspondents or commentators to make any endorsements at any level unless thay take a leave of absence," said Elmer Lower, president ABC News.

Drunks Find It Hard To Drive These Days

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The higher cost of liquor, the diminished availability of gasoline, and the general depressed economy, may be forcing California's drunken drivers off the road, a leading law enforcement official said yesterday.

Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski said during an interview with UPI that there has been a 14 per cent decrease in the number of California highway fatalities involving intoxicated drivers so far this year.

During the first seven months of this year, 2,094 persons have been killed on the state's highways. Usually, the percentage of drunks involved in the fatal accidents runs about 50 per cent. But so far this year it has dropped to 36 per cent.

Pudinski said the cost of drinks and the late-hour scarcity of gasoline is accounting for fewer intoxicated drivers on the road. He said other factors also are responsible, such as a lower speed limit, year around daylight savings and the Highway Patrol's increasing crackdown on drunks.

"The energy crisis and the economy have somewhat changed the driving habits of drinking drivers," Pudinski said.

He said persons are now using the money for four or five drinks to purchase a bottle of liquor to drink at home.

"I'm sure the bar people don't like it," said Pudinski," But I'm pleased."

Other law enforcement officials put it more bluntly.

They said if a driver traditionally stopped at a bar and had seven or eight drinks after work he no longer can afford it. Now he takes that money and buys "a good bottle of liquor."

At night, they said, if a driver is sitting in a bar and he remembers his fuel gage is low, he leaves early to assure that a gasoline station is still open.

"Once he is out of the bar and at the gas station it is doubtful he will return to the bar," one Highway Patrol employee said.

Although patrol officials feel there are fewer drunken drivers on the road, figures show they are catching more of them.

This, Pudinski said, is due to an increased effort of the patrol and local law enforcement to spot and stop drunken drivers.

The patrol last year arrested 120,000 drunken drivers. This year they are projecting a record 130,000 such arrests. If local law enforcement stays abreast with the patrol there will be nearly a quarter-million drunks arrested on California highways.

Pudinski also said officers — who have not been with the state force for long — are learning how to spot drunken drivers on freeways and secondary highways.

Novato Officer Given Promotion

Ronald K. Buzzard, 32, a 10-year law enforcement veteran, has been promoted to sergeant in the Novato Police Department.

Buzzard, top man on the eligibility list, became a patrol sergeant last week.

He has been a member of the department since March, 1972, and had been working as a detective. He previously served with the California Highway Patrol from 1966-72 and the West Covina Police Department in Los Angeles County from 1964-66.

Buzzard holds a police science degree from Santa Rosa Junior College. He and his wife, Diane, have two sons, John and Ronald.

Bicycle Event Draws 26 Riders

The Cotati-Rohnert Park Recreation Department's bicycle marathon attracted 26 riders on Saturday and raised at least $200, a spokesman for the fundraiser said yesterday.

About half the riders have turned in their pledges so far after collecting from sponsors who promised to contribute amounts ranging from 25 cents to $1.50 per mile ridden. The total collected so far is about $106, according to Deanna Jones of the department.

The money will be used to help establish a teen-age activity program in Rohnert Park and a swimming program in Cotati, she said.

Medical Pioneer Receives Award

STANFORD (UPI) — The Stanford Alumni Association has awarded its Herbert Hoover Medal for distinguished service to Dr. Russel Van Arsdale Lee, a pioneer in group medical practice.

Lee founded the Palo Alto Medical Clinic in 1930 despite opposition from the medical establishment. He also set up the Palo Alto Medical Research Foundation and Channing House, a residential retirement home.

Reserve Fund Causes Split By Trustees

Cotati-Rohnert Park School District trustees last night adopted a $2,503,626 budget by a split 3-2 vote caused by disagreement over the district's need for larger cash reserves.

The budget, about $300,000 higher than last year, will increase the district tax rate by 21 cents per $100 assessed valuation to a total rate of $2.46 per $100, according to Assist. Supt. Robert Plikuhn.

He said the budget increase reflects salary hikes totaling $110,000 and the district's efforts to rebuild the present $40,000 cash reserve back up to $100,000. Trustee Andrew J. Camozzi said he opposes such a large reserve Trustee Anthony Carbone also voted against the budget without voicing any reason, Plikuhn reported.

Trustees also learned that their long campaign to extend the district schools to the junior high and high school level may come to a head tomorrow when the Sonoma County Committee on School District Reorganization gives the latest in a lengthy series of reports on the issue.

The session on whether the Cotati-Rohnert Park District should take over about one-third of the Petaluma High School District's enrollment will begin at 8 p.m. in the gymnasium of Rohnert Park Junior High School, Plikuhn said.

The session conflicts with another meeting he had previously arranged for trustees and parents to hear Dr. Eugene Antone of the State Department of Education speak on "Communicating With Youngsters." That session is set for 7 p.m. in Waldo Rohnert School.

Plikuhn said the trustees made no decision about which meeting they will attend.

The committee on school district reorganization report was not available today for preview.

Dynamite Is Found In UN Building

NEW YORK (UPI) — Security Police today found five sticks of dynamite in the United Nations Meditation room. The city police bomb squad deactivated the explosives without incident.

There was no immediate indication of who planted the dynamite in the room that diplomats use daily for meditation and silent prayer.

"The dynamite was found under a stairwell in a very, very dark corner of the room," A U.N. spokesman said. "It might have been placed there yesterday."

U.N. Security Police notified city police at 10:44 a.m. that they had found a package of explosives in the room, near the visitor's entrance to the U.N. building.

One guard described the Meditation Room as a "very dark room —a perfect place to hide a bomb." He said the room was checked each morning because of this and it was during the routine check that the dynamite was discovered.

Police said the dynamite was wrapped in a brown paper bag. They said matches and a cigarette lighter also were found in the room, which is located on the first floor in the northwest corner of the Assembly building.

Doctor Says Inmates Pale But Not Ill

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Inmates in San Quentin's Adjustment Center may become pale for lack of sunning, but it is not physically harmful, a physician testified in a civil rights suit.

The "San Quentin Six" inmates of the adjustment center have asked a federal court to release them from it on grounds that it is cruel and unusual punishment.

Dr. James Kasch testified yesterday before U.S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli that he had examined Johnny Spain, Hugo Pinnel and Luis Talamantas, three of the six, and found them suffering no serious maladies.

Earlier three other physicians testified that the three suffered from dietary inadequacy, hypertension and anxiety. Katz said this was nonsense.

He said the pallid complexion of the convicts was not physically harmful but resulted from a lack of exposure to the sun.

Board Sets Water And Tax Rates

North Marin County Water District directors last night set the tax rate in the Novato area at 8 cents per $100 assessed valuation, down one cent.

Auditor Sage L. Morris said the rate is expected to bring in about $115,000 in revenue to be applied toward retiring bond debt.

Directors also set a tax rate of 66 cents per $100 assessed valuation in the Point Reyes Station Improvement District and increased the water rates at Point Reyes Station-Inverness Park and Olema from 30 to 32 cents per 100 cubic feet.

The board also received notice from District Manager John O. Nelson that three lawyers have appealed North Central Coastal Commission approval of plans for a sewage treatment plant to serve the Coast Guard housing at Point Reyes Station and a hearing will be before the state Coastal Commission Sept. 4.

The appeal filed by John Burroughs of Inverness, Paul Kayfetz of Bolinas and Gary Near of San Francisco claims the district failed to evaluate the seismic hazard at the site adequately and failed to have proper design for flooding of the ponds.

Nelson also reported that bids on construction of the 5-million gallon Pacheco Reservoir were 66 per cent higher than estimated with O. C. Jones and Sons of Berkeley, low bidder, at $1,086,000.

The district is to contribute 31.7 per cent toward the cost and U.S. Development Corp., owner of the property, the remainder. The board postponed awarding a contract until Aug. 20.

$13 Million Budget Is Approved

The San Rafael Board of Education last night adopted an overall budget of $13,160,928 for 1974-75.

The budget is composed of a $6,833,488 high school district program, up from this year's $6,638,341, and a $6,327,440 elementary district program, up from this year's $5,989,988.

Supt. Donald Leisey estimated the high school budget will require a general purpose tax rate of $1.83 per $100 of assessed valuation, down from this year's $2.08 rate, and the elementary school budget will reqqire a general purpose rate of $1.74 per $100 of assessed valuation, down from this year's $1.96 rate. Total tax rates in all cases are substantially higher.

The board last night also decided to boost by five cents the cost of all items except drinks in the school system's cafeterias, the superintendent said.

The board also approved a $47,400 contract with Marin County Roofing, low bidder, for various roofing jobs, he said.

The board cancelled its regulary scheduled Aug. 13 meeting and next meets at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 27.

PRACTICING FOR AMERICA'S CUP BID

Valiant (right), one of four American 12-meter yachts vying for the right to defend America's Cup next month, sailed on as the two Australian entries — Southern Cross (left) and Gretel II — practiced off the coast of Newport, R.I. yesterday. One of the Australian yachts will meet the French entry France in a preliminary series to choose the challenger for America's Cup.

ABOUT SETTLING NFL STRIKE

Mediator Is 'Very Hopeful'

Sports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The striking pro football players and the National Football League owners returned to another bout of bargaining talks today with the government's chief labor mediator, who described progress toward settlement as "very hopeful."

W.J. Usery Jr., head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, called both sides back for talks at 9 a.m. EDT in an effort to end the 37-day-old dispute. He said developments today and tomorrow would be "very critical".

At the end of a five-and-a half-hour session with the NFL Players Association and the owners' Management Council yesterday, Usery commented: "I am more hopeful. I don't want to use the word optimistic, but I am very hopeful."

Usery renewed the talks after a weekend which saw both sides in the strike score psychological points. Low attendance marked almost every one of the first 12 pre-season games played with a resultant dollar cost to the owners. On the other hand, a number of top stars such as quarterbacks Bob Griese, Roger Staubach, John Hadl and Terry Bradshaw broke ranks to report to their team training camps.

There was no assurance that the strike would end before this weekend when every NFL team swings into action in an exhibition game.

Usery met throughout most of yesterday's session with key members of the two bargaining teams—Ed Garvey, executive director of the Players Association and Theodore W. Kheel Jr., special labor consultant for the owners. Nine player representatives and six owners also were on hand.

At the end of the day, Usery said: "I was very impressed with their attitudes and their desire to get on with it, to dig in as hard as they can to find a resolution to their problem. For the first time we have seen a genuine desire for a settlement."

Elsewhere, name veterans continued to drift into camps. Middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti and tackle Norm Evans joined World Champion Miami while safety Steve Preece became the fourth Los Angeles starter to come to camp. Joining Preece yesterday were backup quarterback James Harris and second-year cornerback Bill Drake.

Starting tackle Jon Kolb joined Pittsburgh and two starters — cornerback Pete Athas and kicker Pete Gogolak —and return specialist Rocky Thompson reported to the New York Giants.

A's Jackson Compliments Jenkins

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — After swinging and missing at yet another of Ferguson Jenkins' curve balls Tuesday night, Oakland's Reggie Jackson yelled out to the pitcher:

"Hey, quit making it look so easy."

But Jenkins went right on making it look easy all night long in recording his third shutout and his second against Oakland.

The 1-0 Texas victory over the A's also improved Jenkins' record to 15-10 and went down as one of the very best he has thrown this year.

"Fergie pitched a awfully good game," Ranger Manager Bill Martin said. "He was in control all the way."

Jenkins is now 3-0 against Oakland this season but he proclaims no special magic against the two time defending world champions.

"You just have to go out after them," Jenkins said. "They are the best ball club in the division so you have to go after them. They weren't hitting my curve ball too well and I kept getting ahead of them with my fast ball and then throwing the curve."

It was Jenkins' curve that got him out of the only jam he was in all night. With two out in the sixth, first baseman Mike Hargrove booted Claudell Washington's grounder and Jenkins walked Sal Bando to bring up the dreaded Jackson, who has mauled the Rangers all year.

Jenkins struck out Jackson, feeding him a slow curve on the outside corner.

Jenkins' counterpart, John Odom, also pitched well but was the victim of an untypical field lapse.

Odom, who had been scheduled to make only his third start of the season tonight, was moved up a day because of chest pains suffered by sched-

San Francisco Castoffs Help In Flag Drives

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Juan Marichal and Orlando Cepeda staged a couple of unscheduled "old timers day" celebrations last night to the delight of the Boston Red Sox and Kansas City Royals.

The 35-year-old Marichal and the 36-year-old Cepeda, former teammates at San Francisco, seemed pretty much washed up a few weeks ago but may still play important roles in the American League's eastern and western races respectively.

A healthy Marichal could prove decisive for the Red Sox in the eastern race and a slugging Cepeda might help the Royals make a late run on the western-leading Oakland A's.

Marichal, who was making only his second appearance since May 15, pitched three-hit ball for seven innings and Diego Segui finished up a 6-0 victory which gave the Red Sox a sweep of their doubleheader with the Milwaukee Brewers. The Red Sox won the first game, 6-3.

Cepeda, who has been playing on weak knees for a season and a half, made his debut with the Royals a success by hitting a two-run single in the fifth inning and making two hits in Kansas City's 17-3 rout of the Minnesota Twins.

Baltimore beat New York 4-1, Chicago downed California 12-2, Cleveland downed Detroit 9-7 and Texas shaded the A's 1-0 in the only other AL games.

Orioles 4, Yankees 1

Paul Blair drove in two runs with a double and two singles for the Orioles, who tagged Dick Tidrow with his ninth loss against eight wins.

Indians 9, Tigers 7

John Lowenstin's seventh homer broke a 7-7 tie in the sixth inning and Milt Wilcox won his second game with ninth-inning help from Tom Buskey.

White Sox 12, Angels 2

Ken Henderson capped a seven-run second inning with a bases-loaded triple and added two doubles to help Wilbur Wood coast to his 17th victory as the White Sox routed California.

WFL Method Of Counting Fans To End

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Has the World Football League been lying about its attendance figures?

Well, er, ah, yes! And, um, then again, no!

After two teams spilled the beans yesterday that their announced attendance figures for the year had taken into account all "freebies," WFL President Gary L. Davidson said that the league had adopted that practice to start but would dispense with it by Sept. 11.

The Philadelphia Bell disclosed Monday that 60,000 of the 110,000 fans who saw the Bell's first two regular season home games either paid a discount fee or nothing at all.

The Jacksonville Sharks said 44,000 of the more than 100,000 fans who attended their first two home games paid nothing for their tickets. As many as 57,000 are expected at Legion Field in Birmingham, Ala., where the unbeaten Americans play host to the winless Detroit Wheels.

In other games tonight, unbeaten Chicago entertains Florida, Southern California plays host to New York, Memphis visits Philadelphia and winless Portland entertains Houston.

Braves' Star Nears Ruth's RBIs Record

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The ghost of Babe Ruth still haunts Henry Aaron.

The 40-year-old superstar of the Atlanta Braves, who became baseball's all-time home run king earlier this season when he bested the Babe's career record, is moving at a rapid pace toward another one of the Bambino's golden marks — the record for most career runs batted in.

Aaron moved to within 27 of setting an RBI standard last night when he drove in four runs with a pair of homers while leading the Braves to a 5-2 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

The Braves have only 52 games remaining and Aaron, who figures to sit out at least 25 per cent of those, will have to push hard to surpass Ruth's career RBI total of 2,217.

In other NL games, Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 6-3 in 10 innings, Houston routed San Francisco 13-4, Pittsburgh edged New York 9-8 in 11 innings, Philadelphia beat Chicago 8-3 and St. Louis swept Montreal 5-4 and 9-4.

Reds 4, Dodgers 3

Johnny Bench's two-run homer off ace reliever Mike Marshall with one out in the 10th inning touched off a three-run rally which enabled the Reds to snap the Dodgers' eight-game winning streak and move to within 6½ games of the NL West Division leaders.

Pirates 9, Mets 8

Gene Clines scored an unearned run on a throwing error by reliever Tug McGraw in the 11th inning to give the Pirates a victory over the Mets.

Phils 8, Cubs 3

Willie Montanez hit his first career grand slam and Jay Johnstone collected a pair of homers to help Steve Carlton to his 14th win as the Phillies whipped the Cubs.

Cardinals 5-9, Expos 4-4

Mike Tyson drove in three runs in the first game to help Lynn McGlothen register his 13th victory and Joe Torre collected four hits in the nightcap as the Cardinals swept a pair and increased their lead in the NL East over Philadelphia.

Changes Loom For Beleaguered Giants

By JOE SARGIS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If Wes Westrum gets his way, and he probably will, you'll need a new scorecard to recognize the 1975 San Francisco Giants.

Westrum hasn't given up entirely on the 1974 Giants, at least not publicly, but already the manager is thinking ahead to next year.

"I have my ideas about who can play and who can't," Westrum said last night after watching the Houston Astros rock four of his pitchers for 18 hits enroute to a 13-4 victory. The day before, the Astros ripped Giant pitching for 19 hits.

"Obviously, our pitching is thin," said Westrum. "You don't have to be a magician to figure that out, so that's the part of the club that needs the biggest overhauling. There are others on this team who haven't or don't want to produce. I'm not going to mention any names but I've been here long enough now to know who can help us next year."

The Giants, as has been the pattern all year long, are short on fundamentals. In back-to-back losses to the Astros it took one miscue to do them in.

"We can't afford to make one mistake," said Westrum. "When we do it's always the blow that kills. The club is badly in need of work on the little things in this game. Those are the mistakes that are killing us. This should have been done in spring training. I can't start that kind of a program now with less than 50 games to go."

In Jim Barr, John D'Acquisto and Mike Caldwell, who will pitch the three weekend games against Chicago, Westrum has three pretty good starters. From there on there is little to recommend the Giants' pitching staff.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The 1977 PGA Championship has been awarded to Pebble Beach, it was confirmed Tuesday.

Green Talkative Before Big PGA Tourney

The clubhouse chatter leaves nobody in doubt that another major golf championship is at hand. (See picture, page 38.)

The 56th PGA championship begins tomorrow at the Tangle- begins Tnursday at the Tanglewood Golf Club and the wonder is that nobody has inquired about Hubie Green.

There was a time early this year when Green, a native of Birmingham, Ala., and Johnny Miller, the former U.S. Open champion from San Francisco, were making the tour their own private battleground.

Going into the PGA, Miller has five victories behind him and Green, three. Not surprisingly, they stand 1-2 in the money list, with Miller leading at $204,750 and Green at $160,449.

The 27-year-old Green, one of the most talkative players on the tour, doesn't see the PGA as anything more than just another tournament.

"It's you guys (media) who make it something special. Sure, when I win one of the accepted big-four titles, I can say 'I've been there,' but I've already won three times this year and all those victories were sweet."

To illustrate his point, Green said, "Go tell Victor Regalado he won nothing last week." The Mexican picked up a $40,000 check for winning the Pleasant Valley Classic at Sutton, Mass.

"Apart from my victories, there was one stretch of six weeks when I was in a challenging position every tournament. You just get plain tired, that's all, mentally and physically.

"The heat, the travel, the concentration ... it just gets to you. You have a letdown and somebody says you don't care. It really is stupid. Every pro wants to win each time he goes out on a golf course. It's just that there are a lot of good, young, players around today."

Although Green is in the money, he insists, "I don't play for money only," but he does maintain golf is the toughest of the pro sports.

"Just look at the time we spend away from home. How much time does a pro footballer spend on the road? Or a ballplayer? Us golfers, we get to spend three, possibly four months with our families. The kids grow up and you don't know it.

"But it's a great way to make a living. I enjoy it. I wouldn't have it any other way."

Green finished fourth in last month's British Open on his first visit to England, was tied for ninth in the Masters and tied for 26th in the U.S. Open the week after he won the IGB Philadelphia Classic.

"I'm not playing as well as I like, but I have another day to get my gametogether," he said.

Hubie Green did not wish to discuss the rough, which some of his rivals claimed was unfair, or the weather, which turned wet after two months of uninterrupted sunshine that caused neighborhood farmers a bundle of money.

"What's the point of discussing the course?," Green said. "You have to go out and win the tournament. We all start even. Talking about shots which got away don't help."

And with that Green went out to unravel the mysteries of Tanglewood's 7,050-yards. Not an eyebrow was raised.

The talk was still of Gary, Jack, Johnny, Lee and Tom.

Player expressed satisfaction with his game; Nicklaus arrived late to prepare; Miller, whose wife gave birth to a baby girl July 30, said he was hungry again; Trevino said nothing and Weiskopf said his ailing wrist ailed him no more.

Problems Facing Young Giants

The 1974 San Francisco Giants are not going to win the pennant in the National League West. There is no doubt about it. So why, you ask, should you spend good money to go out and see the Giants play? Good question.

There are many reasons for not going out to Candlestick Park to see the Young Giants. My own main reason is Candlestick Park itself. Poorly located in a windswept area, it is a dismal place to watch a game. And who needs all that phony grass (Astro turf). If God (or Abner Doubleday) had Astro turf in mind as a surface for baseball it would have been included in the rule book. In this case, progress has taken a giant step backwards. One need only travel to Oakland to see the game played in its proper setting.

Another reason for not journeying to the City for a game is the team itself. Totally inconsistent, the Giants have shown little or nothing to encourage patriotic support. One need not look back any further than last weekend to see clearly how inconsistent the team can be.

Now that we see that there's no pennant hope, that the park is brutal and that the team is totally unpredictable what possible reason is there for anything but a public execution?

Answer: Faith and Hope.

If the Giants are your team, don't quit on them. The same would be true if your team is San Diego or Minnesota or (heaven forbid) the California Angels. Like Wilkens Micawber in David Copperfield, you have to believe that a better day is just around the corner.

As many a learned man has said the hope of this country is its youth. The same is true of the Giants. The greatest asset the young team has is also the cause of its present plight. If this team is allowed to mature it will be a winner inside of two years.

Trades have to be made. Nothing earth-shattering. Keep a nucleus of Speier, Bonds, Maddox, D'Acquisto, Barr, Caldwell and Miller and then go out and get two pitchers. The reason I mention Miller is that I think he has a chance to be an outstanding third baseman.

Soem realistic goals for this year are: a .500 season, fourth place, 14 wins for D'Acquisto. If one of these goals is reached I'm sure the other two will fall in place.

Notes: Mike Parnow, former Dodger farmhand, called to let me know that Randy Jones, my pick for Rookie of the Year, isn't a rookie. This being true I'll switch to the obvious choice, Greg Gross of Houston. His five hits Monday made a believer out of me. . .

All this newspaper talk about Alvin Dark's newly won respect is just not true. One of the players quoted as saying what a great job Dark was doing told me recently that he didn't think Dark could correctly manage a one-car funeral procession. The fact that fines are now being levied is the reason the players have stopped being critical.

WHERE GOLFING GREATS MEET

victim of too many innings already and Elias Sosa, the other half of the bullpen, pitched more than 100 innings of winter ball and is out of gas.

The remainder of the staff adds up to zero with the possible exception of rookie Ed Halicki, who was touched for nine hits and six runs in absorbing last night's loss to Houston. That means both Ron Bryant and Tom Bradley can expect to be working elsewhere next year.

Among the others who have played regularly this year, Ed Goodson, Steve Ontiveros, Dave Rader and probably even Bobby Bonds will be offered around during the winter, with the Giants looking for pitching and catching help in return. Gary Thomasson, a part-timer who hasn't lived up to promise, is another who can be had.

One thing that bothers Westrum, who often caught with broken fingers, more than anything else about his current crew is the constant begging out of the lineup with minor hurts.

"This is a different generation of players and maybe I shouldn't be so hard on them," said Westrum. "But it bothers me the way some of them complain about the smallest of injuries. Besides, I think there are just too many damn injuries and if you ask me why, it's because most players today aren't in shape. You hardly ever see a player in shape get hurt. It's always the other guys who do."

Tigers Remove Cash From Active Roster

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers removed veteran Norm Cash from the active roster today — the first step towards giving him an unconditional release after 15 years with the team.

Cash, 39, is the second leading home run hitter in Tiger history. His 377 homers are second only to 394 hit by Al Kaline.

Trophy Race Set On Bay

Of the hundreds of boats that will sail San Francisco Bay Sunday, most will be out for pleasure. Two, however, will be in dead earnest as they race for the 1974 San Francisco Perpetual Challenge Trophy.

One will be the 35-foot aluminum-hulled sloop Kingfish out of the San Diego Yacht Club, challenger in the race. The other, as yet unchosen craft, will defend the trophy for the San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere. They will race the bay channel course, 14 miles, beginning at 1 p.m. off the St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco.

"I think we can safely say this is the most prestigious trophy race on the West Coast," says Robert Potter of Mill Valley, the chairman for the 1974 trophy defense committee.

It is also one of the oldest, having been held almost annually since 1895. That year the Encinal Yacht Club, with a boat called El Sueno, outraced Queen of the San Francisco club for the first trophy. San Francisco won it the next year and has successfully challenged for or defended it 14 times since, including the last three years.

Any recognized yacht club on the Pacific Coast can challenge for the trophy, but it has left the Bay only three times. Eureka took it north in 1912, the Los Angeles Yacht Club carried it south in 1946 and San Diego won in 1964.

St. Francis beat San Diego for the trophy in 1969. The following year, no race was held. In 1971, San Francisco challenged and defeated St. Francis. In '72 and '73, San Francisco defeated San Diego, last year with the sloop Gamma and Evan Dailey at the helm.

Although at least four boats are still in the running to defend this year, the crew is set. Frank (Jake) Wosser of Tiburon and Shelly Miller of Belvedere will co-captain, with a crew of seven: Jim Davies of Mill Valley, Peter Salz and Don Jessberg of Belvedere and Tom Eliot, Wynn Ward, Steve Greene and Tad Lacey of Tiburon.

The crew has been practicing with several craft, among them the 33-foot Molly B, 39-foot Bohemia, 30-foot Spruce Goose and Espirit, a one-ton sloop. Race rules permit the defending club to withhold the name of their boat until the day of the race.

The event will take from two and a half to three hours. Unlike some other cup races, this is a one shot deal. The San Diego crew arrived early this week with Kingfish to begin practice on the Bay.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Big Wake Means Poor Efficiency

Look at the wake the next time you are in a boat. It makes no difference if it's a sailboat or power boat, the bigger and more turbulent the wake, the less efficiently the boat is performing.

For motor boatmen it's an important consideration in this day of high fuel costs and potential shortages. Look at it this way: if the power of the engine — or the power from the sails — is being used to churn up a lot of water, it certainly isn't being used to propel the boat. . . and that is really what you are paying for.

First, let's look at the small powered pleasure craft — mainly because it is the most common and the worst offender in wasteful operation.

If an outboard motorboat is creating a big wake it's usually because it isn't planing properly, and the ability to plane, or skim over the water's surface is what makes the small outboard so fast and economical.

The most common causes of a boat not planing efficiently are overloading and failure to distribute weight properly. Correcting these difficulties is simple once you have discovered the cause. Throw out the unnecessary equipment and rearrange the passengers.

Another cause is "parasitic drag." Marine growth on the hull, which is very common in salt water, cuts down planing efficiency quickly. This problem is becoming more of a factor in fresh water, now that so much of our water is polluted by fertilizing materials which stimulate the growth of algae to fantastic levels.

Inefficient planing can also be the result of incorrect tilt of the outboard motor. For instance: if your motor is tilted too far aft, the cavitation plate will be pulled through the water at an angle causing "parasitic drag." This shows up as a mighty big wake. If your motor is tilted too far forward it causes the bow to dig in creating big waves. The prop runs too close to the surface and will "cavitate." This is a condition in which the propeller sucks air into its slipstream, speeds up, and churns away in a froth of air and water.

In either case you get a rough, slow and fuel-consuming ride.

This topic of boat efficiency is a very big one, as some of the questions I've been asked indicate:

Q. I have had a tiny imported 1-horsepower motor on our sailboat as an auxiliary. It was very slow. Recently I bought a 5-hp motor. It's still just as slow. Why?

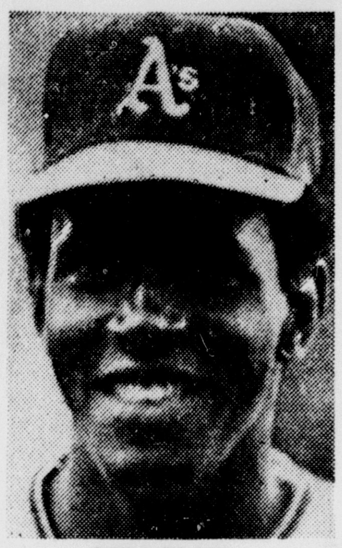
A. There are many factors limiting the speed of a sailing hull regardless of the power applied. The main one is length. Undoubtedly, the small outboard drove the hull to its maximum design speed and any increase in power is hardly noticeable. But I'll bet the bigger motor kicked up a bigger wake, didn't it?

Q. Can sailboats be made to "plane" like a power boat?

A. Yes, very much so. This is one of the breakthroughs that is giving sailing the big impetus these days with new flashy speeds. Formerly, sailing craft were strictly "displacement" hulls — they pushed through the water. The new shapes, notable in many of the small "sailboard" type craft, plane just like an outboard boat. Ride in one. . . you feel it lift.

Q. My boat sat on a trailer in Southern California all winter. Now that I have it back north it "porpoises" so badly it's almost impossible to handle. . . Why?

A. The boat (made of molded plywood) has lost its shape. The keel has developed a "rocker" effect. (On investigating further I found that this boat had been poorly supported on its trailer.) The only cure for a "rocker" is to apply a device on the bottom called variously a wedge, shingle or squatboard. This is applied at the transom in a manner to flatten out the planing surface. Another device that will cure "porpoising" — a rhythmic rising and falling of the bow — is a set of trim tabs.



VIDA BLUE

uled starter Vida Blue. Blue was hospitalized pending further tests.

Len Randle doubled to start the fourth inning and with one out, Toby Harrah lifted a popup to shallow right. Jackson romped in to make the play but second baseman Dick Green hustled out to do the same thing. They each stopped, looked at each other and let the ball fall in, allowing Randle to score.

"That sort of thing doesn't happen to Oakland very often," Martin said. "But that outfield was awfully tough to play (because of heavy rains during the day)."

Meanwhile, doctors treating pitcher Vida Blue today said electrocardiogram tests had been administered to Blue, but that results were not available.

Blue, a two-time 20-game winner for the world champion A's, was admitted to Baylor Hospital yesterday complaining of minor chest pains.

"Mr. Blue had a good night and is in satisfactory condition," a hospital spokesman said today. "He is still experiencing minor chest pains of questionable origin."

STATELINE, Nev. — The Miami Dolphins and the Los Angeles Rams have been installed as favorites by a Nevada bookmaker, to meet in the National Football League Super Bowl next year.

Harrah's Tahoe Race Book listed its opening line yesterday with Miami a 2-1 favorite to win the American Football Conference and Los Angeles a 5-2 choice to capture the National Football Conference.

In the American Conference the odds were: Oakland 3-1, Pittsburgh 4-1, Cincinnati 5-1, Buffalo 6-1, Denver 8-1, Kansas City 15-1, Cleveland 15-1, Baltimore and New York Jets both 20-1, San Diego 50-1 and New England and Houston both 60-1.

Raiders Insist Choice No Fluke

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — While those National Football League exhibition games involving rookies and free agents don't seem to prove much, the Oakland Raiders insist that linebacker Mike Dennery's fine performance against Dallas last Saturday was no fluke.

Dennery is a 13th-round pick from Southern Mississippi who was involved in three turnovers.

Dennery says he's not quite sure how the Raiders found him but Player Director Ron Wolf says "every time we saw him, he was making 15 or 20 tackles."

IN MINOR LEAGUES

Mediocre Week For Marinites

It's been a mediocre week for former Marin County stars playing baseball in the minor leagues.

Tom Thomas of Novato, who moved from double A to triple A three weeks ago, had the best performance with seven hits in 23 at bats for Charleston of the International League. He belted a double and a home run, and raised his average to .229.

Three Class A players, Clifford Hall of Marin City and Tom Olson and Jim Wilhelm of Kentfield, hit .235, .211 and .240 for the week respectively. Hall, with Newport News of the Carolina League, had a double and a homer, but his season average dropped to .279.

Olson, with Anderson of the Western Carolinas League, went just four for 19. Wilhelm, with Walla Walla of the Northwest League, had six hits in 25 at bats. Wilhelm's average dropped to .279.

Corte Madera's Rob Long, playing for Kingsport in the Appalachian Rookie League, went five for 23 with a double. He's currently hitting .239.

Marin's two pitchers, Russ Dillon of Novato and Dewey Forry of Terra Linda, each posted an 0-1 record for the week. Dillon, with Eugene of the Northwest League, lost his first decision of the year against eight wins, while Forry, with Waterbury of the Class AA Eastern League, ran his record to 2-4.

Softball Results

Munchies destroyed Scoreboard 18-1, Bud's Travel walloped Positively Fourth Street 12-3 and Greco's Babe's annihilated Western Travel Lifers 25-2 last night in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult softball league play at Albert Field.

Group Therapy Wins

Perry's Group Therapy edged Cap Purcell, 5-4, with Steve Mack winning the game with a home run in the sixth inning last night in a San Anselmo Parks and Recreation softball game at Memorial Park.

Schreiber, Hall To Start Monday

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — Running back Larry Schreiber and safety Windlan Hall, two of 13 veterans in camp, will start next Monday when the San Francisco 49ers meet the Cleveland Browns in an exhibition game.

Coach Dick Nolan confirmed Tuesday he will use the pair. They could have played in the team's first exhibition game against the San Diego Chargers last weekend but Nolan wanted to give them another week to get ready.

The 49er front office, meanwhile, indicated that it hoped to swap running back Vic Washington for a defensive lineman. Washington was ousted from training camp Monday after a squabble with Nolan.

HOUSTON FLOURNOY
Wants state coverage

Flournoy Criticizes News Media

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Houston I. Flournoy criticized the news media yesterday for not paying enough attention to the state election campaign.

"The sad fact is that there is less interest paid to the coverage of state politics today than there was when I first ran for the Assembly 14 years ago," he said.

"Only one news organization —the Los Angeles Times — covers the candidates for governor. Others pick up as we enter and leave their local areas."

He said this was not true during the 1962 Nixon-Brown campaign race when newspaper, television and radio reporters followed the candidates around the state, covering them "intensively and consistently during both the primary and general elections."

Flournoy's criticism came in a speech to the San Francisco Public Relations Roundtable. He said he was having trouble selling his "product," and "my product is me."

The GOP candidate said his problem was complicated because his opponent, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., has "disappeared."

Flournoy said Brown chose to address a convention in Fresno by telephone, instead of in person, and that he "sneaked" into San Diego recently for a fund raising dinner.

"Reporters covering his campaign complain that they have nothing to write about," Flournoy said.

"It is obvious that my opponent has adopted a low profile strategy --hoping that the daily outpouring of news from Washington will sweep him to victory in California in November," he said.

"If this fall's campaign is so overshadowed by what happens in Washington that people will not know what and whom they are buying, then California may be in for a time of trouble."

At a news conference, Flournoy repeated his statement of Monday that President Nixon should resign. If not, he said Nixon will be impeached.

Flournoy, the state controller, also said he has no preference as to how Gov. Ronald Reagan should fill the post of Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, who has been found guilty of perjury.

Flournoy said it made no difference to him whether Reagan appoints State Sen. John Harmer, the GOP candidate for the post, or whether he "goes the caretaker route."

Oxford Forced To Freeze Staff

OXFORD, England (UPI) — Government spending cuts have forced Oxford University to stop filing vacancies in its academic staff for the time being, the university announced.

Vice Chairman H. J. Habakkuk said government cuts had "disrupted financial planning" for the period up to the end of 1977.

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 7, the 219th day of 1974 with 46 to follow.

The moon is between its full stage and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

American statesman Ralph Bunche was born Aug. 7, 1904.

On this day in history:

In 1782, the Order of the Purple Heart was established by George Washington.

In 1942, U.S. Marines launched America's first offensive in World War II by landing on Guadalcanal in the Pacific.

In 1962, Mrs. John Kennedy became the first presidnt's wife to give birth while living in the White House since the days of Grover Cleveland. Patrick Bouvier Kennedy died two days later.

In 1971, the U.S. Apollo 15 moonship returned to earth safely despite failure of one of its three parachutes during splashdown in the Pacific.

A thought for the day: British humorist Patrick Herbert said, "We should not produce equality by turning everything upside down."

Don't Set Up Dummy's Suit— Clearcut Action For Victory

It's usually a good idea to put your partner in overruffing position, but it may not pay to do so if his trumps are obviously no threat to declarer. Beware of setting up tricks for declarer in such situations.

RECENT MATCH

When this hand was played in a recent match, one defense tried for the overruff and came a cropper. East took the first two heart tricks with the king and ace, and then led another heart to put his partner in overruffing position.

Declarer stepped up with the ace of trumps to shut West out. He then drew trumps with the jack and queen, after which he could safely cash dummy's last heart to discard his losing diamond.

The rest was easy. Declarer led a club from dummy, giving up one club, winning one in his hand and ruffing the other two in dummy. He lost two hearts and one club, making the contract.

STOPS DISCARD

At the other table of the match, East saw the danger of setting up dummy's hearts. He won the first trick with the king of hearts and returned the three of hearts to give West an immediate ruff.

West returned a club to the ace, and East led another low heart. South could step up with a high trump to shut West out, but East still had the ace of hearts to top dummy's last heart. Dummy's hearts thus provided no discards, and South had to lose a diamond trick as well as the two hearts and a club.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens the bidding with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- K Q 7 6
♥- 10 9 5 2
♦- A 7 6 4
♣- 3

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds.

The hand is too strong for a raise to two spades, but not quite strong enough for a forcing raise to three spades. Bid a side suit first and show the spade support at your next turn.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Bond And Stock Balance Is Advised

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and
DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. My husband and I are close to retirement and have $100,000 to invest. Our goals are security and income with a hedge against inflation. What type of investments would meet our needs? — T.L.

A. A balanced portfolio, 50 per cent invested in bonds for safety and income and 50 per cent in income/growth stocks, should provide you with a comfortable retirement cushion. For the bond segment of your portfolio, I suggest putting approximately $10,000 in each of the recommended issues.

All five bonds are A-rated or better and listed on the NYSE. These are: 10M Bethlehem Steel 9s of 2000, 11M Brooklyn Union 9⅛s of 1995, 12M Illinois Bell Telephone 8s of 2004, 12M Southern Bell Telephone 8s of 2014 and 12M TVA 7.35s of 1997, the B series bonds. This package costing about $50,000 will pay $4,700 annually in interest, a yield of 9.4 per cent.

Equal dollar amounts in the following five NYSE stocks will net you about $14,000 from dividend income, an 8 per cent average return. American Telephone (buy 230 shares) reported a 16 per cent increase in the first fiscal half and should earn a record $5.45 for the year. A liberal yield, 9.6 per cent, makes well-situated Cleveland Electric attractive. Your purchase here would be 400 shares.

W.R. Grace has recently reported earnings for the first half of $2.31 per share, up 72 per cent year-to-year. This massive chemical company derived a good share of this gain from its agricultural chemical division. The company is currently expanding phosphate capacity 75 per cent and urea capacity by 50 per cent. A new plant to be built in Trinidad will boost ammonia production. Buy 440 shares.

Gulf Oil (buy 500) on its way to record 1974 earnings has reported a 50 per cent gain for first half net. Gulf Oil, which is selling at four times projected earnings to yield 7.3 per cent, has above-average recovery potential. A purchase of 355 shares of U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty will round out your retirement portfolio. Inflation-swelled property/casualty settlements which depressed 1973 earnings should be offset by rate increases. This bond/stock retirement portfolio yields 8.7 per cent on average.

Resignation Talk Spurs Action On Stock Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — After an uncertain opening, stocks forged ahead on the New York Stock Exchange today as resignation sentiment gathered momentum on Capitol Hill.

An hour-long meeting apparently called by President Nixon for "an exchange of views on the current situation" with Vice President Gerald Ford and White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig, Jr. fueled investors' hopes that Nixon may opt for resignation now that his support in Congress has been seriously eroded by the latest tape disclosure.

With pressure mounting from GOP congressmen for Nixon to step down rather than face impeachment and a likely conviction in the Senate, the financial community was concerned about the ability of the current administration to minister to the nation's economic woes.

The glamors also attracted buyers. Xerox added 1 ½, IBM 1 ¼, and McDonald's and Walt Disney ⅝ each.

Boeing led the actives, off ¼ to 17 ¾ on 110,700 shares, including a block of 100,000 at 18.

On the American Exchange, prices moved higher in light trading. Syntex, the volume leader, added ¼ to 39 on 12,300 shares.

City Staff Produces Improved General Plan

There are several lessons to be drawn from the new San Rafael General Plan, which has now cleared the planning commission and awaits action by the city council.

Most obvious is that it is not easy to replan an existing community. The planner who lays out a new community on what is raw land has a much simpler job. (Thirty years later, the town may turn out to be quite different from the way he envisioned it, but at least it starts out as planned.)

ALMOST EQUALLY obvious is that a plan must embrace a series of compromises. What pleases the business community or even the average wage-earner may enrage the all-out environmentalists, and vice versa. The goals of social planners often conflict with the rights of property owners. To be workable, a plan must recognize the rights and desires of all.

Lack of such compromises spelled the downfall of the general plan draft prepared for the city by consultants Duncan and Jones of Berkeley. The firm produced a plan keyed to the sociological notions of some, without allowance for the conflicting interests of others whose rights are as real and whose interest in the future of their city is as great.

The plan now before the city council retains some of what Duncan and Jones produced. But for the most part, it is a new plan, produced by the city's own planning staff with plenty of input from the planning commission and the citizen advisory committee.

It lacks some things that need to be spelled out; it includes some things that remain questionable. Even the public hearing last Saturday disclosed a couple of omissions that must be corrected by the planning staff. No doubt it will get further refinement before its final adoption by the council. But it is far better, far more workable, and far less offensive to major groups of longtime San Rafael residents than the initial draft by Duncan and Jones.

THERE IS A LESSON in this which might be kept in mind hereafter — not only in San Rafael City Hall, but in the Civic Center, in other city halls andd districts offices.

This is to make use of the city's (or county's, or district's) own staff. Often these people have the know-how to do a better job than the high-priced imported consultant — as the San Rafael General Plan's history demonstrates.

Cities and county have on their payrolls experts who are just as competent as those who set themselves up in the consulting business. Only when the city or county staff is lacking in a particular kind of expert, or when (as in the case of San Rafael Redevleopment) the job is too big for the existing staff to handle, do we need to go outside for help. The idea that existing city and county staffs are capable only of doing the routine is a false idea, and is demeaning to those who live in and work for our communities.

It should be obvious (although often it is not) that the resident staffs can do a better job by augmenting their expert knowledge with the special community understanding that no outsider can have.

The San Rafael Planning Department and the planning commission (which at first was precluded from participation) deserve commendation for the city general plan in its present form. Further refining at city council direction should produce a plan with which we all can live, and which will benefit the city in the future.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Swan Song For A Column In Look At Today's Schools

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

This is the 423rd "People's Schools" column by this writer — and the last. It is being discontinued to free the writer's time for other activities.

The first column, in March, 1966, dealt with the confusing and misleading manner in which school tax rates were reported to the public by school board and superintendents. To an extent, this was rectified by Senate Bill 90, which ties school taxes to a spending-per-pupil formula.

Not all the people's concerns of eight years ago about their schools have been dealt with, however; and some new ones have arisen.

A FEW BRIEF ITEMS may indicate the present state of the public school system:

The National Education Association, in a recent press release, reported that a call for greater teacher political power "is the word that NEA, the nation's second largest union, is putting out to its 1.5 million members as teachers prepared to make their political muscle felt, as never before, in the national elections."

NEA, along with the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations, is out to elect a "veto-proof Congress" in November. In our own state, the NEA-affiliated California Teachers Association, through its political arm, the Association for Better Citizenship, is working to elect a "veto-proof legislature."

(Eight years ago, NEA avoided direct electioneering, as did CTA with some exceptions.)

IN THE CALIFORNIA Legislature are four bills calling for exclusive union collective bargaining for teachers. Top priority on CTA's list of proposed legislation has been given AB 3254 (Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles), a compulsory union shop bill. Other teacher collective bargaining bills are AB 1857 (Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento), SB 2432 (George Moscone, D-San Francisco), and AB 1243 (Robert Moretti, D-North Hollywood). The last would mandate the union ship in all California public employment.

(Eight years ago, the official position of NEA was still: "It is not only harmful but fallacious to assume that the labor-management relation applies in public schools." CTA took a similar position.)

EDUCATORS NEGOTIATING Service reported recently that NEA has a battle plan worked out so that "at the push of a button, so to speak, 'spontaneous' strikes break out over entire states." From the 1969-70 through the 1972-73 school years, according to the U.S. Department of Labor, there were 438 teacher strikes by NEA affiliates and 98 by American Federation of Teachers affiliates. Most of them were illegal.

(Eight years ago, CTA's official position condemned "the use of strikes and other unlawful acts as a means of resolving differences of opinion regarding salaries." NEA was on the verge of modifying its long-standing anti-strike policy.)

DECLINING SCHOOL enrollments, combined with ironclad tenure laws, have virtually closed the door to teaching careers for recent college graduates. As George Iannacone, superintendent of Palisades Park (N.J.) schools, wrote in a recent Council for Basic Education Bulletin: "With the teacher oversupply, there is no reason why mediocre or incompetent personnel should be permitted to continue to wreak havoc upon the learners in our schools."

However, the only tenure revision enacted in California in the past eight years, the Stull-Rodda Act, made it even more difficult to dismiss incompetent teachers. And tenure would be further tightened by two bills now in the legislature: SB 368 (Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, and Alan Robbins, D-North Hollywood), and AB 3418 (Howard Berman, D-Sherman Oaks).

JAMES W. GUTHRIE, associate professor of education at University of California, declared in his newly issued "Guthrie Report" that taxpayers have lost control of the public schools to a professional elite. "In effect, teachers have been accorded veto power over school board policy making," he wrote.

Perhaps there was a bit of wishful thinking eight years ago in my titling this column, "The People's Schools." If Professor Guthrie is right, they are no longer the people's schools, although the people still are taxed for them — more and more each year. So it may be appropriate that the name "The People's Schools" should vanish with this final column.

Inflation Could Clear Way For A Hitler To 'Save' America

(Reprinted from Eureka (Nev.) Sentinel)

It is probably safe to say that without inflation there would have been no Adolph Hitler. That sobering assessment of what runaway inflation can bring lends a special urgency to the recent warning of Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur F. Burns that "if the past . . . is any guide, the future of our country is in jeopardy" from inflation.

Following Germany's defeat in World War I, and up to 1923, money became virtually worthless in that country. The professional classes, having no other source of income, turned to salesmen, workmen, or speculators. The entire middle class dependent upon small fixed incomes was virtually wiped out.

Enter Adolph Hitler, the "savior" who promised to avenge Germany's humiliation and restore its prosperity. The rest is tragic history.

COULD SUCH a thing happen in the United States? Listen to Arthur Burns, a man now known for overstatement:

"The gravity of our current inflationary problems can hardly be overestimated. Except for a brief period at the end of World War II, prices in the United States have of late been rising faster than in any other peacetime period of our history.

"No country I know of has been able to maintain widespread economic prosperity once inflation got out of hand. And the unhappy consequences are by no means solely of an economic nature. If long continued, inflation at anything like the present rate would threaten the very foundation of our society."

ALTHOUGH IT IS true that there have been contributing factors such as the energy crisis, the primary blame for high inflation must be laid firmly on the steps of Congress. In the short run, the country cannot stand a tax cut at this time. In the long run, members of Congress must be told in no uncertain terms that no longer will we stand for high-priced programs we cannot afford.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND:

Impeachment Inevitable; Removal Not So

WASHINGTON — By now most Americans are getting used to the idea of impeachment and are not shuddering as they were some weeks ago at the possibility of removing the President from office.

The debate on the articles of impeachment among members of the House Judiciary Committee — brought into the homes of millions by television — demonstrated three things:

—That the proceedings of the House committee were carried out fairly, responsibly and deliberately.

—That the decisions of the committee, approving the two central articles of impeachment, rejecting two others and endorsing a third by a narrow vote, revealed relatively little partisanship — in fact, so little partisanship as to merit genuine respect.

—That thus far the proceedings have been conducted in a manner to deserve trust in the impeachment process which is the only constitutional way to resolve this kind of problem and should justify our support whichever way it comes out.

I AM NOT ASSUMING to prejudge what the end result will be or should be. I am adhering to the first principle of law that the accused is innocent until proved guilty. But I feel that I should put into the record of these columns one judgment. It is this:

The evidence before the Judiciary Committee raises sufficient doubt about the actions of Mr. Nixon so that the impeachment process should go forward to determine whether he is innocent or guilty.

That is all the Judiciary Committee has decided. That is all the full House will be deciding; namely, that the evidence justifies a trial.

ALREADY SOME Republican members of the House are trying out an idea that the president should ask the Republicans to try to get the House to waive its responsibility by a pro-forma vote and rush the case to trial in the Senate.

How shortsighted can some of the president's supporters get? This wouldn't help Richard Nixon one bit because it would be a sly effort by the Republicans to get off the hook by not having to cast a vote on impeachment. The theory is that they would thus be home scot-free when the congressional elections come in November.

The effect would be just the opposite. This is probably the most serious vote to be cast in the lifetime of all congressmen. To run away from it would be offensive to most constituents. It would be degrading. Furthermore, such a cringing, irresponsible course would be blandly disdainful of the Constitution by assuming that the House could ease out of its constitutional duty by asking the Senate to take over.

I doubt if this will appeal to the president. I hope we won't hear about it much longer.

What the House is almost certainly about to do is to indict the president so that the Senate can determine whether the accusations against him are true or false. We should bear in mind that, as the Stans-Mitchell acquittal showed, indictment is not conviction but is the means toward determining what the verdict should be.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Count Your Blessings Instead Of Complaining

When I read Vel De Leon's letter to the I.J., July 31, I sensed Mrs. De Leon is a most unhappy individual. I sympathize with her situation, which no doubt is not an easy one. It is so easy for us, however, to air our adverse feelings to the public, but I am wondering how we would feel if we would "count our blessing," publicly, more often. A person's attitude is very infectious to those around him, so wouldn't it be great if more people expressed a positive reaction to the many daily situations which occur.

I am sure you are aware, Mrs. De Leon, that in many countries the mortgage payment is not of concern, but the lack of shelter is; the cost of the food is of no concern, but the lack of it. Gas and lights too high? I assume you are warm and comfortable? Impeach Nixon? Is he a dictator? Have any of your individual rights been taken away from you? Do you travel wherever you desire? Did anyone dictate to you where to live? Has your son been taken from you and placed in a factory to work? Or enforced to join the military at his tender age? And aren't you fortunate to have an automobile to drive wherever you would like to go? Need I go on?

You see, Mrs. De Leon, you do have many blessings to be thankful for, and I am sure you can count them better than I. Try very hard, my fellow countryman, to find something to be thankful for every day and you will discover your upset stomach will disappear.

Thinks 'Leakers' Far Worse Than 'Plumbers'

My letter that was published in Friday's I-J has brought some response, which I expected, of course. Some of it was very approbatory — and some not, to say the least — and in every case, the latter were all anonymous. Anonymous calls and letters carry absolutely no weight with me and cannot be answered except through such a medium as this column. So, with your permission:

For those who say "You're some kind of nut!" I can only say that these people are certainly entitled to their opinion. I don't know the reason for their anonymity, unless it were that these people can always tell their friends, "I guess I told her!" and feel better, perhaps, for the catharsis.

To those who say I am "political" in my views, I am an American first. And from what I can see the whole thing has been "political," as what could be more political than a House Judiciary Chairman who promised, if such be the case, to deliver all the Democrats' votes for impeachment, and make such promise nine months before the hearings? I say "if such be the case;" I wasn't there. But my observations were of things that I had seen in the newspaper — this one, to be exact, was the one quoted — or on television . . .

To me, the "leakers" are far worse than the "plumbers," and I do not for one moment defend them unequivocally.

Finally, to the lady (obviously outraged feminine handwriting) who anonymously castigates me for "loving Nixon more than (my) country" . . . and is a fellow-Republican who is ashamed of me, I would like to remind her that she has the same right to her opinion as I do mine, all politics aside, and I understand her outrage and sympathize with it.

But I would humbly suggest that in the interest of fair play it might be well for all of us to exercise fair play and wait until all the evidence is in before jumping on a lynch bandwagon. Then, and only then, I might just join her.

Student From England Dislikes System

I am a student probation officer from England. I came to Marin to work in the probation office as part of my training.

During the six weeks that I have been here I have seen many aspects of the California judicial system.

I cannot claim to understand the judicial system in depth, but feel unable now to have any involvement in the supervision of probationers.

I have therefore written the county probation officer, John Brewer, pointing out the three areas I find myself unable to accept:

.I feel I cannot work within a justice system which perpetuates an institution such as the California Medical Facility at Vacaville;

I feel that I cannot accept the death penalty as punishment for a crime, however serious;

I cannot accept the disparity between sentences given to those who would thwart the Constitution and those whose crimes have a lesser total effect on society.

"There must not be such a thing in this country as, what you call, an 'amateur crook'. Each person that is caught in some terrible crime, you find where he has been 'paroled, pardoned and pampered' by every jail or insane asylum in the country. Some of these criminals' records and the places they have been freed from, why, it sounds like a tour of a 'one night theatrical troop'.

"It must be awful monotonous, belonging to one of these state parole boards. There is days and days when they just have to sit around, waiting for new criminals to be caught, so they can parole them." — Oct. 18, 1934.

Butz Calls It Like It Is On Waste In Feeding Pets

WASHINGTON — Ever since he got off the plane from Indianapolis, Earl Butz has been saying things that outraged everybody except the farmers. The secretary of agriculture's joy is to tell it like he thinks it is but most city people don't — as when a couple of years ago he said ever-higher beef prices were just what the beefeaters of America needed.

This time, however, he has temporarily enlarged his constituency into the suburbs and downtown. He did it by speaking some common sense on behalf of the non-pet owners of the nation. The non-pet pamperers, rather.

IN A TIME of rising concern over international famine and future world food supplies, when drought threatens this year's crops and prices fly further out of sight, some thinkers have suggested that we all eat one hamburger less per week. The theory is that that would release vast amounts of grain for shipment to hungry areas rather than for steer fattening in feed lots of the West and Middle West.

Butz could not let this latest threat to the beef business go unzapped. Wondering out very loud whether "those ill-informed, fuzzy-thinking do-gooders" could possibly be serious, he made his counterproposal.

If those busybodies do mean what they say, Butz replied, "they could make the first onslaught on this noble goal by reducing our dog and cat population by 50 per cent, which likewise would suddenly release more grain for the world. We could also make very substantial progress increasing grain supplies by reducing by 50 per cent our horse population — which no longer pulls the plow or the dray."

Uncharacteristically, the secretary made a gesture to calm the pet fanciers before they could rise up against him. He is not really advocating cutting down the number of pets, he says. He is just making a point.

WELL, HIS POINT is worth a little discussion. Most of us average sleepers and walkers are dog lovers in the abstract; it is only when we step in the evidence, or when they bark all night next door, that thoughts of poisoning or shotgunning flit through our minds.

People who are professionally burdened with the surplus of pets in our country are a little colder about it. Public campaigns to have all pets spayed are familiar by now. Not many of us realize, however, that animal control in our cities and counties is now a half-billion-dollar annual expenditure. That is for catching, sheltering, killing and disposing of unwanted pets.

Yet if that sounds expensive, consider the cost of the ones that are wanted. Dog and cat food make a $1.8 billion industry in our country; with bird and fish food added, it comes to more than $2 billion a year.

It is a growth industry partly because of the tremendous increase in ownership of big eaters like German shepherds by city dwellers paralyzed by fear of burglars and rapists. But more expensive brands cater to the delicate palates of nervous little barkers who should be named Fifi.

IN GENERAL, pet food is fish parts, cereals and meat byproducts — things like snouts, tripe, tongue and udders. Sophisticated diners since the time of Upton Sinclair ("The Jungle," 1906) have known those are the same ingredients that go into hot dogs and bologna.

Which returns us to Butz's idea, on which I offer an improvement in the same spirit. Let the products that now go into commercial pet food, including gourmet varieties labeled London Broil and Cheese-Flavored Burgers, be used in variety meats for needy humans. Let pets eat table scraps wherever possible, as they used to. And let the multibillion-dollar pet-food industry perform a useful social function by taking a role in the animal-control program —carting away carcasses to be ground up and recycled as more pet food.

A modest proposal whereby everybody would win, including the taxpayers and the hungry.

Fairfax, San Anselmo Councils Move To Let The Sun Shine In

In an extraordinary departure from past practice in Marin, the city councils of Fairfax and San Anselmo last month interviewed applicants for city manager in public sessions.

The public, perhaps unaccustomed to participating in such matters, did not attend the sessions.

Despite the poor turnout at the novel sessions, public questioning of candidates did much to boost the public's right to know.

UNDER PROVISIONS of the Ralph M. Brown Act, the state's anti-secrecy law, city councils are allowed to meet behind closed doors to consider hiring municipal employees.

But Fairfax and San Anselmo went a step farther than the law and opened up the hiring process to public view.

The San Anselmo City Council, at 8 p.m. Aug. 13, will consider approval of a resolution calling for all employee hiring to be conducted in open session.

The resolution also calls for public airing of employee salary negotiations. The Brown Act allows legislative bodies to meet behind closed doors to discuss such negotiations.

THE MOVE TO OPEN hiring and salary negotiating sessions to public view was sparked by Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro, who feels that secret sessions sap public confidence in elected officials.

"Elected and appointed bodies have been hiding behind the shield of the Brown Act and the end result has been many questionable meetings," Capurro said at a recent council meeting.

"When we're spending the taxpayer's money, the public has a right to hear," he told colleagues. "I personally have nothing to hide."

Mayor Martin G. Blinder has backed Capurro's open meeting proposal. "There's no question in my mind this resolution will make life harder for me as a councilman, but I didn't run to make life easy," he said.

COUNCILMEN Kenneth L. Anderson and John H. Colteaux have opposed Capurro's proposal. They claim that open hiring and negotiating sessions would serve to hamstring the council, prevent councilmen from asking embarrassing questions of employee candidates, and spark the spectacle of "collective begging" salary sessions.

Colteaux has even claimed that residents would "lose information" under the Capurro resolution, saying councilmen would consult on the phone rather than speak out at open meetings.

Holding the swing vote on Aug. 13 is Councilman Pieter Toal, who has balked at open airings of salary negotiations.

Should Toal vote with Capurro and Blinder, San Anselmo citizens have much to gain.

Committee Beats Retirement Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A controversial bill designed to prevent state legislators from collecting a special retirement bonus has been defeated by the Assembly Rules Committee.

The panel yesterday voted 5-2 to hold the measure (AB4506) in committee after two members in line to receive the pension benefits denounced the bill's author, freshman Assemblyman Bob McLennan, R-Downey.

"I'd like to wad this bill up and stick it in his (McLennan's) ear," Assemblyman John Quimby, D-San Bernardino, said when the bill was brought up.

"I'm led to the inescapable conclusion that this is horrible grandstanding ..." said Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Los Angeles.

The bill was designed to end a provision of the legislator's retirement plan under which lawmakers who serve at least four years can immediately begin receiving a full pension when they leave the legislature instead of waiting until age 60, the normal starting age for legislative pensions. Slightly more than half of the 120 lawmakers are affected by the provision. It does not affect lawmakers elected after 1969.

The committee's action came when McLennan requested that it suspend house rules so his measure, introduced Monday, could be heard without waiting the normal 30-day period following introduction.

McLennan said afterwards he was "very disappointed and disgusted" with the committee's action. He said such a request is approved routinely by the committee, adding, "I've never seen one denied previously."

He said Karabian "went into a tirade about the bill" in the rules committee although only the merits of his request to waive the 30-day rule should have been debated.

"Since he (Karabian) has a chance of losing $140,000 in retirement benefits because of my bill," McLennan said, "It is understandable that he would react so violently. He didn't want any part of the bill to get out of the committee."

Karabian, 36, an eight-year assembly man who was defeated for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state in June, will receive $146,995 in retirement benefits before he turns 60. Quimby, 39, a 12-year veteran assemblyman who was defeated for re-election in June, will collect $213,678 before he turns 60.

Compromise Sought To Rescue BART

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A compromise bill designed to save the financially troubled Bay Area Rapid Transit District will be submitted to state legislators representing the Bay Area, Sen. James R. Mills says.

"We have to do something," Mills, D-San Diego, said yesterday. "They can't shut it down."

BART officials have said money problems could force closure of the transit system.

To reach an agreement among Bay Area lawmakers on a plan to bail out the district, Mills said he is working with the legislative analyst to amend his bill (SB1966) which is currently stalled in the Assembly Transportation Committee.

He said his bill will be heard by the committee only if it "can be put in a form acceptable to the delegation."

Mills' proposed bill would:

Extend the sales tax for a limited period in order to issue tax anticipation notes to cover the impending operating deficit.

Direct the legislative analyst to monitor management of the BART system during the period while this temporary sales tax is imposed.

Direct the legislative analyst to undertake a study to develop long-range financing alternatives for BART.

"While the subject of what kind of tax is the most equitable may be a subject for discussion," Mills said, "the simple fact is that extending the present one-half per cent sales tax is mechanically the easiest method."

In addition, he said, the time of the tax is critical.

The bill proposes to extend the one-half cent sales tax through fiscal year 1976-77, at which time the tax would be reduced to one-quarter per cent for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

20-Mile Parkway Study Authorized

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The City Council yesterday authorized a $50,000 environmental impact report as the first step towards building a 20-mile parkway along Mullholland Drive from the Hollywood Freeway to Topanga Canyon Boulevard.

The controversial $20 million project was first approved by the Council in March, 1973, and would include two-lane road, bikeways, equestrian and hiking trails and scenic development.

Most Major Papers Urge Resignation

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Most major newspapers across the nation are calling for President Nixon's resignation or a speeding up of the impeachment process for the good of the country following disclosure of Nixon's own involvement in the Watergate coverup.

But the New York Times today came out in support of the President's present position that he not resign.

The Times said it saw "considerable merit in the President's attitude ... that he intends to 'allow the Constitution to be the overriding factor.'"

"To accept this statement as a guilty plea and suggest that resignation would now close the book on Watergate would leave too many loose ends, too many questions unresolved," the Times said.

"It would do nothing to inhibit subsequent fostering of the myth of a President hounded out of office by his political enemies. Doubts could be created whether the President would actually have been convicted in an impeachment trial, whether his departure from office was really justified by the facts."

The Los Angeles Times, calling for his resignation, said in any event he will be impeached and convicted.

"He should resign immediately," the Times said. "There is no question that he will be impeached. His admissions on Monday assure his conviction in the Senate. To resign is to achieve the purpose of impeachment while sparing the nation more weeks of his inevitably uncertain leadership."

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, Omaha World-Herald and the Dallas Times Herald also said the President should step down.

The Post-Gazette said "The President should step aside and let Vice President Ford attempt to reunite the nation and get it moving in constructive directions."

"All of the President's maneuvering could not salvage anything from the wreckage of the Watergate adventure," the World-Herald said. "At this late date he could salvage something for his country —an end to a disruptive, disquieting and divisive period of history —and for himself —the redemption of bowing gracefully before necessity —by resigning."

The Times Herald said, "The public trust is gone. He should remove himself and let Vice President Ford begin to bind the nation's wounds."

Other editorial comment:

Detroit Free Press: "There should be little doubt left any more that he has ... committed offenses for which he should be impeached and removed from office."

Chicago Sun-Times: "More than ever are we thankful that the process of impeachment is under way and that the Constitution will be allowed to work its own will."

Chicago Tribune: "Every day that Mr. Nixon remains in office is a day's delay in meeting the many urgent problems that face the country."

Syracuse (N.Y.) Herald-Journal: "Resignation would be his most heroic act. The nation's preoccupation with Watergate must end."

The Oregonian, Portland, Ore.: "President Nixon's admission ... destroys not only the remaining vestiges of his credibility as chief executive, it also makes it almost impossible for his lawyers, whom he also deceived, or for any remaining Nixon loyalists in Congress, to provide for the President a credible defense in a trial in the Senate."

Trenton (N.J.) Evening Times: "The good of the country now demands that Richard M. Nixon step down from the presidency."

Boston Herald American: "... Richard M. Nixon has been his own worst enemey in the Watergate debacle. He would not be in his precarious position today if he had told the American public the truth long ago, instead of trying to outsmart his critics.

"We will not presume to judge this man whose noble dream was a peaceful world, but whose feet have been mired in the mud of supposedly practical politics. That is the duty of the other politicians in Congress. Let them judge honestly, in conscience, and with a maximum of compassion."

Boston Globe: "The President of the United States has made what amounts to a plea of guilty. But it is still his choice as to how he will leave his high office. There has to be an orderly transition. It is time now for Mr. Nixon and the Congress to come to some accommodation respecting the welfare of both the nation and the President who has led it — or misled it."

Berkshire Eagle, Pittsfield, Mass.: "The latest and biggest bombshell in the Watergate scandal seems virtually certain to blow to bits what is left of the Nixon presidency. The White House bunker is selfdestructing, and the one big thing Mr. Nixon can still do for the country is to quit his office, the sooner the better."

Brockton (Mass.) Enterprise and Times: "President Nixon by his own words has with a ringing finality sealed the lid on his own credibility. He has stripped the public of any rationale by which one could justify future face."

Providence (R.I.) Journal: "...If Mr. Nixon continues to hang on to his office then the constitutional process of impeachment and trial will have to go on to its final and bitter end. If so, Mr. Nixon's latest statement can only help speed up that denouement, and that is at least one small thing for which we all can be grateful."

New York Daily News: "Three courses are open to the President. He can resign. He can step aside ... he can fight impeachment through the House and Senate.... Everybody else, almost, is telling the President what he should or should not do next. We believe the next move is Mr. Nixon's and Mr. Nixon's alone."

Jacobsen Admits Milk Case Bribe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jake Jacobsen, a former lawyer for the nation's largest milk producers'' cooperative, pleaded guilty today to a charge that he gave former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally a $10,000 bribe. In entering the plea, Jacobsen agreed to testify against Connally.

Both Jacobsen and Connally were indicted by a federal grand jury July 29 on charges growing out of Connally's role in a 1971 decision by President Nixon to increase federal price support for raw milk after the milk producers pledged $2 million to Nixon's re-election campaign.

Jacobsen, 54, of Austin, Tex., pleaded guilty to one count of making a bribe. Chief U.S. District Court Judge George L. Hart Jr. then released him to the custody of his attorney.

Jacobsen faces a maximum penality of two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

In exchange for the guilty plea on the bribery charge, Deputy Special Prosecutor Henry Ruth dropped other charges against Jacobsen, including an indictment filed in U.S. District Court in San Angelo, Tex.

In a letter to Jacobsen's lawyer May 21, Ruth spelled out terms for accepting the single guilty plea and dropping the other charges in return for Jacobsen's testimony against Connally.

Connolly, a long-time Texas associate of Jacobsen, will be arraigned Friday. He is charged with a total of five counts of accepting bribes, conspiracy and lying to the grand jury. If convicted, Connally would face a maximum penalty of 19 years imprisonment and a $50,000 fine.

Jacobsen pleaded guilty to giving Connally what Hart called "an illegal gratuity" of $10,000 in cash between May 14, 1971, and Sept.27, in 1971.

The payment was made, the indictment said, "for and because of official acts performed by him to wit, his recommendations in his official capacity concerning an increase in the federal milk price support level."

Connally has maintained he is innocent of any wrong-doing.

The silver-haired Jacobsen, a White House legislative counsel during the Johnson administration, wore a dark suit and sat somberly in the courtroom during most of this morning's 10-minute proceeding. He stood before the judge, following abbrreviated reading of the charge by the judge, and answered in a firm voice:

"I plead guilty, your honor."

Jacobsen's sentence will be imposed later.

The separate federal indictment against Jacobsen in Tecas, dropped in return for his guilty plea and agreement to testify, charged him and an associate, Ray Cowan, with misuse of an $825,000 loan from the First Savings and Loan Association of San Angelo.

Both Jacobsen and Cowan formerly were executives of the institution. It has never been disclosed what federal prosecutors believe was done with the money.

A Watergate grand jury accused Jacobsen of paying Connally "for official acts performed by him, to wit, his recommendations in his official capacity concerning an increase in the federal milk price support level ... announced on March 21, 1971."

The indictment said that after the price support decision, Jacobsen gave Connally one cash payment of $5,000 on May 14, 1971, and another of the same amount on Sept. 24, 1971. It charged the cash came from the Associated Milk Producers, Inc. (AMPI).

Connally and Jacobsen, the grand jury said, "unlawfully, willfully and knowingly did combine, conspire, confederate and agree together" in the cover-up.

The grand jury charged that under the terms of the conspiracy Connally would testify that he had refused to accept the $10,000 because he was a Democrat in a Republican administration.

TWA's East Coast

BOOK NOW

Reserve a seat at least 90 days before you want to leave for New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington or Baltimore and you'll pay only $230 round trip. There's a $15 surcharge each way for weekend travel. Give us a $20 deposit (refundable only if you cancel by written request more than 90 days before departure) for each way you want to go. Then pay the balance at least 45 days before you leave. And that's it.

A month before you're ready to go, TWA will mail your ticket plus all the information on your specific flight.

FLY LATER

You should know that you may have to make connections. And you can't stay over en route. But you should also know that you'll be traveling on a regularly scheduled TWA jet. Not a charter flight.

What's more, you can stay in the East for as short as a day or as long as a year because there are no minimum or maximum stay restrictions.

SAVE UP TO $158†

You'll be getting all the services a regular Coach passenger gets. But because you booked in advance, you'll be getting them for $124 to $158 less, round trip, than regular Coach.

What's more, you can even charge your trip on your TWA Getaway* Card.

Needless to say, in times like these a plan like this is going to get booked pretty quick. And seats are limited and sometimes sell out well before the 90th day, especially during holidays. So call your Travel Agent and make round-trip reservations as soon as you can.

Demand Scheduled* Service

TWA

*Demand Scheduled fare applies through March 31, 1975

For reservations call your Travel Agent.

All fares are subject to change and do not include security charges.

Destination airport preference not guaranteed.

†Savings based on Boston round trip.
